

Yearn for Food—Don't Spurn It

Briak Appetite is a Healthful Necessity. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Quickly Restore Lost Relish for Food.

Unless you have a real hearty desire for food you should by all means take no chances of stomach trouble, for a loss of appetite means a signal of distress from a deranged digestion.

"There's an appetite that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets gave me."

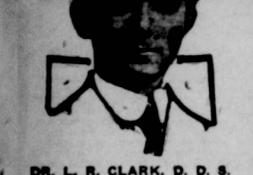

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets very quickly restore appetite by making the stomach want food. The stomach readily recovers from indigestion, dyspepsia, etc., as soon as it is enabled to digest food.

Just think then how quickly and efficiently they act when they are mixed with the food in one's system and what a great relief it is to the digestive apparatus to have its fluids so enriched.

Go to your druggist today and obtain a 50-cent box and make the actual test yourself after you have eaten a large and hearty meal.

Highest Type Dental Office in Seattle

Such an office as ours appeals to the best class of people—the people who are intelligent and progressive—the people who want dentists to do their dental work, not students. Every operator in the office has his license displayed so you can see it. His identity is not hidden by the use of numbers, but you know his name and become personally acquainted with him.

CYNTHIA GREY AND HER CORRESPONDENTS

Q.—I would like to ask you and also "One Who Does Not Like to Be Annoyed" if you wouldn't like to have someone go to the motion picture show with you and read it for you, if you couldn't read it yourself. Otherwise, how could you understand the picture? I know the party I am speaking about enjoys the pictures just as well as you and I, and probably more. I can honestly say that it doesn't annoy me near as much as it does when they all clap their hands and stamp their feet when the operator flashes a picture of some public man on the screen. That not only annoys a person, but would give most people a headache for the rest of the evening.

Millionaire Compelled to Beg on Streets

Failure of Bank Where Wealthy Man Hoarded His Funds Causes Vast Change in His Position.

Horace Parker, scion of a wealthy and aristocratic family of London, scientist and astronomer of note, known to students of astronomy the world over, was compelled to beg on the streets of London and to appeal to his former aristocratic associates, not only for a few pennies to procure a lodging place, but for food to sustain life.

Prof. Parker's troubles were brought about in a very peculiar, but none the less interesting, manner, because of his intense interest in the question whether or not life in any form exists on the planet Mars.

For many years Prof. Parker has made this question his hobby. All other matters, even those pertaining to his immediate household, even to his sweetheart, a charming young woman whom he was to make his wife, were of secondary consideration. He neglected his sweetheart, relatives, household, and became a selfish recluse in order to pursue his study. In the end he realized his error only when fortune was swept aside and his loved ones were forced to beg.

"A Message From Mars" is the play in which this interest-compelling story is told this week by the Batley & Mitchell players at the Seattle theatre. It is by far the best play this popular playhouse has staged this season. Scenically, it is a revelation. The best seat may be had at night performance for 50 cents, or at Thursday, Saturday and Sunday matinees for 25 cents.—Advertisement.

AH, WHAT A HERO IS HENRY OF TACOMA!
Henry C. Gilday, he said his name was—Henry C. Gilday of Tacoma.
Henry journeyed on Tuesday to Seattle. He met two of his Tillamook. Long and joyfully they recognized in many a First av. frog dispensary. And then to the Tivoli theatre where, esconced close to the soothing music of the orchestra, Henry fell asleep. And so, sleeping, missed the opening numbers of the rousing musical comedy, "The Minister's Son."
It was the crashing music of "The Bathing Girls" number that awakened him. There, right before him, he saw the beautiful Myrtle De Loy in the water.
That the water was only a stereotypical effect on the screen Henry did not know.
"She's drowning," he shouted. And, in his muddled state, he promptly set out to save her.
Unsteadily, he mounted the piano.
But just as he was preparing to do a Brodie into the thundering surf, the ushers grabbed him.
None can say, however, that Henry is not a brave man.
And the press agent of the theatre declares it speaks volumes for the realism of the act.
