

GOV. BRADY WINS FIGHT FOR BALLOT

(By United Press.) BOISE, Ida., Oct. 8.—Gov. Brady has won his fight against Secretary of State Landon to force the latter to certify the names of state nominees on the official ballot for the general election, to be held in November.

The supreme court, in an opinion rendered yesterday afternoon, held that the application for a writ to review the count of the primary elections as petitioned for by the secretary of state, would be denied and the demurrer entered by Gov. Brady to the application sustained. Landon announced today that he would certify the state candidates to the county auditors.

TACOMA, Oct. 8.—That from the rifle of Peter Peterson came the bullet which carried death to Mrs. Swan Samson while hunting Wednesday is the conclusion which results from investigation. Peterson is held entirely blameless for the accident by all connected with the tragic affair, but that does not lessen the grief of Peterson himself or of Mr. Samson, both of whom were with Mrs. Samson at the time of the accident.

PEPPER YOUR ICE CREAM? SOME SEATTLE DIETS WOULD MAKE AN OSTRICH ENVIOUS

restaurant keepers showed, are some and sane Seattle men. "We've got men in town with diets that would make an ostrich hang his head in discouragement," said one restaurant man. The man who takes bananas and beer in a saloon is no longer out of the beaten path. Men who eat two or three raw steaks with vinegar in a restaurant, or make three meals a day on plain, everyday milk and sugar are not unusual. "Seattle is eating more tom-fool things every day," says A. L. Griffith, waiter at the College Inn. Josephine McGinley, waitress at Allen Dale's, says she takes more funny orders every day. "Only this morning," she said, "a man ordered for breakfast pumpkin pie a-la-mode, rice pudding, coconut cake and then soup. "Some party'll come in here some day and ask for tripe floated in cottage pudding."

IMPRISON U. S. CITIZENS IN WAR

(By United Press.) GUATEMALA CITY, Oct. 8.—Foreigners are fleeing in terror from Amalpa, Honduras, following the imprisonment of Englishmen and Americans and seizure of property by the city commandante last night. The jailing of the Americans and Englishmen is believed to be tantamount to condemnation to death. The foreigners are accused of fomenting a revolution. Anarchy prevails and the authorities are not attempting to prevent pillaging. The English consul at Amalpa has fled to San Salvador and has cabled for a cruiser.

IN LITTLE OLD NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—There has been formed in Paris the "Association of Noses That Suffer." It is composed of persons who desire to protest against unpleasant odors. Don't know just what their particular abhorrences are, over in Patee, but here in New York similar crusaders might get after: The uncovered garbage buckets and barrels, which stand along the streets from 6 to 8 a. m., and spoil the breakfast appetites of early risers; The fume-belching taxicabs, which blow their blue breaths upon folks leaving theatres with stifling effect; The charming pink-cheeked young gentlemen of 50 or 60, who make themselves more irresistible than ever by showering their garments with patchouli, musk and other choice perfumes, before taking their lady friends to dine; The horrible, ghastly, unknown smells which rise out of the constantly-excavated avenues, causing one to think all the gas mains and conduits and things must run through cemeteries; Honestly, girls, isn't there any limit to the funny stuff you will pack around? Every day our best-dressed ladies are getting to look less and less like human beings, and that's no exaggeration, as Lew Fields puts it.

And some others, not recollected at the present moment. Some girls carry the powder puff in the purse. Some carry it in the stocking. One way, it takes up too much room; other way, it is too hard to get at, in public. Now there's a new fangle. Great big hatpins, with great big heads, lids to the heads, and powder puff inside the lids. Also a mirror. Fine scheme, eh? Wonder if the eagle-eyed parties down at the customs office are wise to it. Quite several diamonds could be smuggled in one of those hollow-headed hatpins. Guards are being worn on the dangerous end of the hatpin. Dressed ladies are getting to be bigger than the head. Pheasants, owls and roosters are among the designs employed. Some of these birds are three inches tall. Little Helen McKinnon was not neglected by her father, former Councilman Alexander McKinnon, say her two elder sisters. So the case against him was dismissed by request yesterday by Judge Frater.

Only three marriage licenses were taken out yesterday. "Smatter 'Daniel!" The first session of the Sunday Club this season will be held tomorrow afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. Dr. Thomas Nicholson, of New York, will speak on "Who Shall Rule This World?" Right Rev. Edward J. O'Dea, bishop of Seattle, will preach at high mass tomorrow morning in St. James' Cathedral on the work of the recent eucharistic congress at Montreal.

SLOT MACHINES USED OVER 2000 YEARS AGO

"Drop a nickel in the slot and see the sacrificial machine work." Perhaps that wasn't the exact wording over the Egyptian slot machine, but the fact has just been established that such a machine was known in Alexandria 2,600 years ago. Here is a book on "Pneumatics" in 150 B. C., in which he describes a sacrificial vessel "which," he says, "flows only when a coin is introduced." An elaborate description of this device says that a coin dropped into the slot at the top of a vase depresses a lever which has at its end a broad plate upon which the coin momentarily rests. At the other end this lever raises a plug from the mouth of a pipe, causing the holy water with which the vase was filled to flow out at the side. Whether other nickel machines supplied the ancient Egyptians with chewing gum and matches, Hero's work does not reveal. Neither does it show that it supplied the Alexandrians with beer or mineral water. Anyway, it proves that Solomon was on the right track when he said that there is nothing new under the sun.

STEAMER ASHORE

(By United Press.) POINT REYES, Cal., Oct. 8.—A steam schooner, presumably the Tallac, went ashore four miles north of here today. The vessel is resting easily on a sandy shore and none aboard is in danger. A northbound schooner was directed to go to her assistance and the Point Reyes life-saving crew also put out. Owing to the dense and low lying fog, however, it was impossible to ascertain the name of the vessel. It is probable, however, that she can easily be refloated, as she is resting on a sandy shore and the water is calm.
