

MAYOR IGNORES CITIZENS' DEMAND HE MAY BE RECALLED

NEW EVIDENCE IN BRIBE CASE

Police Secretary Positively Identifies Tupper's Card Found on Wappy's Desk—Gerald Called, Tells Same Story—Trial Progressing More Rapidly Than First.

Charles Sullivan, secretary of police, positively identified the card of G. Tupper found in the desk vacated by former Chief Wappenstein at police headquarters, when called to the witness stand in Judge Ronald's court this morning. Sullivan said he did not believe he saw the card before, though he identified some of the figures written upon it as being in Wappenstein's handwriting.

Testimony Stronger.
On cross examination by Will H. Morris, chief counsel for Wappenstein, Sullivan explained that he had just barely glanced at the card when he found it, while cleaning up Wappenstein's desk when Hannick took office. Chief Hannick, he said, stood between him and the desk, and he turned the card over to Hannick and supposed that it was thrown away. Since the trial, however, Sullivan said, he discovered that Hannick kept the card and that it was the same as introduced in evidence.

The printed words on the card are: "G. Tupper, Wines, Liquors and Cigars, Ind. 2925, 522 Sixth Ave. So., Seattle." On its face, the figures "850" are written four times in a column. These figures, Sullivan again identified, as being in Wappenstein's handwriting.

On the back of the card are the figures of 2,500.00 and 800.00 added together and showing a total of 3,300.00. This total is the same as four times 850, and the state evidently aims to show that Wappenstein was attempting to pay certain money, which he received, corresponding with the amounts that should have been turned over.

Trial Proceeding Rapidly.
The second trial is proceeding much faster than the first. Following the opening statement by Prosecutor Murphy, this morning, F. D. Chandler, chief deputy comptroller, testified to city charter provisions defining the duties of the chief of police. Sullivan was called next, and Clarence Gerald, one of the men named in the indictment as George Woodcock on His Unicycle.

This youth, a Spokane product, is going to make an attempt to roll his way all the way from Spokane to Seattle astride a unicycle.

John Richards of this city made a pretty hefty wager with George Woodcock, the unicycle chap, that it wasn't possible to do the stunt. Woodcock believes that he can do it and has backed himself for $200. If he can't make good he loses the $200.

Young Woodcock made the unicycle himself and has a hungering eye on vaudeville if he negotiates the trip all right.

GIRL JUMPS 7 STORIES TO DEATH

(By United Press Leased Wire.)
SAN FRANCISCO, June 28.—Jumping from the seventh story of the Hotel Paisley, a young woman who recently arrived from Honolulu on the steamer Sierra and who was registered as Miss F. Cushing, was instantly killed here today.

The victim of the frightful leap was prepossessing and apparently a person of refinement. She left a note asking the authorities to notify Chas. K. Cushing, of Needham, Mass., of her self-destruction.

"Trouble Made Me Desperate."
In the effects of the woman, whose full name was later learned to be Florence R. Cushing, was found the following note:

"I intended to jump overboard from the steamer Sierra last night, but things happened to prevent it. Troubles have made me desperate. Notify Chas. K. Cushing of Needham, Mass. You will find my home ticket and money on me. I am not afraid to die."

AFTER MRS. M'NAMIGAL FOR CONTEMPT

(By United Press Leased Wire.)
LOS ANGELES, June 28.—Notice from the district attorney's office to show cause why Mrs. McManigal, wife of the alleged dynamiter, should not be cited for contempt of court, was served today on Clarence Darrow, chief counsel for the McNamara brothers.

Darrow immediately answered that he was prepared to meet the issue. Steps are now being taken by the district attorney's office to produce Mrs. McManigal in court. The arguments will be made before Judge Hutton of the superior court.

A Frame for a Mother's Picture

Unless the petitions of American women save her, Mrs. Angelino Napolitano, as soon as her child is born, will be hanged for the murder of her husband, who tried to force her into a life of shame.

SEATTLE MAN DEVOTES NOON HOUR TO RESCUE OF CONDEMNED WOMAN

Touched by the pitiful plight of a woman thousands of miles away, a Seattle man for three days devoted his lunch and rest time at noon to helping along the work of rescuing that woman from a shameful death.

The woman is Mrs. Angelino Napolitano, who will hang for the murder of her husband soon after a baby will be born to her, unless the hundreds of thousands of requests for a pardon by American women effect a change in the decision of the Canadian government.

The man is Charles R. King of Charleston, who works at the navy yard. He pasted the petition, which has been printed in The Star, at the top of long sheets of paper, and during the past three working days he spent his noon hour in circulating it. Two hundred and thirty names were signed to it in that time. Four or five men believed Mrs. Napolitano should be hung, but that was all. "I could have got several thousand to sign the petition for pardon if I had had time," said King. "If you were in Mrs. Napolitano's place, wouldn't it send a thrill of gratitude through your soul to think that the many Charles Kings—and the warm-hearted women—of an entire nation were thinking of and working for you like that?"

