

SAYS MAX NORDAU:

"To the American woman, it seems natural that man should slave from morning till night in order to satisfy her."

What Is a Husband Worth? What Is a Wife Worth?

Nixola Greeley-Smith, Star writer and noted essayist on feminism, and Max Nordau, famous German author, satirist and reformer, have opinions that clash on the two questions above. In a series of articles for The Star they set forth their views. Read Miss Greeley-Smith's first article in The Star today. It's worth your while. Nordau has his say tomorrow.

SAYS GREELEY-SMITH:

"In comparison with the un-paid profession of homekeeping and child-rearing, any man's job is a cinch!"

JOSH WISE SAYS:

"Give a hard-workin' woman her way and she'll always marry a man with white, soft hands."

Kaiser Gives Ultimatum!

ORDER BOALT OUT: BUT NOW BOALT IS IN MEXICO CITY!

WASHINGTON, July 29.—After issuing his second order for the deportation of Correspondent Fred L. Boalt from Vera Cruz, Secretary of War Garrison suspended it today, as he did the first one. This was to give the Newspaper Enterprise association time to file an analysis of the naval board of inquiry's report.

The association maintained that the court's findings were contrary to the evidence.

WASHINGTON July 29.—Despite the fact that three resolutions are pending in congress demanding an investigation of the alleged white-washing of United States naval officers of conditions in the Mexican capital, and of the steps being taken for the rehabilitation of the government since the abdication of Huerta.

The original order for Boalt's deportation was issued following his publication of a story telling of an American naval officer said to have shot unarmed and fleeing Mexicans during the occupation of Vera Cruz.

Boalt said he received the information from the officer himself, Ensign Richardson, U. S. N.

Daniels Gets Report

Accordingly the deportation order was suspended and the matter turned over to the Vera Cruz naval authorities for investigation.

Yesterday, Secretary of the Navy, Daniels received a report of the board of inquiry's findings, in which it was stated that 30 naval officers had said they knew of no case of enforcement of the "law of flight" at Vera Cruz, and never heard Richardson say he knew of one.

The testimony of Boalt and other correspondents directly contradicted this.

SHOOTS HIMSELF

Ill and despondent, Harry Snow, a middle-aged man, put a bullet in his brain in his room at 1414 1/2 Fifth av. today. He had been dead several hours before the body was discovered by the landlady, Mrs. E. P. Shay.

"Why I Am Sending Thousands of Men to Their Deaths"—A Statement by Emperor of Austria

VIENNA, July 29.—In a manifesto issued Tuesday night, Emperor Francis Joseph told of the fervency with which he had hoped to save Austria during his declining years from the burdens and sacrifices of war.

"But the intrigues of a malevolent opponent," continued the manifesto, "compel me, in defense of the honor of my monarchy and for the security of its possessions to grasp the sword after long years of peace. A series of murderous attacks in an organized and well carried out conspiracy, whose success wounded me and my loyal people to the heart, forms the visible and bloody track of those secret machinations which were operated direct in Servia.

"In vain did my government make a last attempt to induce Servia to desist, Servia rejected the just and moderate demands of my government and refused to conform to the obligations forming the rational foundation for peace in the life of peoples and states. I must, therefore, proceed by force of arms to secure those pledges which alone can insure tranquility to states.

"In this solemn hour I am fully conscious of the whole significance of my resolve and my responsibility before the Almighty.

"I have examined and weighed everything, and with my conscience clear I set out on the path that duty points.

"I trust in my people, who throughout every storm have always rallied into united loyalty around my throne and have always been prepared for the greatest sacrifices for the honor, greatness and might of the fatherland.

"I trust in Austria-Hungary's brave and devoted forces and in the Almighty to give victory to my arms."

GIRL SCHOOL MA'AM LOCKED UP WITH LUNATICS

Doctors Say She Suffered From Melancholia---Her Mother Now Trying to Get Her Out

Margaret Chambers, a school teacher, is in the Stellacoom insane asylum. And she doesn't belong there.

She was suffering from a nervous breakdown. It was necessary for her to rest. There was some trouble between her and her relatives. They would have none of her. There was no other place to send her.

All the rest of her life she will feel disgraced, for the bitter thought "I have been in an insane asylum inmate," will haunt her as long as she lives.

