GRIP & COLDS

To get the best results, send for a free copy of Dr. Humphreys' Manual and read it.

If you will take a dose of "Seventy-seven" at the first feeling of a cold—a sneeze, a shiver—a scratchy throat—always instantly, the cold will yield quickly.

If you wait till the cold gets deep seated it may take longer to break up.

It pays to keep "Seventy-seven" handy, a small vial of pleasant pellets, fits the vest pocket. At your Druggist, 25c, or mailed.

"I AM PLEDGED TO FIRE A BUILDING EVERY WEEK," GIRL SUFFRAGET TELLS STAR'S CORRESPONDENT IN LONDON; SHE SAYS THEY'LL TAKE HUMAN LIFE IF THEY HAVE TO

By W. G. Shepherd

LONDON, MARCH 22.—"ARE THE ENGLISH SUFFRAGETS PREPARING TO COMMIT MURDER IN ORDER TO WIN THE VOTE?"

I have just returned from the bedside of Lillian Lenton, London's newest, proudest, wildest suffraget—the girl who was released the other day from Holloway prison because she contracted pleurisy when jail officials tried forcibly to feed her soup through her nose. I asked Miss Lenton this question—of whether we may expect assassinations at the hands of women—and here is what she said to me:

"We women are growing very desperate here in England. The rest of the world does not even guess the problems we are facing. We must have the vote if we are to preserve the decency and morality of the English race. We must have it at any cost—even at the cost of human life."

"I have entered into a pledge to help set fire to one building every week in England."

"We broke windows—that did not help at all. We have dynamited Lloyd George's home—that has not helped much. I and Olive Wharry burned up the $10,000 pavilion in Kew gardens—that has not helped a great deal. And now—"

"Well, Mrs. Pankhurst has told us not to take human life—yet, at any rate. All the inner circle of militants understand that she does not want us actually to kill anybody, but—"

"But what?" I persisted.

"Sometimes it looks to me as if she couldn't always hold some of the women in check. They lose their patience when they see things going so terribly slowly."

"But are there really women who would commit murder?" I asked.

"You yourself know any suffragets in London who would actually kill?"

"I know more than a dozen girls who are so zealous that they would be willing to take human life and to die on the gallows, if they saw that, by so doing, they would gain the vote."

LILLIAN LENTON PHOTOGRAPHED IN BED WHILE CORRESPONDENT SHEPHERD WAS INTERVIEWING HER FOR THE READERS OF THIS PAPER.

mother must have been very tender, for I have never seen them together when they did not seem to be sweethearts. Just before my birth—I was the first child—my father realized that he would not have a man doctor to attend my mother. Many men and women will understand how he felt. I understand it now, and that is one of the many reasons why I'm a suffraget.

"Well, as I hunted all over England for a woman physician. But he failed in his search. There were no women doctors to be found. Why?"

"Because England's a man's country, not a woman's. And so, at last, he was forced to turn for women in England!

"Sometimes I am not so sure myself that killing wouldn't help matters. But still we must be loyal to Mrs. Pankhurst while she is our leader!"

How did this 22-year-old beauty, Lillian Lenton, come to such a belief—the belief that battle, murder and sudden death may be effective, may, indeed, be necessary instruments to win a mere political point, enfranchisement for women?

"Well, it all begins 23 years ago, my story does," she told me, as she settled herself in bed with her hand under her cheek.

"It's funny, but my father started it. I think his love affair with my mother must have been very tender, for I have never seen them together when they did not seem to be sweethearts. Just before my birth—I was the first child—my father realized that he would not have a man doctor to attend my mother. Many men and women will understand how he felt. I understand it now, and that is one of the many reasons why I'm a suffraget.

"Well, as I hunted all over England for a woman physician. But he failed in his search. There were no women doctors to be found. Why?"

"Because England's a man's country, not a woman's. And so, at last, he was forced to turn the woman he loved over to a man doctor. And ever after that experience he declared that women ought to manage their own affairs and that this ought to be a MAN-AND-WOMAN'S world, in partnership, rather than a man's world alone.

"You must promise not to print it in England, but I have entered into a pledge with a few young women to set one building afire every week in England. You count up the fires of the past few weeks and see how regularly they have been happening. And you watch in the future. Olive Wharry and myself, who were caught when we were burning down the pavilion in Kew gardens, were too confident, for we had had fine luck up to that time, and we grew careless. But the fires will go on, even though they sent Olive to jail today for 18 months and I expect to go to jail for the same length of time. Just as soon as I'm well enough to be arrested again."

