NEW YORK, June 28.—Aviator Frank Clifford, just arrived from Liverpool, announced today that he would start Monday from Atlantic City in an attempted hydroplane flight across the Atlantic ocean, using frozen petrol as fuel. He estimates he can make the trip in 30 hours. Clifford says he expects to take on a fresh supply of fuel from a boat stationed in midocean. His machine can fly 100 miles an hour, he said. He expects to reach the coast of Ireland Wednesday.

MOST MAGNETIC WOMAN IN AMERICA, SHE'S CALLED

MISS HELEN FERMAN, BELASCO'S MYSTERIOUS NEW STAR.
NEW YORK, June 28.—David Belasco, the wizard astronomer of the stage, has found a new star—Helen Ferman. He is going to see that she shines next season.
Nobody knows anything about her. But when Belasco says he has made a discovery, most persons take his word for it, remembering Mrs. Leslie Carter, Frances Starr and a score of other unknowns that he has made famous.
"She has the most magnetic personality of any woman in America," says Belasco.
Last season Miss Ferman appeared in a minor role in one of the Belasco productions and then dropped from view. Aside from her talent and personality, she is one of the most beautiful women on the stage.

5,000 LITTLE ONES HAVE BIG TIME AT STAR'S LUNA PARTY

Five thousand tired but happy boys and girls went home last night and dreamed of joy wheels, shoot the chutes and roller coasters.
They had a grand time, did these little guests at The Star's party at Luna park. Every boat of the Island Transportation Co. that left the Spring st. dock up to 1 o'clock was crowded with little ones, and the park was so full they could hardly get around.
W. H. Laab, manager of the park, was about the happiest grown-up in the bunch, although there were some hundreds of other grown-ups there to watch and prevent accidents.
"Never saw anything like it in my life," said Laab. "Greatest bunch of joyful boys and girls ever got together in Seattle."
And the Star staff was rather tickled, too.
Nothing like helping a lot of youngsters enjoy themselves, except being a youngster yourself.
The party developed several enterprising young merchants who ought to make a success in life. Some boys came to the park with a regular bank roll of coupons clipped from Stars, sold to readers who did not have any children, which they sold at cut rates.
Some pugilistic youngsters who wanted to demonstrate their prowess on the road back kept the master and mate of the Fairhaven busy, for most of the 600 kids carried on each trip were anxious to see the heavyweight championship of the crowd decided at once. But no one was hurt and nobody fell overboard.

CUT HIMSELF TO DEATH IN CELL

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo., June 28.—The trial of James L. Bacon, charged with the murder by dynamite of his wife and 6-year-old stepdaughter, is abruptly ended today. According to jail officials, Bacon committed hari-kari in his cell.
The Bacon home was dynamited May 27, and Bacon himself was dangerously hurt. He was arrested at the funeral of his wife and child. Bacon, who was a former member of the Colorado legislature, went on a hunger strike, which he continued until a few days ago.

DO IT BY HALVES

Finance committee of council voted in favor of permanent paving for the west side of Westlake av. from Mercer st. to Fremont av. bridge. The committee shelve an ordinance calling for only temporary covering of asphalt over the plank road. The estimated cost of the permanent improvement is $58,000. The city will bear $25,000 of the cost, the rest coming from property owners.

IT'S AGGRAVATING

On June 16, an industrious member of the Fraternal Order of Porch Climbers garnered a purse containing $10 at the home of Mrs. May Matheson, 226½ Second av.
He or she, gender being unknown, liked the place, and came back June 20. This time the emoluments totaled but $3.50.
But the place still retained its magnetic power of attraction, and on June 24 a diamond ring valued at $135 went into the collection of this persistent visitor.
Detectives are investigating.
FORTUNE FOR SQUAW
SPOKANE, June 28.—Executors of the estate of John Enos, a well-known stockman, who died here in 1911, are today preparing to carry out the verdict of the jury in the district court, which held that Kamptike Srelo, an Indian squaw, is entitled to-half the property, valued at $250,000.

ORGANIZING TO PREVENT SLUMS HERE

Plans for a wider scope of work than ever attempted before have been made by the Charity organization of Seattle, which recently established headquarters at 301 Central building, with Richard Hayter as general superintendent.
To meet the influx of immigrants, that are expected with the opening of the Panama canal, is the big problem the society will devote itself to. Arrangements are under way to place as many immigrants as possible in farming districts. Prevention of slums in Seattle will be the vital work the organization has mapped out.

TOO MUCH DRUG EXPLOITATION

LONDON, Ont., June 28.—Stringent action by the Canadian Medical Association, which is in convention here, against the use of serums and vaccines in Canada, is expected to result from an address by Dr. Frank Billings of Chicago. Dr. Billings denounced the widespread manufacture of vaccines in the U. S., and asserted their exploitation by drug firms was a serious and growing evil.

Women in Rush For Police Job

SAN FRANCISCO, June 28.—A stampede is on here for the three positions as police women recently created. More than 200 applications have been received. # LAD OF 17 STARTED GREAT BATTLE OF GETTYSBURG RISKED LIFE TO CARRY MESSAGE TO MEADE

By Herbert Quick.
It was a boy of 17 who pushed the button which threw the Army of the Potomac into that fierce struggle at Gettysburg which changed the face of history. This is the story of his deed.