May Save Condemned Woman From Gallows

(By United Press Leased Wire.)
SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., June 28.—Indications that Angelina Napolitano, who is under sentence of death here for killing her husband when he tried to force her into a life of shame, will not be hanged, is seen today in the wording of a dispatch received by Attorney McFadden, her lawyer, from the Hon. J. B. Aylesworth, the Canadian minister of justice.

"The case of Angelina Napolitano," Mr. Aylesworth wired, "will receive careful and anxious consideration. There have been several sacks of mail—all protests against her execution—delivered to my office already, and more are still coming."

Attorney McFadden declares he has little doubt that the mass of protests against hanging the woman, whose child is yet unborn, will save her from the rope.

PEACE AT THE GUN POINT

WASHINGTON, June 28.—That "peace at the gun point" now subsists between the Arbuckle and the sugar trust was declared today by the Hardwick investigating committee by W. G. Gilmore of Brooklyn, who told the investigators details of the sugar war between the American Refining Co. and his employers, and other independents, which cost the latter $1,250,000. When the Arbuckle's entered the sugar business, Gilmore said, the sugar trust entered the coffee business.

"Now," he declared, "there is an armed neutrality. We do not assault the American Sugar company, and they do not assault us."

Mildred May Decide to Tell About See; Kisses Her Father

CHICAGO, June 28.—Desperate attempts were made today by attorneys for Evelyn Arthur See, the "revealer of absolute life," to keep from the jury, trying him on charges of causing the downfall of Mildred Bridges, his girl disciple, the testimony of Police Captain Daner and several reporters, who have sworn they heard See, the Bridges girl and Mona Rees admit illegal relations.

When the state called the witnesses this morning See's attorneys protested vigorously, asserting that the confessions were secured under threats and by promises of immunity. Finally the jury was excluded while Daner and the reporters testified.

A new danger to "the revealer" came today in the report that Mildred Bridges had become reconciled to her father, Stephen Bridges, the backbone of the opposition to See. On entering the court today the Bridges girl threw her arms about her father and kissed him. Should Bridges be able to win his daughter over, it is believed See's chances of acquittal will have gone glimmering.

INDIAN PRINCESS MAY HANG FOR MURDER OF HER LOVER

(By United Press Leased Wire.)
BOMBAY, India, June 28.—Sudrani Bhagwan Kaur, known as the Raneé Sahiba, charged with having killed her lover, Kaban Chand, a Brahmin, today faced the beginning of her second trial for murder in the chief court of the Punjab. The Raneé is of a rank equivalent to a princess in the Punjab royal house, and the possibility of inflicting death upon a woman of such prominence has caused excitement and aroused all India to protest.

Raneé Sahiba was recently convicted in a lower court and sentenced to be hanged by the neck until dead.

Conscience Compels Wife to Give Husband to the Law

(By United Press Leased Wire.)
PORTLAND, Or., June 28.—Betrayed by his wife, who told his employers that he was $600 short in his accounts, Robert Russell, a clerk in the Spokane, Portland & Seattle Railway Co.'s offices, is in the city jail today charged with embezzlement, and auditors are examining his books for other alleged shortages.

When she gave information concerning Russell's alleged embezzlement, Mrs. Russell said her conscience impelled her to expose him. Russell neither affirmed nor denied the charge.

BIG MEETING OF TELEPHONES SCHEDULED FOR TONIGHT

Several hundred people are expected to attend the conference on telephone consolidation to be held at Pearsall's cafeteria tonight at 8:30. The meeting is under the auspices of the Municipal League. Representatives of the Sunnet company will be there, probably, to show the "benefit" to be derived from consolidation.

It might be borne in mind that the Independent company is said to be controlled by the same people as control the Bell company. The Independent company, however, has in its franchise certain limitations on the rates to be charged. Therefore, by dissolving the franchise and "consolidating" what is already one, except in rates, a chance is given to get the objectionable feature eliminated from the franchise, a feature especially objectionable to the company.

LARGEST SHIP CARRIES 1,205 PASSENGERS; ROUND TRIP WILL EARN $175,000

NEW YORK, June 28.—When the White Star liner Olympic, the largest vessel afloat, sailed for England this afternoon, she carried 1,205 cabin passengers, 730 of whom were first class. The vessel's profit for the round trip will be $175,000. Food and drink valued at $60,000 were loaded aboard the new ocean leviathan before she departed on her first eastward trip. About the same amount will be spent to fill the larder and the ice box each time the Olympic lands here.

The Olympic's meat bill amounted to $15,000. The refrigerators are stacked with beef, pork, lamb and veal. Poultry cost $5,000 was also purchased. The fish bill was $2,000. Wines and spirits worth $5,000 will be drunk by the passengers, and $2,000 worth of cigars will be smoked.

WOMAN RUN DOWN BY A CAR

News Was Suppressed and Facts on Woman's Condition Are Refused.

Although no report was made to the police and every effort made to suppress news of the accident, it was learned today that Mrs. Chas. Abrahamson was run over by a Phinney av. line car, just after midnight Monday night. The woman is now at the Seattle General hospital under the care of Dr. Park Weed Willis, the Seattle Electric company doctor.

