75-YEAR-OLD MAN FOUND GUILTY OF KILLING HIS WIFE

OLYMPIA, Wash., May 16.—Hamilton Douglas, 75, pitied a woman, and because he did, he stands convicted today of second degree murder.

For pity is akin to love, and love sometimes exacts terrible penalties, particularly when the love of a 75-year-old man is for a woman half his age.

Hamilton Douglas first pitied, then loved, then "killed the thing he loved," as men do, if the poet is to be believed.

The law says second degree murder is punishable by no less than 10 years in the penitentiary. It may be a life sentence. The jury returned the verdict yesterday afternoon. Judge Claypool will pass sentence probably next week. Whatever it is, it is equivalent to a death sentence to Douglas.

Hamilton Douglas lived a quiet, peaceable life for 25 years on that one farm at Grand Mound, near Centralia, until two years ago, when Fate sent the woman to a ranch within half a mile of his land.

He had come across her three or four times when her eyes were red with weeping, and he learned of the struggles of the widow with two children.

He Takes Her In

He was a sympathetic soul, and she spoke freely to him. She admitted that the man she lived with on that ranch was not her husband. He beat her quite often, she told the old man.

And then, one night, there came a nervous knocking on his door. Her hair disheveled, her eyes dilated with fright, the woman begged Douglas to take her in. Her "man," she said, refused to keep her any longer.

And Then They Marry

He took her in, and there she lived with her two children for many weeks. She helped the old man faithfully on the farm, and then came marriage.

That was two years ago. Things went smoothly for some months.

And then came the younger man—Charles McDavitt was the name given during the murder trial. And the inevitable resulted.

Gets Him to Sign Deed

As they grew to care more and more for each other, and Mrs. Douglas grew to care less and less for the old farmer, she contrived to have him sign a deed transferring his property to her.

And then McDavitt came to live at the Douglas home. Douglas wept as he told in court how he discovered his erstwhile peaceable home ruthlessly torn asunder.

The young couple openly flaunted their intimacy before his eyes, he said.

They cursed him as an "old fool."

Old Man Was Angry

The old man left. He wanted to go away and forget, and at the age of 75 to start over again.

He went to a place near Vancouver, Wash., and stayed a month. But he could not forget. And he returned.

"You're not wanted here," his wife told him.

And the old man, determined to take command, replied by ordering McDavitt from the house.

McDavitt did not leave that night. But in two or three days Mrs. Douglas and McDavitt packed up all the household goods, packed over the chances of selling the farm, and prepared to leave.

Wife Laughs at Him

McDavitt, in fact, had left, and when the old man asked for permission to take the team to Centralia, his wife laughed at him.

"This enraged me," the old man said when he was arrested, "and I never said a word, but I just got a gun AND UP AND POPPED IT TO HER."

U. S. CONSUL SAFE

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The Brazilian minister in Mexico City notified the state department today that John Silliman, United States consul at Saltillo, who has been unaccounted for since the American landing at Vera Cruz, is safe and due in the capital today.

The minister expressed the opinion that Silliman's delay was due to destruction of the railroad between Saltillo and Mexico City.

ITCHED SO, HE TORE HIS FLESH; RESINOL CURED

Tortured For Three Weeks, But Two Applications Did the Work.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3, 1913: "All over my body were small pimples which itched me so that I could just grab my flesh and tear it apart. For three weeks I could not sleep at night until I was simply exhausted. I tried most everything that was supposed to give relief, and I can truthfully say that not until I used Resinol Ointment did I begin to feel like the man I was. After only two applications there were no more symptoms of my ailment." (Signed) A. Jackson, care of Water Registrar's Office, District Building.

Physicians have prescribed Resinol for nineteen years, for all sorts of skin troubles, pimples, dandruff, sores, ulcers, burns, wounds, and piles. Every druggist sells Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap, but for trial size, free, write to Dept. 15-B, Resinol, Baltimore, Md. Do not be deceived by imitations.