The case of Margaret Chambers differs from that of Emma Bremer, whose story was told in The Star yesterday.

Emma Bremer, heart-broken because the laws of her church forbade a divorce from the man she hated that she might marry the man she loved, was suffering from temporary melancholia. She was sent to Stellacoom, because the state has failed to provide an observation hospital for such patients.

With Margaret Chambers it seems to have been a pure case of "railroading." Nervous prostration, brought on by overwork, drove her to seek the protection and sympathy of her folks. But they were busy with their own affairs, and chose to have the state

SENDING SAME PEOPLE TO ASYLUM DEPRESSES JUDGE, HE TELLS STAR

Discussing the lack of a proper place of detention for victims of melancholia and persons pending examination as to their sanity, Superior Judge Boyd Tallman said today: "In my fourteen years' experience on the bench I have frequently been depressed by having to send persons pending examination or suffering from melancholia to the county jail. They are not criminals. They are more like helpless children and it makes a man feel like a criminal to detain them there. From the bench, in public and in private I have frequently called attention to the outrage and disgrace inflicted upon such people by the lack of a proper detention place. I am not an insanity expert, but I have been compelled to send people to Stellacoom suffering from melancholia whose affliction would only be increased by their surroundings and association with insane people. Any campaign for a proper detention place should be pushed hard and will receive my warm support and I think that of every other fair-minded person."

GIRL RESCUES YOUTH BY PLUCKY SWIMMING

BERKELEY, Cal., July 29.—Her plucky rescue of 11-year-old Earl Rose from drowning in the bay here, in a struggle which all but cost her own life, has made Miss Beth Wiley the heroine candidate of this city for a Carnegie medal of bravery.

She herself was so abashed at the plaudits of over 200 people who had watched her thrilling half-mile swim in choppy seas with young Rose's unconscious body that she fled as soon as she had dragged him to safety.

The boat in which Rose was watching bathers was swamped by a big wave, and Miss Wiley, after a desperate sprint, reached him just as he was sinking the last time.

Miss Beth Wiley.

CAILLAUX AND HIS WIFE PUT IN HAPPY DAY

PARIS, July 29.—Mme. Henriette Caillaux, acquitted last evening on charge of murdering Editor Gaston Calmette, of "Le Figaro," had sufficiently recovered today from her experiences to hold a reception at her home.

Even the war scare was insufficient to detract interest from the Caillaux case, and the ex-finance minister's residence was surrounded all day by a gaping throng, which made it difficult for the automobiles of visitors to reach the door.

The rumor afloat shortly after the killing of Calmette to the effect that Caillaux had tired of his wife and might soon seek a divorce, and that she shot the editor that her husband might regard it as a sacrifice on her part and thus change his mind about leaving her, seemed to be utterly discredited today, for the two seemed constantly together, and showed great affection for each other.

The verdict, it was predicted in political circles, would have the effect of restoring M. Caillaux to his former standing with the government.

WAR TO BRING GOOD TIMES IN THIS COUNTRY

What effect will the all-European war have upon the United States? How will it affect Seattle? Will it mean more prosperous, or will the war have a depressing effect?

The United States will be called upon to furnish Europe with a large portion of its food supply as a foregone conclusion. Wheels of industry will hum busily, factories will have plenty of work, crops will find an easy market. These are assured facts.

Meat Will Cost More.

It is also positive that the cost of living will soar skyward. Edward Cudahy, the big Chicago packer, today sounded a warning that a big jump in the price of meat is to be expected.

The cattle supply would be inadequate to meet the demands. With the foreign markets demoralized, the export demand in this country would be abnormal.

Wheat Up Several Points.

SAME OLD STORY

A case of too much mother-in-law was made the basis of the divorce complaint filed today by Mrs. Margaret Van Ness against Wallace Edson Van Ness. Mrs. Van Ness says her husband's mother nagged her so life was made unbearable.

WANTS DIVORCE

Gus Swanson, marine pilot on vessels running to Alaska, declares his wife, Gertrude, deserted him, as he was sinking the last time, as a complaint for divorce filed today.

Kaiser Wilhelm, the "war lord" of Germany, is today sitting on the safety valve of the greatest war horror the world has ever known.

