

GREETINGS TO FELIX DIAZ, TYRANT AND UNDESIRABLE!

General Felix Diaz, nephew of Porfirio Diaz, who for a quarter of a century exploited Mexico to satisfy his own greed, will arrive in Seattle tonight, en route to Vancouver, where he is to take ship for Japan on a mission of state.

Felix is a great man.

It was Felix who, convicted of treason against Madero's government, was thrown into prison and sentenced to die, and who, reprieved by the man against whom his intrigue had been aimed, planned a revolution, was delivered from his cell, and led the uprising that resulted in Madero's downfall.

We remember the foul murder of President Madero. And how Huerta, co-conspirator of Diaz, was elevated to the provisional presidency pending the popular election this fall, in which General Felix Diaz is expected to be the leading candidate.

It has never been established just how prominent a part Huerta, Diaz, and their gang had in that final tragedy that wiped out Madero.

But he is a great man, is Felix.

He will have a regal suite of rooms at the Washington hotel.

Jacob Furth, our well known financier, will care for him while he is in town. Furth has been asked to do so by Felix's bankers in San Francisco. All the high and mighty folks will kowtow, and tell him what a fine manner of man he is.

THE STAR, TOO, WISHES TO PAY ITS RESPECTS TO YOU, FELIX, GRAFTER, TYRANT AND UNDESIRABLE.

We know your record as chief of police of Mexico City. We believe you to be the flint-hearted servant of the moneyed grafters of Mexico.

We know you believe in the robbery of the poor for the benefit of the rich. We know you worship at the shrine of gold.

Down in Mexico, General Diaz, thousands of men and women are starving and dying and fighting in order to win liberty and remove the chains with which you and others of your ilk have fettered a liberty loving people.

FAIR TONIGHT AND SUNDAY; WARMER SUNDAY; LIGHT NORTHERLY WINDS

WAR MAY FOLLOW LIND'S ARRIVAL IN MEXICAN CAPITAL SEND ULTIMATUM TO HUERTA

DOCTOR FACING ARREST

Warrants were issued by the prosecuting attorney this morning for the arrest, upon the charge of unlawful combination, of Dr. L. Fred Lundy, with offices at 417 Walker building, and Mabel Eilam Driscoll.

The warrants were issued upon complaint of J. J. Driscoll, husband of the woman.

Driscoll's story to the prosecuting attorney tells of a call to Dr. Lundy in March, 1912, to attend his seven-year-old child, who had been taken suddenly ill.

"I kept Dr. Lundy as family physician for my children and wife," Driscoll related, "until August 7, 1912. On May 5, of that year, I sent my wife to the Providence hospital in charge of Dr. Lundy and she was continually under his care and treatment until my discovery that the man to whom I had entrusted the care of my wife and children had been false to that trust and had wrecked my home."

Says She Was Drugged.

"On August 5th, Mrs. Driscoll told me," Driscoll related, "that the doctor had drugged her in his office and that she was unconscious for two hours. On several other occasions she came home or was brought home quite evidently under the influence of some drug.

"She had the appearance of one having taken morphine and I asked her if the doctor was doping her."

"She did not answer me then, but on the following day informed me that her apparently doped condition had arisen from the fact that she had taken overdoses of medicine containing strychnine, given her by Dr. Lundy."

During the summer Driscoll instituted divorce proceedings against his wife, but, determined to punish the man whom he accused of breaking up his home, hired detectives to watch the couple.

Detectives Watch Pair

The detectives engaged a room adjoining that occupied by Mrs. Driscoll at 703 Columbia st., and "peep" holes were bored through a door connecting the two rooms.

"On August 3, 1913," the report of the detectives reads, "Mrs. Driscoll came into her room, was singing and started to clean up her room. When she got this done she tried on a couple of dresses she had bought and laid them on the bed and smoked a cigarette, and, while lying on the bed, tears were running down her cheeks.

Offers Doctor Drink

"About 11:15 p. m. on the same day, Dr. Lundy and Mrs. Driscoll came into the room together and sat down and talked a little while. Then Mrs. Driscoll poured out a glass of liquor and offered it to the doctor, saying:

"Come on, Doc, and take a drink and be a sport. Can you take it full?"

The detectives remained in the room adjoining that of Mrs. Driscoll until August 7, and the report of the alleged conduct of Dr. Lundy and Mrs. Driscoll was submitted in full to the prosecuting attorney.

There are four children in the Driscoll family, all of whom are under the care of their father.

Oh, Oh! English Artist Visiting in Seattle Says Our Girls Don't Know How to Handle Their Feet; He Offers 'Em Some Free Advice

When J. Belford Walling, famous artist, declared at the Washington hotel that Seattle girls don't know how to handle their feet, he said he'd prove it. He posed the young lady pictured above. Does Seattle femininity sit in these impossible poses? Watch 'em and see if he's right.

It really grieves J. Belford Walling. It is annoying, don't y'know. J. Belford hates to say anything disparaging of beauty. But really, don't y'know, the truth must out. And J. Belford, being that famous English esthetic who is visiting at the Washington, is compelled to state the facts.

