STORY OF BECKER'S DEALINGS

Sensational Tale of Becker's Alleged Criminal Connection With New York Gamblers Told

(By United Press Lensed Wire)
NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Herman Rosenthal must be killed. He is getting too dangerous. You tell "Big Jack" Zelig and his friends to get him from the way.

Sworn declaration that Police Lieut. Chas. Becker, on trial here for Rosenthal's murder in front of the Hotel Metropole, gave this order to him to repeat to Zelig and his notorious gang of gunmen, was made today on the witness stand by "Bald Jack" Rose, former friend of Becker, and the man who admits he acted as Becker's representative in collecting "hush money" from New York's underworld.

Becker Unmoved.

Becker, apparently, was unmoved by Rose's testimony. He sat and glared at the witness with a fixed stare. Rose gave his testimony with twitching eyes and shaking knees. He was pale and nervous, studiously avoiding Becker's penetrating gaze.

Rose swore that he protested against murdering Rosenthal, but Becker, he said, insisted that it must be done.

"I want him croaked," were the exact words Rose swore Becker used.

"I will take care of the men who do the job," the sentiment at police headquarters is such that they would gladly give a medal to the man game enough to croak Rosenthal. Here is $100. Give it to Zelig and tell him I want Rosenthal stopped. Tell Zelig and his friends if they want to save themselves trouble, they had better get Rosenthal from the way at once."

Zelig, who himself has been shot and killed since the Rosenthal murder, Rose said, demurred; then, the witness swore, Becker, through him, sent another warning to Zelig. "Lefty Louie" Rosenberg and "Whitey" Lewis, Becker declared, were told that unless Rosenthal were killed, and killed soon, they would be arrested and "sent over the river" for carrying concealed weapons. Then, Rose declared, the gamblers agreed to dispose of Rosenthal.

Gambling Partnership.

Rose also told the jurors why he believed Becker wanted Rosenthal killed. The police official and the gambler, he said, had effected a partnership and opened a gambling house in 45th st.

The place prospered, Rose swore, all going well until Becker telephoned Rosenthal to send over $500 at once. Becker refused. A day later, Becker, he said, again demanded the money, and was again refused. Then, Rose declared, Becker withdrew from the firm and a few days later raided the place. Becker also stationed a policeman at the door, Rose said. This, the witness said, killed Rosenthal's business, and the latter, becoming desperate, threatened to go to District Attorney Whitman and ask him to bring Becker's former connection with the place. Then, Rose swore, Becker decided to get the gambler out of the way.

WITH ROOSEVELT AND WILSON

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—Arriving here at 9 o'clock this morning, Roosevelt, progressive nominee for president, was greeted by a large crowd and given a vociferous welcome.

In a statement issued here today, Roosevelt denounced Gov. Chas. S. Deneen, of Illinois, charging him with being guilty of shuffling and double dealing at the Chicago republican convention. Roosevelt further charged that Gov. Deneen deliberately falsified regarding the convention.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 12.—After delivering 75 speeches, covering ten states, and with his voice completely worn out, Gov. Woodrow Wilson, democratic nominee for president, is today on his way home, his trip ended.

Gov. Wilson expressed himself here as being thoroughly satisfied with the results obtained. He will speak once more upon his arrival in New York tonight.

RED SOX IS TWO GAMES AHEAD AT END OF DUEL IN WHICH "KID" BEDIENT IS STAR PITCHER

(By United Press Lensed Wire.)
BY GRANTLAND RICE

FENWAY PARK, Boston, Oct. 12.—A flash of the brilliant stuff that does business in baseball by Hugh Bedient, a youthful star of the Red Sox pitching staff, coupled with a momentary lapse by Mathewson and a bobble by Doyle, gave the Red Sox their third victory in the world's series here this afternoon by a score of 2 to 1, and sent the National league champions slipping and sliding down the ways on the road to their second unsuccessful bid for a world's championship.

Bedient, working in a style to provide credit to a Walsh, held the Giants safe all the way and let them down with a quartette of hits, with the result that but a single additional finish in front is now needed by the Bostonians to give them the world's championship for 1912. To reach the crest now, the McGraw clan must wrench off their victories in a row, a task almost impossible, with the Red Sox machine swinging along at its present splendid stride, with Joe Wood, the Sox phenomenon, tagged to go to the mound again Monday in the game, which, if won by Boston, will end the fracas.