Unless Russia ceases its military activities, a German army mobilization order will be issued at the end of 24 hours, a high official told the United Press at Berlin today.

This stand was regarded virtually as an ultimatum, fixing a time limit within which the czar was required to reply.

Official circles are extremely pessimistic. Under secretaries and attaches of the foreign office remained at their desks, in Berlin, and all the officials were working tonight.

The kaiser has instructed the Austrian government, Berlin dispatches say today, to delay its invasion of Servia until he gives the word. The German emperor is striving to confine the impending struggle to Austria and Servia. Russia, it is believed, will refuse to forsake Servia in the latter country's dilemma. If Russia goes to war, all of Europe will go, too, with millions of men and thousands of ships.

English War Fleet Sails

LONDON, July 29.—The first British war fleet was today unofficially reported to have sailed from Portsmouth. Its destination was unknown. The admiralty refused information. If Great Britain, through its treaty obligations with France and Russia, is drawn into the impending European struggle, it is conceded its chief duty will be to engage Germany's forces at sea. The two fleets, England's and Germany's, which are now within a few miles of each other in the North sea, are the two greatest in the world.

Czar Warns He'll Fight

LONDON, July 29.—The czar has practically notified the kaiser that Russia will mobilize its army if Austria invades Servia, it was stated here today on high authority.

It is considered certain Germany will mobilize if Russia does so.

Austrians and Servians are preparing today for their opening battle. Six Austrian army corps are advancing through Hungary, and the province of Bosnia, on the Servian frontier.

The British cabinet is feverishly discussing plans for averting a general conflict.

Russia Masses Troops

ST. PETERSBURG, July 29.—A partial mobilization of the Russian army is in progress today.

Fourteen army corps are being concentrated along the Austrian frontier, from the Austro-Gerran border to the Black Sea.

France Is All a-Bristle

LUXEMBURG, July 29.—French troops were concentrating on the German frontier today.

Alsac-Lorraine was considered the spot where trouble was likeliest to begin. It has long been reported that Germany planned to expel the French from the two provinces.

Should the czar lend aid to Servia, it is believed the kaiser will try to crush the French before turning his attention to Russia.

Royal Scandal Story Austrian War Cause?

BERLIN, July 29.—In explanation of Austria's sudden outburst against Servia after it had been supposed the incident of Archduke Francis Ferdinand's assassination was closed, a remarkable story was current here today.

It was freely asserted at the time in Austrian and Hungarian newspapers that the assassination of the archduke was the result of a conspiracy hatched in Servia.

At Belgrade the charge that the murder plot was of Servian origin was deeply resented, and finally the Belgrade newspaper "Zvono" answered it by publishing a letter which declared Gavrilo Prinzip, who killed Ferdinand, was not a Servian, as had been reported, but the illegitimate son of an Austrian woman of royal blood.

This woman's husband, the latter continued, had been murdered, and the woman herself was said to have sacrificed her honor to learn who was responsible for his death. Gavrilo, it was asserted, was born after this, and it was declared that the mother urged him to kill the archduke, telling him the latter plotted her husband's killing.

What I think about it
BEING JUST ONE MAN'S OPINION
By The Spectator

A woman came into the office today and handed me a card that brought back memories of days long past, when I was a very small boy, just entering school. The card bore the name of the Band of Mercy.

I remember the teacher in the first grade starting a division of the Band, and how we all signed the pledge. It was a big event in our lives. The idea appealed to our childish fancies. Forthwith we became ardent defenders of all dumb animals.

We lived in the day of "Beautiful Joe" and "Black Beauty"—heart-grIPPING and beautiful stories of a dog and a horse, in which all youngsters of my time delighted. And we had but to look around us to find ample material on which to expend our energies, for that was long before the day of the automobile, and a humane society hadn't been heard of—at least in our town.

We did a lot of good in our small way, too, nursing back to life a half-dead bird, feeding starved cats and dogs, and performing numerous little acts of kindness both to dumb animals and human beings.

And because we signed the pledge when very young and impressionable, the whole class, I am certain, has always remembered it. Its influence has been lasting, and we are better, kinder men and women because of it.

I am glad there is a Band of Mercy in Seattle.
