CRAWFORD'S FIGHT BEFORE U. S. COURT

The controversy between William R. Crawford, former president of the Seattle, Renton & Southern, and the bondsmen of the company, Peabody, Houghtaling & Co., will be aired in the federal court, according to the decision made by Federal Judge Rudkin.

Crawford alleged that the bondsmen were attempting to "freeze" him out of the company and that he would lose $1,000,000. Judge Frater of the superior court appointed a receiver, Judge Hanford, a day or two later, also appointed receivers on the application of Kerr & McCord for the bondsmen on the ground that the company was insolvent. In the superior court it was claimed by the bondsmen that the company was solvent. Judge Rudkin decided the jurisdiction of the federal court on the ground that the litigation was between the citizens of two different states.

INTRODUCING TO YOUR NOTICE THE REAL AMERICAN GOAT, C. D. HILLES

Once upon a time there was a little Oriental kingdom where the people kept a communistic goat, which was used by everybody for getting even with the world for any old sort of misfortune.

If a man broke his arm he beat the goat. If a chief's wife was a scold, he beat the goat. If rains ruined the crops they beat the goat. If a husband died the widow beat the goat.

One day a stranger, observing the strange performance, asked what it meant.

"The goat is the symbol of misfortune," said the native. "When anything goes wrong we beat him."

"What's the goat's name?"

"We call him," the native replied, "the secretary to the president."

"This is a true story. If you don't believe it, ask George Bruce Cortel."

CHAS. D. HILLIS, WHO WILL RUN TAFT'S CAMPAIGN.

you, William Loeb, Jr., Charles Norton or Charles D. Hillis. They'll confirm it with enthusiasm. They know.

The latest and most successful goat is Hillis and this very goat thing explains why he has been selected chairman of the national committee and given the responsibility of getting President Taft re-elected. They know they needed the most patient, most persistent goat in history for the job—so they grabbed Hillis.

Up to the time he was made assistant secretary of the treasury, three years ago, he was known to fame solely as a master handler of naughty boys. After picking up a little learning here and there and working as a reporter in Ohio, Hillis, at the age of 25, chose bad boys as his particular field of activity. He joined the staff of officials at the boys' industrial school at Lancaster, O., and became superintendent. He traveled around the country mixing with other uplifters until 1902, making a model of his own school at the same time, and then was drafted by the New York juvenile court to build and run its boys' home at Dobbs Ferry.

Here Hillis worked the golden rule so successfully that he attracted the attention of everybody in the uplift business, and, naturally, bore a reputation as a star performer among the folks back home. That was the way Taft heard about him and that was why Taft made his assistant secretary of the treasury.

Still working the golden rule, Hillis achieved the impossible in the treasury department—made the 5,000 employes like him. This made a hit with Taft, so when Secretary Norton found the responsibilities of his job too light for a man of his calibre, Taft took Hillis over to the White House.

On what seems to be reliable authority, it is reported that Hillis hasn't been using the golden rule so much as the practical political rule since he got into politics.

Prevention of Industrial Accidents

Prevention of industrial accidents is the subject of a free illustrated lecture to be given at Assembly Hall, new Seattle Chamber of Commerce, Central building, at 8:30 tonight by David Van Schaack of Hartford, Conn., director of the bureau of inspection and accident prevention of the Aetna Life Insurance company.

Mr. Van Schaack is the author of two of the most important works that have yet appeared in this country on the question of lessening so far as possible by preventive measures the frightful annual killing and injuring of our industrial workers. The first book, "Safeguards for the Prevention of Industrial Accidents," was published in 1910, the second, "Woodworking Safeguards," appeared last fall.
