TALK ALL OF WAR AT GERMANIA CAFE, WHERE HERR BARON VON LOEHNEISEN, GERMAN CONSUL, GOES FOR HIS LUNCH

"The heads of families in France are just as good as those in Germany, and the husbands and fathers of Germany are just as good as those in France—it's all the same!"
Down in the little Germania cafe, at Second and Seneca—the low, tense hum of voices and the clink of glasses ceased with startling abruptness, as a little group of stout, florid-faced Teutons turned from a big wall map of Europe they had been studying, and faced the speaker curiously.
He stood behind the bar, an immaculate figure in white, framed in a background of gleaming mirror and shining glassware.
"It is all wrong," he declared defiantly. "A million men—the flower of the French nation—are marching tonight against a million Germans."
"The heads of thousands of families in France have been torn away from their wives and children. And with their providers gone, these women and children are helpless—left to shift for themselves."
"The thing is being repeated in Germany. All their money—the savings of years, has been seized by the government. They face starvation."
"And presently they shall face each other—these two armies of husbands and fathers—and shoot each other down. Every time a man falls, a home is wrecked."
"They are all brothers—why should they murder one another?"
"I wouldn't do it for any king on earth. I would tell him to go to the devil first!"
The bartender turned to a customer and the florid-faced group, without comment, resumed their study of the map.
A group of four men sat around a table in the cafe. They munched rye bread, and as they talked they sipped beer.
One of them was Baron Wolf von Loehneisen, the German consul here.

The three others, it was rumored, were prominent Germans from Canada, who had just arrived here, that they might be within the confines of a neutral land before actual hostilities began.
Little was known concerning them. There was a deal of mystery about that table.
The four conversed in low tones, earnestly, but calmly.
When a thing has been a rumor for a certain time, it becomes established as a fact.
There is little to be learned from official sources these days. Foreign consuls are very polite. Also they are diplomatic, and hence uncommunicative. But one hears many rumors passed from group to group at the Germania.
The cafe was almost void of its usual gaiety.
Everywhere the war was the all-important topic. Hurrying waiters snatched odd moments to eagerly scan the newspaper extras; men and women at the tables discussed the situation gravely.
Others studied the latest dispatches with deep concern on their faces.
And through it all the consul and his three companions stolidly munched their rye bread and sipped their beer.

Fear U. S. May Be Drawn Into European Struggle

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Army officers here today expressed the opinion that the United States would be forced into the European war in the event of Germany invading Canada. Should there be a German invasion, it was said, America would either have to interfere or else declare null and void the Monroe doctrine.
John Bassett Moore, one of America's leading international lawyers, quotes authority in his digest which, army officers say, plainly shows that the Monroe doctrine is absolutely against European interference even in Canada by a subject of a European power, and the moral duty of this country would be to say, "Hands off!" in case Germany should invade Canada.

TURKS NEUTRAL

LONDON, Aug. 5.—That Turkey will remain absolutely neutral is the text of a message received by the war office today. Turkey is mobilizing her forces, fearing the Russian Black sea fleet will attempt to force an entrance into the Bosphorus.

An Easy Way to Get Fat and Be Strong

The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on drugging their stomach or stuffing it with greasy foods; rubbing on "flesh cream"; or following some foolish physical culture stunt, while the real cause of their thinness is untouched. You cannot get fat unless your digestive tract assimilates the food you eat.
Thanks to a remarkable new scientific discovery, it is now possible to combine into simple form the very best of solids, liquids, and fats, and organs to help them convert food into rich, fat-laden blood. This master-stroke of modern chemistry is called Sargol and has been termed the greatest of flesh-builders. Sargol aims through its regenerative, reconstructive powers to coax the stomach and intestines to literally soak up the fattening elements of your food and pass them into the blood, where they are carried to every starved, broken-down cell of tissue of your body. You can readily picture the result when this amazing transformation has taken place and you notice how your cheeks fill, your hollows about your neck, shoulders and bust disappear and you take on from 10 to 20 pounds of solid, healthy flesh. Sargol is absolutely harmless, inexpensive, efficient. Bartell Drug Co. and Swift's Pharmacy and other leading druggists of Seattle and vicinity have it and will refund your money if you are not satisfied, as per the guarantee found in every package—Advertisement.
Caution—While Sargol has given excellent results in overcoming nervous dyspepsia and general stomach troubles, it should not be taken by those who do not wish to gain ten pounds or more.—Advertisement.