One round, one fatal sudden cave-in, beat the Giants before the greatest crowd that ever saw a game in Boston. Starting the third inning, Hooper slashed a drive by Herzog which whizzed into the left field corner for a three-base blow. Yerkes followed with another slash, but drove to center for another triple, and Hooper scored. Then Doyle struck on disaster. Speaker tapped to Capt. Larry for an easy out, but while Yerkes stuck to third, Doyle let the tap dribble away, and the second run—the fatal one—was over.

A BUSY WEEK FOR PROGRESSIVE PARTY

This week has been a big one for the progressive party in the state of Washington. In almost every county of the state speakers have been busy engaged day and night. J. A. Falconer, candidate for congress, with W. H. Ford, candidate for secretary of state, and E. G. Mills, candidate for attorney general, have addressed large audiences throughout the week in Pierce, Kitsap and King counties.

Up in the northwestern part of the state Bob Hodge talked on Tuesday noon to 200 people on the streets of Burlington, Tuesday night to 1,500 people in Beck's opera house at Bellingham, Wednesday afternoon to large street audiences at Stanwood, Silvana, Marysville and to 2,000 people at Everett.

Wednesday night, Thursday noon he addressed 250 people at Sedro-Woolley, Thursday afternoon 350 at Avon and Thursday night a crowded house at Anacortes. On this trip Hodge was accompanied by O. Hanson. Tonight Congressman Warburton, William J. Biggar, candidate for presidential elector, and Hodge begin one week in Southwestern Washington, at Raymond, in Pacific county.

Ole Hanson spoke at Wenatchee last night and will appear with F. M. Goodwin, congressional candidate, and Governor Teats at the meetings in Leavenworth tonight.

Next week Hanson will deliver speeches daily in Eastern Washington. J. A. Falconer and W. H. Ford will also campaign through the eastern part of the state, while E. G. Mills will go through Snohomish and Whatcom counties. J. W. Bryan, candidate for congress, will join one of the Eastern Washington flying squadrons Tuesday. Daniel Landon, candidate for congress from the Third district, will keep going day and night through his district. J. W. Collins, candidate for insurance commissioner, Arthur S. Cory, for state treasurer, Andrew E. Moberg, for state auditor, W. H. Kaufman, commissioner of public lands, and C. B. Beach, superintendent of public instruction, are busily at work in various parts of the state.

The latter part of this week will see Senator Peindexter, W. H. Paulhamus and John C. Lawrence added to the list of speakers in Western Washington. Senator Peindexter will appear with Hodge at Tacoma Friday night, October 18, and in Seattle at the Coliseum next Saturday night.

OH, JOY! MRS. JONES HAS ROOF AND WALLS

BY FRED L. BOALT.

A brisk young man entered The Star office yesterday afternoon.

"My name's Neep," he said,—"George A. Neep. Paraffine Paint Co. Busy? Won't take more'n a minute."

Having gone to press, we had more time than money. Mr. Neep didn't waste words. "Want to help Mrs. Jones," he said.

All anybody has to do to engage our entire attention, so that we are entirely oblivious to other matters, is to say we want to help Mrs. Jones. So do we.

"Ever heard of our products? Malihoid roofing? Our interior walls?"

We hadn't—but no matter. Mr. Neep didn't mind.

"We will," he went on, "give one roof and all the interior walls complete, representing in money about $80."

We searched our vocabulary for words to tell how glad we were.

"Say," said Mr. Neep, interrupting us, "of course, business is business, but, honest, I'd be glad to help that fine little, old woman, even if I knew you wouldn't say a word about the Paraffine Paint Co. in The Star. And, on the level, we have A-1 roofs and interior walls that can't be beaten, and they're just as good as money because a house has got to have walls and a roof or it isn't a house. Am I right?"

We assured Mr. Neep that he was absolutely right, and we thanked him again, and he went away.

