Anty Drudge Advises Mrs. Justwed

Mrs. Justwed—"Oh, I am so unhappy! This morning I was so tired and discouraged with the washing I had to do that I lost my temper and spoke crossly to John. I never would have done it if it hadn't been for that horrid old washing!"

Anty Drudge—"Never mind, child. Never worry over what is done, but make up your mind not to do it again. There is no need for you to lose your temper over your washing. You could have it all done and out on the line before noon, and be ready and bright for John when he comes home to dinner, if you would only use Fels-Naptha Soap. That is the only way to wash, anyhow."

enough to drive the smiles away from a woman's face to look at the heaps of dirty clothes that she must make sweet and clean every week. There is no work so hard. But there is one way open to her which, if she chooses, will make her work easier than she would believe possible. Fels-Naptha Soap will bring back the smiles. Give a woman a little encouragement and consideration, and you will find that it will be thoroughly appreciated and repaid.

Fels-Naptha Soap gives her encouragement, because it makes her work easy.

Better buy Fels-Naptha by the carton or box.

CYNTHIA GREY'S LETTERS AND ANSWERS

Q.—We would appreciate it very much if you would settle a dispute for us.
As you know, Miss Grey, the Norwegians from all over the world who possibly could, have gone back to Norway this year to celebrate their centennial anniversary as a free country.

Now you also know the condition in which Europe is at the present time, and that all ships are ordered home to their own respective countries. What we want to know is this:

We will make you a gold crown for $4.00 for which any other dentist would charge $10.00. Now, please remember this is not the same crown that is being advertised so extensively for from $3.50 to $5.00, but it is an extra heavy 22-K gold crown. In fact, it is so heavy that we can pin a 15-year guarantee to every receipted bill.

When Norway is not mixed in this coming year, would they order their ships home also, and if they sent out passenger steamers would they be interfered with by the bigger powers? Also, can the visitors of Norway return to their respective countries now?

Thanking you in advance, we are A. V. AND A. A.

A.—Up to date, Norway has remained neutral in the European struggle, and so long as she takes no part in it, her ships will be permitted in any port and will not be disturbed on the seas.

Q.—We are two nice young girls of 18 and are considered refined by people, as a general rule, but there are some very dignified ladies who have taken exception because we go motorcycle riding occasionally with two very nice boys. They speak disrespectfully of us and we feel badly.

Miss Grey, honestly, what is your opinion? TWO GIRLS.

A.—A refined girl remains refined under all conditions. There is no reason why she should not go motorcycling if she is properly attired, that is, if she wears a divided skirt and a shirt waist or sweater, if the weather is cool.

This sport has fallen into disrepute for women because so many girls have gone forth arrayed in unsuitable garb and acting in an un ladylike manner; but, of course, a refined girl knows better and does better.

Q.—I am 19 years old and have been married one year. My husband is 30 years old. He is good to me, but sometimes I do not know if he loves me or not, for one reason only. That is, when we walk out on the street together or are among the crowd, he will always notice the girls most attractive. If we are walking and pass a young neat-appearing girl, he will turn around two or three times to take a look at her, and then walk quietly again with me until he sees another girl who seems to fancy him.

I do not know how to call it a "habit" or what, but it makes me feel slighted and I think if he truly cared for me, he would not find interest enough to look at other girls in this way. Sometimes I feel like telling him to be a "man" and think better thoughts, and again I think I am wrong in thinking badly of him, because I love him.

Please advise me what to do and do it in the right way.

Anxious waiting your appreciated answer, I am AN UNHAPPY WIFE.

A.—Be thankful for the common sense that prompted you to keep silent to your husband about this little whim of yours. Your husband's interest in human nature is one of the leading factors that makes him attractive to you. If he should center all his admiration on you, you would soon tire of it—and him. Even though I am a woman, I find a sort of fascination in picking out the neatly dressed, nice-looking girls and women in the passing throng.

I think your greatest fault lies in your lack of interest in human nature. Follow your husband's eyes and try to see what he sees and comment on it, and I assure you you will soon strike up an interesting conversation.

If you are neat and well-behaved yourself, you need have no fear that your husband will ever turn from you. It is not always the nice-looking, attractive woman that can "pick out the door to a man's heart," but the one who is kind, generous and happy in the thought that your husband does love you.

Dear Miss Grey: Allow me to correct a slight error in your answer as soon as relations with my cousin's child is to me, etc.