WHAT DOES THE WAR MEAN TO YOU, MR. AMERICAN?

What Does It Mean to Your Pocketbook and Your Stomach? The Star Gets Opinions From Big Men All Over the Country

What will happen in these United States when Europe becomes a sashmble of war instead of a beehive of industry? Will the American worker have more to eat? Will he jingle gold in his pocket and laugh and say, "I should worry," at the death and disaster? Will he find prosperity or will he feel the clutch of poverty, become jobless and foodless because the machinery of the world is out of kilter? What of the farmer? The merchant? The banker? The manufacturer? Will they reap a golden profit from blood-soaked lands or will they fall upon lean years?
DOES IT MEAN HUNGER OR PLENTY? DOES IT MEAN BOOM TIMES OR PANICS?
Opinions differ widely.
The general opinion the country over is pessimistic. Most of the men who have tried to forecast the possibilities of a great war see only disaster.
The chance of gain is much complicated by the lack of an American merchant marine. Ships flying foreign flags would be fair prey for the navies of other nations. There would be no security for American shippers, except under the protection of the neutral Stars and Stripes.
What will happen when war is a reality, when millions of men are fighting instead of producing, when destruction and not creation becomes the occupation of a continent? Only the event can show. From the leaders of a mercantile, industrial and financial world The Seattle Star has gathered the widely divergent opinions. Here is what they say:

will be a feverish activity in some lines of industry, but it is hardly possible that there would be any rise of wages. It is more probable that there will be more unemployment with a higher cost of living.

JOHN R. FORD,
Acknowledged authority on U. S. customs.

"The reversal of the current of foreign trade will deprive the United States of millions of dollars monthly in customs duties on European products. Imports from Europe for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, totaled more than $892,000,000 in value. This would practically disappear in the event of a general European war."

J. H. SELZ,
Large manufacturer of shoes and dealer in leather.

"The price of shoes goes up with those of wheat in war times. There is no surplus supply of leather. A war of any length or size will send up the cost of shoes and all leather goods. Every soldier on march needs new shoes every 30 days."

A. J. JULLIARD,
Noted New York dry goods jobber.

"A European war will be injurious to American business. At first Europe will dump its surplus dry goods and textiles on our markets and our industries will stop. That means men out of work. I can see no benefit to this country."

EDWARD CUDAHY,
President of the Cudahy Packing Company.

"Meat prices are expected to go up in the event of a general European war. Foreign markets would be demoralized and the export demand heavy. The present supply is entirely inadequate to meet the demands of both America and Europe and, therefore, Americans will have to pay more for their flesh food."

CLAUSS SPRECKELS,
President of the Federal Sugar Refining Co.

"A general European war would demoralize all business and we would be long in recovering from it. Sugar prices would go soaring. The best fields of Europe would be battlefields. Labor to harvest the crop in September would be in the armies and the world supply of sugar would be cut in half."

Servia will have no appreciable effect on the price of meat. It will be another question if more of the large European powers are involved. Should the war be prolonged and cover the continent, its effect would be to raise prices here.

CHARLES ROHE,
Largest New York Provision Packer

"A few lines may benefit, but great damage would occur to business. The first direct effect will be to send up meat prices. We already import from Argentina. Conditions will be chaotic and all suffer."

J. P. MORGAN, JR.,
Acknowledged Emperor of American Finance.

"It is idle to say that America will not be hurt by a general European war. The wholesale waste of capital involved in such a catastrophe would result in a distribution of losses the world over, but the loss here would be infinitesimal compared with the losses to the countries immediately involved."