J. Belford has no fault to find with the beauty of Seattle girls. In deed, J. Belford opines they are rare specimens of pulchritude.

It's Not Their Shape

"But their feet!" J. Belford sighs, deeply.

Now, don't misunderstand him. It isn't the size, shape or contour of Seattle girls' feet which annoys the beauty critic.

"Nor have I any fault to find," says J. Belford, "with the way the girls of Seattle are shod. In Berlin, that was the fault."

Interviewer Takes Peep

J. Belford really hated to tell. But the Star interviewer finally secured his confidence, and out it came.

Girls, you simply allow your toes to stick out all aesthetic consideration when you sit down. J. Belford is a keen observer, you will notice.

He wanted the interviewer to take a peep, a low-down peep in the restaurants, and ice cream parlors, and cafes.

Wrap 'Em Around Chair

"Ah, there, you see!" J. Belford remarked. "Your girls use their feet as they would never think of using their arms. See this girl, who has her feet folded, feet crossed, one up in the air, pointing to the North pole, and the other to the South pole, as though fleeing from each other.

"Now, there is another beautiful young lady. But, see! Her feet are wrapped around the chair rungs."

J. Belford's sense of beauty was badly, rudely hurt. The interviewer promised to publish his prescription for correct "feet" position:

"Sit on a chair that allows your feet to reach the floor comfortably. Place them lightly on the floor, under the rungs. Keep the heels closer together than the toes."

GIRLS WILL TELL STORY IN WHITE SLAVERY TRIAL

Witness Makes Slight Mistake

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 9.—Acting on the theory that counter testimony loses its shattering force against evidence fresh in the minds of jurors, Special Prosecutors Matt I. Sullivan and Theodore Roche, for the government, will withhold Marsha Warrington and Lola Morris from the stand in the Diggs white slave trial until close to the conclusion of the prosecutions.

The case will not be resumed until Tuesday.

To Call Girls Tuesday

According to Roche, the two girls probably will be called Tuesday to tell in detail the story of the flight of the four from Sacramento to Reno, and the life of the eloping quartette for several days in a cabin, where they lived as husbands and wives before being located and arrested.

In the role of an avenger, Martin Beasley, close friend of the Warrington family, who took the trail of the Diggs-Cammetti party from Sacramento, and was instrumental in locating them at Reno, will appear Tuesday.

Crowd Is Disappointed

Thus far the Diggs trial has proven a disappointment to sensation seekers.

"The two girls went to the dining room to get drinks," testified F. A. Lindner, clerk at the Riverside hotel, at Reno, referring to Miss Warrington and Miss Norris, who, with Diggs and Cammetti, are developed by many witnesses to have stopped there as husbands and wives for three days prior to occupying the cabin.

The crowd craned forward. At last some of "that sensational stuff" was coming.

"I told the bellboy to get the girls drinks from the bar," the clerk went on, as the crowd took another hitch forward.

Judge Causes Laugh

"What kind of drinks?" asked Roche for the prosecution.

"Lemonade," replied Lindner, smiling at the manifest disappointment his answer had been to the crowd.

"Do you know, as a matter of fact, whether these men and the girls slept together while at the hotel?" asked Devlin of Lindner, who had stated that the four had occupied two rooms.

"No," answered Lindner.

"You don't know whether they slept at all, do you?" interjected Judge Van Fleet.

The answer was lost in a wave of laughter.

DR. TITUS IS FREE

Dr. H. F. Titus was released from the county jail shortly after noon today, upon furnishing a $3,000 appeal bond from Judge Humphries' order committing him for six months and fining him $300 for violating the anti-speech restraining order. Those who signed the bond are D. A. Morrison, Alexander J. Allen, H. O. Haukoos, J. G. Brown and G. E. Tilton. Judge Humphries accepted the bond without objection.

NOBLE HOSPITAL CLOSED TO FRIEDMANN PHYSICIAN

Following a meeting today of the board of directors of the Noble hospital, Dr. C. S. Noble, chairman of the board, announced that he would disclaim all responsibility for the visit here next week of Dr. J. J. Meyer, of the staff of Dr. Friedmann, discoverer of an alleged cure for tuberculosis.

The Noble hospital will be closed to Dr. Meyer, who had expected, according to a telegram to Dr. Noble, to test cases there for pay.

"Since the secret of the Friedmann culture was sold to an American company," said Dr. Noble, "its administration has been commercialized on a gigantic scale, and especially in view of the fact that its efficacy has not yet been satisfactorily demonstrated, we directors of the hospital have determined that we will not be identified with the cure, or with Dr. Meyer."

Dr. Noble was sent to New York by The Star at the time Friedmann was demonstrating his cure there, and became much interested in the culture.

DEMAND RESIGNATION OF GOV. SULZER OF NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—The World and Times today make editorial demand for the resignation of Gov. Sulzer, because of the revelations yesterday before the Frawley investigation committee.