Your first cousin's child is your first cousin, once removed, and your first cousin's children second cousins. This is only a matter of importance when involved in the question of the descent and distribution of property.

I wish to compliment you on the accuracy and care displayed in the answers to questions in your department. W. D. M.

A.—I am much obliged to you, both for the correction and the compliment.

Q.—Can you tell me if G. M. Anderson, who plays the part of "Broncho Billy" in the moving pictures, is married?

If "J. P. K." will not water the leaves of his roses, I think the mil-dew will leave. So many people water roses at night and that is what makes them mildew. I never have any trouble, so he could try it, anyway. A ROSE LOVER.

A.—Thank you for the suggestion. The moving picture actor, G. M. Anderson, is married.

Q.—Will you kindly give me the address of the "Gloria Tomato Club" of Oklahoma and tell me how it is necessary for one to qualify for membership?

Thanking you sincerely, I beg to remain ALICE.

A.—There is no Tomato club in Oklahoma; they are in Virginia.

North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas.

Write to the governor of any of the above states as to the necessary qualifications to become a member.

Gunmen Scored by Mayor Gill in Federal Probe

"The trouble has been for years that the big employers never thought the other side had any intelligence or reason," declared Mayor Hiram C. Gill today, testifying before the federal commission on industrial relations, which began a five-day hearing here at 10 o'clock this morning in the postoffice building.

Gill's testimony covered most of the morning session. Edward W. Olson, state labor commissioner, followed him on the stand. Of the nine commissioners, only four were present this morning. John R. Commons of Wisconsin acted as chairman in the temporary absence of Frank P. Walsh. The others present were John B. Lennon, Illinois; James O'Connell, Washington, D. C. and Austin B. Garrett.

Seattle due to the employers as to employes, and more so when men, acting for the employers, were allowed to carry guns.

Big Employers Interfere Gill said the teamsters' strike could have been settled much easier if the Employers' association, consisting of "big employers" hadn't interfered and would have allowed the team owners and their men to get together. Gill told the commission he dismissed 50 extra policemen provided at the request of the employers under Mayor Cotterill.

This, he said, hastened arbitration. Gill said he believed in compulsory arbitration, though that had never been necessary in Seattle. He cited the teamsters' strike as illustration where the mayor appointed a disinterested body to arbitrate the dispute. The mayor

Commission Will Recommend Laws for Settlement of Social Unrest in Country.

The federal commission on industrial relations was appointed by President Wilson to study the cause of the social unrest existing throughout the country, and to make recommendations to congress.

Against Gunmen Gill was questioned chiefly on strike conditions in Seattle. He declared himself emphatically against allowing employers to name the special policemen or deputy sheriffs in cases of strikes.

Employment Grant Asked about employment agencies, the mayor declared that the public employment office was hampered in its field because large employers, such as railroads, had agents who worked in collusion with private agencies to get a rake-off from the laborers. He did not believe in the initiative bill to abolish private offices, which were hampered by the audience when the question of segregated districts was discussed.

Information Wanted An appeal to the public for information concerning the Oil Fields of Clallam and Jefferson counties. There are thousands of acres of land which would be kept idle if there is a natural oil seepage coming to the surface in these counties, and if so, your information will assist in the development and upbuilding of the great natural resource.

AT THE THEATRES

THE MOORE Welcome home again, Guy! Crowded to the doors, the old pals and friends of Guy Bates Post welcomed him back to his home town last night at the Moore. Post spent them away from the theatre thoroughly convinced that he had "arrived."

Richard Walton Tully deserves a good deal of credit for giving to Post, and also to the dramatic world, the wonderful story of "Omar, the Tentmaker."

The music incidental to the play, the brilliant stage settings, the soft lighting effects, and the general excellence of Post and his company make the production one of the greatest plays the Moore has offered to its patrons since the passing of "Ben Hur."

At the end of the second act the audience gave Post an ovation that lasted fully five minutes. He did not respond to any certain calls.

"Omar, the Tentmaker" will stay all week, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday. Evening performances begin at 8, matinees at 2.

THE METROPOLITAN Miss Alice Flemming opened a week's engagement at the Metropolitan theatre last night in "A Woman's Way," the clever play in which Blanche Bates was specially the Moore two years ago.

Miss Flemming was especially good in the role of the wife. Throughout the course of the play, which deals with the domestic side of life, her woman's wit tells her how to keep her husband and defeat the other women.