Fine! We've got the roof. We've got the interior walls. Mr. Neep has given us an idea. Who has bricks to sell? Give us some bricks for a chimney. Who has lumber? Give us enough to build an exterior for the incomparable interior walls of Mr. Neep. Plumbing? Somebody in the plumbing line kick in.

And the lot? Of course there must be a lot to build the house on. Where is the real estate man with a lot big enough for a three-room cottage and a garden? Show him to us.

And then we won't need any money.

Somehow, it seems too good to be true.

Not all of our callers are as helpful as Mr. Neep. One determined woman, who has theories anent the "pauperization of the poor" and the "dangers of indiscriminate giving" put us through a searching catechism.

How do you know that Mrs. Jones is worthy? Does she attend church? If so, what church? If not, why not? How do we know she has had 20 children? Why do not the two who have not died support their mother? How do we know she will not marry a drunkard who will sell the home over her head and squander it on drink? Why doesn't Mrs. Jones go into a home? How do we know that other needy persons, seeing the manner in which the case of Mrs. Jones has been exploited, will not seek in a similar way to play upon the sympathies of a tender-hearted public? And, finally, does not this sort of thing tend towards the pauperization of the poor?

We can only refer all persons wishing an answer to this last question to the reply of Kipling's Cockney woman who answered one like it by saying:

"The poor are bloomin' well pauped."

CELEBRATING

(By United Press Lensed Wire)
NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Celebrating the discovery of America, 6,000 marines and bluejackets paraded before large crowds here today.

The opening of the ceremony was the annual fall review of the United States Atlantic fleet. The review will end next Tuesday, when President Taft and Secretary of the Navy Meyer will review the fleet from aboard the presidential yacht Mayflower.

FINALLY RESCUED

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—After spending the night drifting on the Maurice river, in New Jersey, owing to an explosion in the motor of their hydroplane, Aviator Marshall Reid and Lieut. Commander Mustin of League Island, were today located by a police boat and rescued.

PROTEST N. P. LAND GRAB

"Resolved, That we hereby enter our protest against the action of the board of regents of the University of Washington, which gives to the Northern Pacific railway, without any cost to it, valuable land belonging to the university and the school lands of the state."

This resolution was endorsed unanimously at a meeting of 500 citizens at Mt. Vernon, Wash., Thursday night, which was addressed by Ole Hanson. Robin Weits, a university student who is a candidate for the legislature from that district, introduced the resolution.

At Redmond last night, Thomas F. Murphree bluntly charged that the Northern Pacific had no shadow of title, legal or equitable, to the 80-foot strip a mile and a half long, which the regents granted it as a "compromise."

EDDIE CASE

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12.—The case against City Prosecutor Guy Eddie, charged with aiding in the delinquency of Mrs. Alice Phelps, a minor, was continued until Monday for further preliminary hearing.

Mrs. Phelps was excused from the stand after a two-day cross-examination by Attorney Earl Rogers. Policeman Johnson, one of the arresting officers, told of breaking down the door of Eddie's private office in the city jail building and finding him in a compromising position. Policeman Lloyd is expected to be the next witness.

MAN BETRAYED BY HIS PAL

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12.—Betrayed by a pal who aided him to escape from the Nevada state penitentiary, Llewellyn Felkers, alias Fred Shinner, who short-circuited a wire barricade around the prison, throwing the entire prison into darkness, is today in jail here.

By means of a key smuggled in to him by a released prisoner named Rylee, alias Smith, Felkers unlocked his cell door, and with wire nippers cut the electric barricade on the prison wall.

THERE'S A BIG BARGAIN in tonight's Star.

Somewhere in the real estate ads this evening there is one of the biggest buys we've had the good fortune to be able to offer. The offer is a 5-room modern house with 40x100 foot lot, with price and terms that will make you sit right up and take notice. If you are doubtful as to whether prosperity has come to Seattle, just try to find a small house or a cottage that is "all right." My wife has been hunting for two weeks without avail. In the light of this you'd better investigate—I'm going to. Will you beat me to it?

A good start for some reader: 3 Autos and Brokerage business, $600. Look for it.

THE SEATTLE STAR WILL TAKE YOUR AD INTO SEATTLE'S HOMES. OVER 40,000 COPIES SOLD DAILY.