PHOTO PLAYS

Scene from "Tess of the Storm Country," featuring Mary Pickford, a Famous Players film, which starts at the Tivoli Sunday. It is presented under the management of Daniel Frohman, who made the picture. The action is laid in the great outdoors, and is just the kind in which little Mary delights. The secret of her popularity is her natural way of acting, and a play of the primitive gives her much greater sway for her ability. The picture will be shown all week, starting at 11 in the morning and closing at 11 at night.

At the Clemmer, on tomorrow's new program, the Hearst-Selig News Pictorial will show scenes of actual fighting in the outer trenches at Tampico, United States troops at Vera Cruz, first trial of cup defender Resolute, Wellesley college crew, the Washington horse show and other late news. Other subjects on the program are "On the Minute," the story of a political deal; "A Secret Crime," telling of one woman's weakness; "Doc Yak's Temperance Lecture," another cartoon comedy; "Gilligan's Accident Policy," and "Maniacs Three," two comedies.

Little Mary Pickford closes tonight in "A Good Little Devil" at the Melbourne. This is a five-part Famous Players feature, and is the play in which Mary was starring on the stage when her health broke down and forced her to go to California to recuperate, where she still is, now playing for the Famous Players company.

"The Card Sharps," a two-reel Domino drama, starts Sunday at the Grand.

Suppose a very pretty girl discovers that her father's secretary, whom she loved was a card sharp, and once the partner of the man who had ruined her brother at cards. Would you believe his story, if all appearances were against him, and he protested that he was innocent? This girl, Annie Breese, the daughter of Col. Breese, one of the old school, you know, believes in her sweetheart, and her faith was justified. It was all a plot against him, although he was really a reformed card sharp. A new picture bill and three vaudeville acts complete the program.

Algy has his troubles trying to court May, a beautiful young woman, in the Thanhouse comedy featuring Cyril Chadwick, at the Class A theatre, starting Sunday, entitled "Getting Rid of Algy."

Jim Lewis is also courting the beauty, and when she shows her preference for Algy, he and his gang look Algy in a trunk.

While they are away to get an expressman, May orders the trunk sent to her house, not knowing what it contains. The gang picks out another trunk, and the police catch them as they are about to dump it into the river.

DRYS LEADING IN WEEK'S CONTEST

An eleventh-hour rally put the drys in the majority in the number of wet and dry letters received in this week's prohibition contest.

The contest closed at noon today. Late this afternoon the judges were still going over the mass of letters. Close to 5,000 persons have taken part in The Star's wet or dry contest thus far.

The Star offers $5 for the best wet, and $5 for the best dry argument every week. The letters are limited to 150 words.

The judges weeded out part of the letters this morning. The best ones were put aside. Extracts from a few of these are printed herewith. One of the letters comes from a reader in New York.

"It must be admitted that the restriction of liberty by the abolition of the sale of all alcoholic beverages would not be too great a burden to impose on the public if the misery caused by drinking could be avoided."

L. BIEYER, "919 26th av."

PRESCRIPTIONS PREFERABLE TO PATENT MEDICINES

Prescriptions Are Specific—Patents Strike an Average.

Under the present laws, as promulgated by the "pure food and drug" legislation, a great deal of the undesirable features of "Patent Medicines" have been eliminated. Even though they were perfect, and each remedy was good for some certain ailment, they cannot be used indiscriminately. An "honest" patent medicine merely "strikes an average"—it may cure Jones, have no effect on Brown, and be actually detrimental to Smith. Of course, the strong testimonials come from the "Joneses who were cured."

The only way to be treated for any physical ailment is to get a prescription, written especially for each case. The services of an ex-Governor, a physician, and a pharmacist are absolutely free to all patrons of the Brendel Drug Company at 117 Vesler way (south side Pioneer Square). Everybody is welcome to his services. He prescribes for all without charge, and the prescriptions are filled right here at regular rates—no need to guess at your case with patients.