Firing Off English Coast

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Sea firing was heard at Hull at dawn today. It was believed British and German scout ships were engaged. Experts thought the main German fleet was near the mouth of the river Elbe. From Margate came a report that tremendous firing was heard off that port.

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 5.—What was believed to be cannon firing was heard today in the direction of Seguin island. It has been the impression in Portland for several days that the British, German and French cruisers were hovering off the New England coast.

The German warships Karlsruhe and Dresden communicated with Portland by wireless Tuesday night, but refused to give their position. The French cruisers Conde and Descartes were thought to be the ships most likely to have met them.

Kaiser Calls on Italy

ROME, Aug. 5.—Formal notification from Berlin was received today that Great Britain and France were attacking Germany. Italy was called on to lend aid to the Germans. Hitler, Germany has asked for Italian help. Now it demands.
The cabinet was considering the matter. It is believed its decision will be to remain neutral.
The Italians do not consider that Germany has been attacked. They hold the Germans themselves are the aggressors. The triple alliance only requires, the powers concerned to help each other in defensive campaigns.

U. S. SENATOR ROBT. OWEN
Chairman of Committee on Banking and Finance.

"The country and the banks of the country were never in better condition than today. There is $1,500,000,000 in gold and silver in the treasury and in trust funds, $130,000,000 free gold and $150,000,000 in gold reserve. America can become the banker nation of the world."

FRANK A. VANDERLIP
President of the National City Bank, New York, Largest in the Country

"A general war would cause a general depression of all business. We lack ships to send our industrial and agricultural products abroad. That means a slowing down of manufacturing, and low prices for farm products."

SAMUEL GOMPERS,
President of the American Federation of Labor.

"Let us hope that the American worker will receive some profit from such a war—for his foreign brother will pay such terrible tolls in labor and in blood. The war itself is but the effort of effete royalty to drown the rising tide of protest of workers and divert their attention from their own ills."

GEORGE M. REYNOLDS
President of Continental and Commercial National Bank, Chicago, Second Largest in United States

"Measured by other countries, America is well off. We produce or manufacture everything we need. We do not depend upon other nations for our supply of anything; on the contrary, other countries must come to us. We will have the profit. Our labor will be employed and our mills running. In this way the war ought to benefit us."

JOSEPH SCHAFFNER
Large Manufacturer of Ready-made Clothing

"The price of clothing ought not to be affected.
"I do not subscribe to the opinion that America has everything to gain in this war. There is nothing to gain in any war. Foodstuffs are bound to increase in price."

JOHN G. SHEDD
President of Marshall Field Co., Largest Department Store in the World

"A general war, if declared, will have no appreciable effect on this season's business. A large proportion of the total bulk of imported merchandise is already in storage. Later purchases, however, may meet with more difficulty on account of the very high rate of exchange and ocean insurance."

REVIEWS ARMY

THE HAGUE, Aug. 5.—From the balcony of her palace yesterday Queen Wilhelmina reviewed her forces. She joined with the crowd in front of the palace in singing the national anthem.
Moonlight Excursion and Dancing on Steamer Inaquin on Lake Washington tonight, leaving Leechi at 8:15 and Madison park at 8:30. —Adv.

M. F. BACKUS,
President Seattle National Bank of Commerce.

"The immediate effect of the European war will be to the advantage of the United States. This country will find a ready market for products of every sort, as European markets will be paralyzed by the ruin of the war.
"But the ultimate effect will be that the whole world will share in the enormous loss which will be entailed.
"There will be a long period of suffering and want and misery following the war. The United States, as well as the other nations, must share in this economic waste."

YVES GUYOT
Recognized Authority on Finance and Former Minister of France

"America, of course, must profit by a general European war, but will such profit be more than temporary? Exhaustion will follow conflict, and Europe then will have lost a large part of her purchasing power. This reaction—the inability to buy—must be severely felt in America, and the subsequent loss might equal the prior gain."

J. OGDEN ARMOUR,
King of American Meat Packers.
