Al Ernest Garcia

Al Ernest Garcia has been everything from the daring Daniel in the lion's den and handsome gladiator in the Roman arena to the gentle hero who wooed by moonlight to the accompaniment of the dulcet mandolin. But he depends more upon his vocabulary than his good looks for success, for while Garcia's profession is soundless, he is not a silent actor—he talks in the Roman arena to the gentle hero who wooed by moonlight to the accompaniment of the dulcet mandolin. New Pennants Make a Hit

The new Billie Burke Series of Pennants, now being put out by the Star, have surely won favor with Star readers. The new series, although a trifle smaller than the first series put out, are made of such superior felt—the best money can buy—and the coloring in them rivals hand-painted work. The Billie Burke pennants are put out exclusively for The Seattle Star and cannot be secured at any other source than through The Star office or its branch offices.

A series of ten pennants has been announced so far and five of them have been issued. A supply of the back pennants is kept on hand to supply anyone who happens to start collecting after they have been issued.

This week the most beautiful pennant issued to date is being put out. The "Madame" Girl is the new pennant and is made up in several beautiful colors on a deep red background.

If you have not secured one of these pennants do so at once. Clip pennant coupon from front page of The Star and present at The Star office or any of its branch offices with 20 cents and secure one of these pennants. If ordered by mail, enclose five cents extra to cover cost of mailing.

INDIGESTION, GAS, DYSPEPSIA GONE

"PAPE'S DIAPEPSIN" FIXES SICK, SOUR, GASSY STOMACHS IN FIVE MINUTES

Wonder what upset your stomach—which portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother. If your stomach is in a revolt; if sour, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented into stubborn lumps, head aches and aches; belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food; breath foul, tongue coated—just take a little Pape's Diapepsin and in five minutes you wonder what became of the indigestion and distress.

Millions of men and women today know that it is needless to have a bad stomach. A little Diapepsin occasionally keeps this delicate organ regulated and they eat their favorite foods without fear.

If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless relief is Pape's Diapepsin which costs only fifty cents for a large case at drug stores. It's truly wonderful—it digests food and sets things straight, so gently and easily that it is really astonishing. Please, for your sake, don't go on and on with a weak, disordered stomach; it's so unnecessary.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color, Gloss and Thickness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant, remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, gray or dry, straggly and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of trouble.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not unattractive, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, no one can tell, because it does so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

The Confessions of a Wife

Dick Neglects to Telephone His Mother

CHAPTER LXI

All the way back from the cemetery I was very nervous because I knew I was going to be late, and, sure enough, when I reached Dick's mother's house it was 15 minutes past 6.

The house was all dark and there on the porch was Dick. "What is the matter?" I asked, as I ran up the steps.

"Matter enough," answered Dick. "I've been so busy today that I forgot to telephone mother we were coming to dinner and evidently the people are away."

"I was wrong, Dick, dear," I said contritely, "but I won't do it again." Instead of helping matters this seemed to pour oil on the fire of his anger.

"Of course it was wrong—but no man can tell what a fool woman will do."

I didn't relish being called a "fool woman," even if I had made a mistake, and I knew if I spoke it would be to say something that would be better left unsaid.

"What will we do now?" belligerently asked Dick. I knew from his tone that HE WOULD VETO ANYTHING I MIGHT SUGGEST, so I simply ventured:

"You know, dear, we can always go home."

"Well, we won't!" was his short decision. "It would take an hour before we got there and I am as hungry as a bear."

"We'll go down to one of the restaurants and get something to eat and then go home."

"All right, dear," I said meekly, for I was determined to take my medicine and look pleasant.

Just as we were standing on the steps, were determining where to go, Mollie, looking lovelier than I ever saw her, came round the corner and fairly ran into us before she saw who it was.

"Mercy! What in the world are you doing here?" she exclaimed, clearly "fussed" to find us.

"We came over to have dinner with you," said Dick.

"Mother and father have gone to stay with Aunt Clara, Uncle John is ill."

"They did not expect you to stay alone in the house?" asked Dick in consternation.

"No," said Mollie, slowly. "They said I was to go over and stay with Margie and you, but when I telephoned this afternoon they told me at the hotel that Margie was out" (Dick looked at me inquiringly) "and so I determined to come home and stay all night—I am not afraid."

"I knew that Mollie was not telling us everything, especially as she was very reluctant when Dick said: 'Well, now, little sister, you can go with us downtown to dinner and come home with us for the night. I heartily disapprove of mother and father going away without making sure of arrangements for your care. Go upstairs and get what will make you comfortable and Marge and I will wait for you.' Mollie went, protesting, and the gave me a little appealing look as she passed."

"She had hardly gotten into the house before a big touring car drove up to the curb and Will Hattersly—a man much older than Mollie—came rushing up the steps. 'I'm afraid I'm late,' he began, before he realized that I was not Mollie."

"Oh, I beg your pardon, I thought you were Miss Waverly. I had an intention to take her out to dinner."

"Miss Waverly will be unable to keep it," said Dick, stiffly. And with a curt "I'm very sorry," the man ran down the steps as though glad to get out of a bad mess quickly.