On June 30, 1863, the North and South alike were in a state of panic. Lee, with his host of bronzed and heroic fighters, had invaded Pennsylvania.
Stanton, secretary of war, sat in his office in Washington, sleepless and anxious, on the night of the last of June. He and his cause faced ruin at the hands of the Napoleon of the Confederacy.
Beside him was Major Thomas T. Eckert, head of the military telegraphic service.

Stanton received a message from some of his secret service men telling him that Lee was turning on Meade.
The situation was tremendous. If Lee could concentrate his scattered army before Meade could do likewise, he could cut Meade up in detail and have the North at his mercy.
There was a telegraph office in Frederick, Md. The sounder began spluttering. Eckert took the message. It was from Eckert. "Call Fonda to the key. We have a dispatch we want him to carry."

Ten Eyck Fonda came. He was a boy of 17, of an old New York family, who now lives in Omaha, Neb.

"Secretary Stanton wants you and two others to carry a very important dispatch to General Meade's headquarters," clicked Eckert. "Will you go?"
The boy knew that the country to the rear of Meade's army was now with Stuart's Confederate raiders under Mosby. But he did not hesitate.

"Yes," he clicked back.
And this is the message, never before published, which Fonda took over the wire from Eckert, dictated to the sender by the great secretary in Washington: "To Major General Meade, 'Comdg. A. P.' 'On March.' 'The advance guard of the Confederate army under General Early has entirely evacuated Wrightsville and other points on the Susquehanna river, and are making a forced march to join General Lee's main army at a point between Hanover and Gettysburg—part of their forces now at Hanover—and they confidently expect to be able to form a junction with General Lee's main army not later than tomorrow evening. Circumstances and conditions permitting, I would urge you to assume the offensive as quickly as possible on Lee's divided forces."

(Signed) "E. M. STANTON, 'Sec'y of War.'"

TEN EYCK FONDA, THE BOY TELEGRAPHER, IN 1863 AND 1913.

Without a handshake or a farewell they parted—and Fonda never saw either of them again.
Fonda rode on alone in the glimmering dawn. When he saw the Union headquarters' flag he put Taneystown. They fired off their revolvers and made a bluff at an attack, and so got past safely.
At 4 a. m. they came to a place where the northward road divided into three. They stopped.
"Let us each take a separate road," said Fonda, "and maybe one of us will get through. Ride like the devil!"

Fonda Thanked By Secretary of War

Fonda received this telegram from Washington July 2, 1863:
"Am directed by the secretary of war to express his thanks to Fonda, Rose and Hardesty for their quick delivery of important telegrams to General Meade, and that he fully appreciates the energy and effort constantly displayed by telegraph men in the discharge of any duty they may be called upon to perform."
"THOS. T. ECKERT"
Fonda still has the original copy of this dispatch.

boy saluted and gave the general his dispatch.
And then the boy telegrapher knew what it was to push the button that set in motion the machinery of the battle.

"I QUIT BECAUSE I WOULDN'T STAND FOR THIS FAVORITISM TO RICH AND POWERFUL MEN"

U. S. District Attorney at San Francisco Who Resigned After Making Serious Charges Against Cabinet Officer, Tells of Reasons—Outline of Cases Involving Wealthy People, Prosecution of Which Atty. Gen. McReynolds Ordered Temporarily Stopped.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 28.—John L. McNab, United States district attorney at San Francisco, whose resignation has created a storm of criticism against Attorney General J. C. McReynolds and resulted in a congressional investigation of that official, quit his office because McReynolds ordered him to postpone prosecution in two cases which were particularly offensive to public morals and justice.
Some months ago F. Drew Caminetti and Maury Diggs eloped from Sacramento with two high school girls, Lola Norris and Marsha Warrington, daughters of prominent families.
The men deserted their wives and children. They were captured in Reno, Nevada, after a nationwide search of a week and charged with white slavery.
F. Drew Caminetti is the son of A. Caminetti, democratic politician and recently appointed commissioner of general of immigration with headquarters at Washington. Maury Diggs is the son of a wealthy and powerful family in the Sacramento valley and, according to McNab, friends of an accused man have openly boasted that their political and financial influence would be so great that they would get out of their scrape.
When McReynolds ordered McNab to postpone the Caminetti-Diggs case until August he intended to resign at once as he had completed prosecuting another case—the Western Fuel Co.—involving millions, said by McNab to be closely allied with the Southern Pacific. Then came another bombshell from Washington.
Attorney General McReynolds ordered McNab not to prosecute just then the cases of Robert Bruce and Sidney V. Smith, two of the eight wealthy and powerful directors of the Western Fuel Co., who were charged with stealing $1,000,000 from the government, by short weighing coal sold to it.
This followed a secret trip of Directors Bruce and Sidney V. Smith to Washington.
"Scores of other defendants," continued McNab, "whose offenses were subsequent to those of the defendants in these cases have been convicted and sentenced. But they were poor and helpless and without influence."
What not only California, which is particularly interested, but the whole nation as well, wants to know is whether a couple of men, rich and powerful, who ruined two innocent girls, and eight men who are charged with deliberately stealing $1,000,000 from the government by corruption and bribery of many men can be declared immune from prosecution on the say-so of one man—Attorney General J. C. McReynolds.
That's the answer California and the rest of the states are waiting for from the congressional investigation.