"AND IF THE FIRES DON'T HELP, WELL—"

Letters To Cynthia Grey

Dear Miss Grey: As you have helped others, I also come for advice.

I am a girl of 19 years and am deeply in love with a pugilist. I see him quite often, but have never met him.

Everybody says I am good looking, and I would do anything to win him. He is engaged to a nice-looking blond, and you think it would be wrong to get acquainted and win his affections from her? Would it be wrong to write him a letter? His cousins and I are great friends.

Every time I see him I feel like going and talking, but I lose my courage, and I never get a chance to get acquainted, and he is going away soon to fight. I want to meet him before he goes. He is not rough like most fighters and has no bad habits of any kind. Now Miss Grey, don't think me foolish, for I am deeply in love with him and would like to hear from you soon as possible.

to guard my pathway to success. In school, for instance, I am bothered, teased and nagged at on account of having a pug nose, which seems to make me feel bad. I try to forget their foolish ideas and nonsense on acting like a girl, but they tease me all the more. Miss Grey, I don't act like a girl and try to be a man, but it seems when they grab and kick me on that account, I feel downhearted.

I am not a tattletale, or I'd report to the teacher. The worst of the trouble is, they whisper untruthful things and deceive me in many ways during school hours. I am glad to say that I am innocent, and don't annoy the teacher. Please don't think me foolish in this matter, as my parents refuse to give me any advice. I will watch for your answer.

ARE WE TO UNDO THE WORK OF GREAT MASTERS?

Dear Miss Grey: Is "Everybody's Doin' It" a perfectly moral song for our home and girls, or is it suggestive, and should it be discouraged by fathers and mothers? The writer is a man and hears men's remarks, but wife says it's pretty. We quarrel? What say you?

PAPA

A.—The above mentioned song is a fair sample of the latest "ragtime" music. To my mind, it is degrading and not fit to be classed as music.

Let our minds wander back to the original meaning of the word "music." It is the science of combining tones in melodic, rhythmic and harmonic order, so as to excite the emotions or appeal to the intellect.

Is there anything uplifting or melodic in the clang and clatter of "Everybody's Doin' It"? One might close his eyes and not have to stretch his imagination far to believe himself in the midst of an Igorroite village. Are we to undo in a few short years what our boys and girls, Beethoven, Schubert, Mendelssohn and Mozart gave their lives for?

Anything that does no good, does some harm. Anything that is unfulfilling for our girls and homes is unfit for our boys and the public in general and should be placed under ban.

WORRIED HAZEL.

A.—I must beg your pardon for contradicting you, but you are exceedingly foolish and you do not know if you are deeply in love with this man. This is impossible for you to know until you are well acquainted. You are attracted by him and attraction is not constant. The more you know, the more you will know him the less attractive he will become.

If you were some 16-year-old, there would be some excuse for you, but I can't understand a girl of 19 being so selfish, inconsistent and unprincipled as to think of breaking up an engaged couple. The fact that you cannot face the man proves that your conscience smites you.

I am speaking very plain and I am doing so in the hope that you will come fully to your senses before you take a fatal step. A girl should question very closely her own character when she "will do anything to win" a man.

THIRTY THIRTEEN.

A.—Your letter was not answered before, because I don't deem a pug nose as any great misfortune or impediment to your advancement. You might be afflicted with things so much worse that it is scarcely worth mentioning. Suppose you were blind, deaf, dumb, or a helpless cripple for life: what is a pug nose in comparison to any one of these misfortunes?

Now, sorry, you have let your mind drift on this little defect until it has become a mountain in your eyes. You must let the boys know your mind it, or they would soon grow tired of teasing you.

It is your own fault if you put up with brutal treatment from them. Report the next one who molests you to the principal. You will not be a tattletale, but doing your duty, for he is there to maintain order and discipline. During school hours you are there to study and attend strictly to your own affairs. If you do this you cannot hear what others are whispering.

TO CHANGE ONE'S NAME.

Dear Miss Grey: Will you kindly tell me through your columns what steps a person must take to change their name legally, and if by so doing they forfeit their rights to an inheritance or anything else of that kind? Is there any expense to it? Please answer soon and greatly obliged.