Dr. Willis refused to give out any information regarding the victim's condition today.

The car that struck Mrs. Abrahamson was No. 861, in charge of Motorman J. E. Youngblood. The accident occurred on the new tracks on Westlake av., near Blaine st.

THEY FREQUENTLY KISSED, ANYWAY

NEW YORK, June 28.—To explain his relations with the "unblessed bride" of Edward Gambler, who is defending an action here in which his wife asks for a divorce, while he wants only a separation, Harvey Siskler, a millionaire, was subpoenaed here today. Gambler declares that, though his wife was always cold to him, she and Siskler frequently kissed and caressed each other.

When Gambler resumed the stand today Attorney Van Wyck, who represents Mrs. Gambler, insistently questioned the husband to show that although the couple occupied the same apartments in hotels and on steamers Gambler had never really tried to cultivate his wife's affections.

MONTREAL, June 28.—A lightning bolt last night struck the church of St. Jean Baptiste, on Rachel street, and completely destroyed the splendid edifice, the loss being about $200,000. This was the second time the church has been burned, but the present fire was by far the more disastrous. Since the fire in 1858 it has been rebuilt into one of the finest in the city.

Manager Claude F. Gage of the "June Bride" team is feeling a bit blue today. Yesterday he went ten marriage licenses behind and there are only three more days left till the end of the season. Cupid had been doing some fine work intermittently, and if he can only keep from blowing up before Friday night, Gage thinks there is good prospects of clinching the pennant, and leave Old 1910 several marriage licenses in the rear.

HE MAY BE RECALLED

Won't Fire Corbett, as Mass Meeting Demanded, Unless They Give Him Good Reasons—Citizens Contend He Has Plenty of Reasons Now, and Won't Argue the Case With Him—Unless He Acts Within Five Days Recall Petitions Will Be Out Against Him.

Mayor Dilling said today that he will ignore the demand of the citizens' mass meeting last night, calling for the discharge of Jailer Corbett within five days, unless the citizens can give the mayor some good reasons. The citizens maintain that Dilling has plenty of good reasons already; that he knows of all the outrages perpetrated upon defenseless men and women in the city jail, and they will not argue the case with him.

The citizens contend that Dilling's stubbornness is mainly responsible for the delay in putting an end to barbarous treatment of city jail prisoners, and they blame him for the attitude taken by some of the weak-kneed councilmen, who at first favored jail reform, but who flopped over when Dilling brought pressure to bear on them.

As the case now stands, Dilling must either get off his high horse and discharge Corbett, or face a recall election. Into the recall with him he will probably pull five councilmen, Wardall, Blaine, Kellogg, Steiner and Haas.

Stories of Brutality.
Arne Nordskog, in discussing the jail question, told stories of brutality which made anything printed by The Star on that subject appear tame.

Alleged Murder in Jail.
Nordskog told a thrilling story of how a man was beaten to death in the city jail two years ago and how the outrage was hushed up by a verdict saying the man had killed himself by beating his head against the iron bars.

"On Feb. 22 of this year," said Nordskog, "a drunken man, after being brutally beaten into unconsciousness, mysteriously disappeared. Later at the jail it was said he had been taken to Tacoma, but people who hunted for him could not find him. He had dropped out of sight. Can you guess where?"

"I have been told by a member of the police force that three men have died in the black hole during the past three months, after being beaten by the police," said Mrs. Catherine Stirtan. "And I brought evidence to the grand jury which would have hung any ordinary man."

Mrs. Jessie E. Martin and Paul K. Mohr also discussed the jail reform issue at some length.

Mohr and Nordskog both ridiculed the pretended interest taken by men like James Goldsmith and E. F. Blaine in protecting the city utilities, especially the light plant.

Other speakers were Judge John R. Parker, G. W. Welby and G. W. Hodgdon.

The meeting dissolved after more than two and one-half hours of speechmaking.

KELLOGG MAKES A BRAND NEW EXCUSE

Says He Didn't Want to Vote for Griffiths' Bill Because He Feared Mayor Would Violate It, and Didn't Want Mayor to Be a Law Violator.

Have Mayor Dilling and Chief Bannick come to realize that the people, after all, have something to say on the matter of jail reform? Indications were this morning that possibly they have. Mrs. Homer Hill, in addressing the public safety committee on Kellogg's new jail bill, said she had reason to believe that Jailer Corbett would be dropped from his employment at the jail within a few days if the Kellogg bill was passed.

To give the mayor and the chief an opportunity to act, Griffiths' bill for the abrogation of the position of chief jailer was deferred two weeks.

Bannick and Dilling might not have lived up to Griffiths' bill if it should have become law. The council might have been forced to remove the chief of police for that reason. Kellogg said that that's the reason he is going to vote to sustain the mayor's veto.

Kellogg, in other words, felt that the mayor and the chief would violate the law if it was not passed in accordance with their views, and that in order not to expose them to the people as violators of the laws, the laws are now being framed to suit those who are to keep them.

"While I see a great deal of merit in Griffiths' bills, and know that good results would come of their passage, I did not believe it for the best interests of the city to precipitate an open conflict be-