Witnesses testified to the use of funds in Wall st. speculation that were subscribed to aid in the Sulzer campaign, the subscription in question not appearing of record in Sulzer's sworn statement of campaign receipts. It was shown also that the governor had accounts with three different Wall st. concerns and that he was saved from being sold out by one firm through the payment of L. M. Josephthal, a Wall st. banker and a member of the governor's staff, of a debit balance of $26,739.

It was announced here today that the governor will reply early next week to the charges of malfeasance in office, and that he expects the Frawley committee to institute impeachment proceedings against him.

"I see no reason for further proceedings," said Senator Frawley this morning. "We have the goods on Sulzer and his impeachment is only a matter of time."

GUST OBTAINS WRIT FOR FREE SPEECH

Adolph A. Gust, whom Judge Humphries committed to jail for failing to pay $3,000 court costs, secured, through his attorney, G. W. Saulsbury, a writ of habeas corpus from Judge Stephen Chadwick, of the supreme court. By the terms of the writ, Gust will be brought before Judge Mackintosh Monday for a hearing.

Curb markets help the bridal couples on a bit in their buying.

WILL FORM LEAGUE FOR FREE SPEECH

A free speech defense league, similar to those organizations which have been established in San Francisco and Portland, is to be formed in Seattle. A public meeting for the purpose of effecting organization has been called for Sunday night in room 104, at the Labor Temple. The public is invited.

NATION PREPARES FOR ARMED CLASH; PRESIDENT IS FIRM

By John E. Nevin.
United Press Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—While the speed of the battleship New Hampshire is slowed down so that John Lind, President Wilson's emissary to Mexico, will not reach Vera Cruz until tonight, Nelson O'Shaughnessy, in charge of the American legation in Mexico City, is actively preparing for Lind's arrival.

He has notified Gen. Huerta that his attack on Lind and his mission are a personal insult to the president's representative.

Lind Kept Advised

Ever since it left Galveston for Vera Cruz, the New Hampshire has been in wireless touch with the Arlington station and Lind has been fully advised of the developments in the situation.

President Wilson is convinced that Lind's courage is equal to Huerta's and Lind will go to Mexico City tomorrow or Monday.

Both the president and Bryan expect that Lind's mission will succeed, but senators familiar with the president's plan are skeptical. It is generally believed here that war is imminent.

Fear It Means War

Both the army and navy are ready for the expected clash and experienced officers who are opposed to a war with Mexico admit they fear the worst.

A studied attempt has been made to fulfill the president's orders and to prevent even a show of warlike preparation, but orders for troops and ships are all ready for signature.

Both Bryan and Wilson are being criticized because of the secretary's actions in the Mexican situation.

Republicans and some democrats say the administration is trying to make a patriotic question out of a party matter.

Favor Lifting Embargo

Members of the senate foreign committee considered the situation this morning. The majority favors lifting the embargo against Mexican importation of arms. The president so far has been able to keep a resolution to this end off the calendar, but each day his task becomes more difficult.

Mexico City newspapers are bitterly attacking the United States, and in case of trouble tomorrow, many doubt whether a serious attempt to protect Americans would be made.

Calls Conference

It was stated today that, as a result of criticism of his course the president has invited the members of the senate foreign committee to confer with him on the Mexican situation tonight.

The conference is regarded as an official acknowledgment of the gravity of the Mexican situation.

The republicans will be taken into the administration's confidence to learn the reasons why John Lind has been sent to Mexico City and will be given full details of the steps arranged by the president and Bryan. They also will be told that the president opposes intervention.

President Wilson is plainly greatly troubled.

He thinks that Huerta misrepresents America's plans, and intends to disclose everything to the committee.

NO FEAR IN MEXICO CITY

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 9.—No apprehension is felt here for the safety of John Lind, special emissary of President Wilson. The population of the city have made no threats against Lind, and Gen. Huerta says he will do everything possible to safeguard Lind. He will treat Lind exactly as he would any other American citizen, and expects no demonstration.

Lowman and Pigott Are for Any Legislation That Will Open Alaska

J. D. Lowman, capitalist and president of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce: "I am in favor of any legislation that will open Alaska, whether this development shall be done at the expense of the government or at the expense of private capital. I do not believe, however, that private capital could be induced to compete with the government, but this would make no difference if the government would itself build the railroads and do the work of development. The important thing is that legislation of some sort should be passed at as early a date as possible, and we should be thankful for every influence that will lead to the desired end."

William Pigott, president Seattle Car & Foundry Co.: "While we of Seattle should be willing, and undoubtedly are, to expend all of the time and energy at our disposal to help along the development of Alaska, I believe that our efforts would be almost fruitless as compared with the influence, secured by The Star, of all of the Scripps papers of the United States. In my judgment this is far and away the greatest thing that has yet been done in the matter of securing desirable legislation for Alaska. With this influence there should be a probability of the passage of the Pointed bill or of some measure of the same general nature."

PENNANTS COUPON NO. 37