PERPLEXED.

A.—Apply to the superior court. There will be the expense of court fees. One does not forfeit his right of inheritance or anything of the sort by so doing.

MUCH BETTER AT HOME.

Dear Miss Grey: We are two young girls of 12 and 14 and would like to know whether or not it is right to play games outdoors after 6 o'clock in the evenings among five boys, if playing in the right way? Will be thankful for an answer.

R. AND M.

A.—It is much better for girls of your ages to spend your evenings in your own homes. You can invite the boys into the house and play indoor games or read.

SHOULD RAGTIME BE PERMITTED?

Dear Miss Grey: It looks to me as though the "Farmer Girl" was not getting any answers to her query regarding the songs of today, but I for one am with her in her idea, and not only that, but the rag music that is played all over is so disgusting to me that I can't find words to express my feelings toward the latest songs and music.

I cannot play very much myself, but I love good music. It seems to me when one does chance to hear one of the good old ballads played nowadays it lacks feeling and expression, as they regard speed more than expression.

One day when in one of the largest department stores I stopped and listened to the piano, and while listening, I was looking through a book of parlor songs and I came across a beautiful old song I heard when a girl. I asked the pianist if she would please play it for me. Well, she did. That is, she rattled it off so that I could not, try as I might, recognize it. It was so thoroughly disgusting I believe I forgot to thank her, and I had my fill of music for that day.

A FARMER'S WIFE.

HOW DO YOU FIGURE THIS OUT?

Dear Miss Grey: How many kinds of love are there? Some people tell me there is only one kind, but, pray, what is it?

I hold that there are many kinds, and rank in the order something as follows: (1) Love for God; (2) Love for one's country; (3) Love for one's life partner, including that of those who are gentle and old enough to realize the difference of it from the one they had for the same person before, which is (4) Love amongst the boys and girls, which is the starting point of 3, but is often taken for it, which brings trouble; (5) Love for one's young, etc., down the line.

Of course, all loves come under the love of God, except love for personal gain, whisky, etc., which is not love at all.

There is not much difference in appearance between the love No. 3 and No. 4, and often must be tested in order that one may be sure, for the little difference in them may lead to some awful tragedies.

I think every person who has a touch of No. 3 has some of No. 4; they are blended. I would like to have other readers' ideas on this subject.

"NOS. 3 AND 4"

A LIGHT PENALTY.

Dear Miss Grey: Being a steady reader of your columns, I would like to ask it, which I cannot do. Do you spirits of ammonia.

I had a quarrel with my wife yesterday, and she made me very angry. Without thinking, I got up and slapped her, which was very wrong for me to do.

I asked her forgiveness, but she said I must get down on my knees and ask it, which I cannot do. Do you think I ought to do this? L. J. T.

A.—You ought to consider yourself lucky to get off that easy. I deem it a very light penalty for such an offense.

100 Families Wanted

To settle on my 3,000 acres that I have just purchased from the Day Lumber Company at Big Lake in Skagit County, Wash., 4 miles east of Mt. Vernon. This is high-grade land and I am now offering it for $3000 per acre up, on the easiest payments. Just a little money to bind the bargain, balance during next ten years.

The settler here gets not only good land but lots of work at good wages if he wants it. The Day Lumber Co. now employs 250 men and the purpose of settling these lands is to get working men with families to make their homes here and work in the mills. This work is assured for the next 25 years. Take notice of this: within a radius of 5 miles from this land 1,000 men have steady employment at good wages.

The Mt. Vernon district is the leading farming section in Western Washington. The farmers here are growing rich, and just because the soil is good. Two milk condensers are already established at Mt. Vernon with a payroll of 500 people and are supplied by 12,000 cows. This locality is destined to become the greatest dairy section in the Northwest and land is growing in value fast.

My land offers many advantages to the actual settler that cannot be covered in an advertisement of this size, but you should at once investigate. Get one of my illustrated circulars, explaining everything. They are free for the asking.

Beautiful Big Lake

I also have for sale 3 miles of lake frontage on Big Lake, platted in half-acre and acre tracts. The finest for homes and camping in Northern Washington. A purchase of one or two of these tracts at this time will make you a splendid investment. $10.00 cash and $5.00 a month will do it. My circular will tell you how to spend your next vacation profitably to your health and your pocketbook. Get one.
