

Teething time is hard enough on the babies, without having to be neglected, too. But what is a busy, tired woman to do? She has so much work she must do, that the baby must be left to cry and fret until it is done. Every mother knows how hard it is to want to comfort the little dears, and not have the time to do it.

But babies can be kept happy and mothers rested and well if women will use the easy-way soap to help them with their housework. Fels-Naptha is the easy-way soap, because it is the cool-water, no-hard-rubbing soap. It cleans everything it touches, dissolves dirt, takes out stains, removes grease; and all this in cool or lukewarm water.

Anty Drudge Tells How to Help Baby

Mrs. Youngmother—"Oh, Anty Drudge, I am so tired and nervous! Baby has been crying for half an hour, and I am in the midst of my washing, and can't take her up to stop her. I am nearly disgusted with this hot kitchen, and I think it makes her feel sick, too."

Anty Drudge—"Give me the baby, and let me get her out of this steaming, sultry, hot place. I will find her while you finish your wash. Then you come sit down while I tell you how in the future you can avoid anything like this by using Fels-Naptha Soap."

Better buy Fels-Naptha by the carton or box.

Follow the directions on the Red and Green Wrapper.

FELS & CO., PHILADELPHIA

Cynthia Grey's LETTERS

Q.—I have never written to you and have also never observed in case similar to mine in your columns. There is a certain party in this city that I love, and the worst of it, he doesn't know it. I see him occasionally and he talks in a friendly manner, but I never seem to be able to attain the position of a real friend of his. He is a good, clean sort of a chap, a wholesome conversationalist, and one you would like to have as a true friend. It is not a case of "love at first sight," as I have known him to speak to, for a number of years; but recently he had an awakening. How could I gain to know him so we could be true friends?

A.—If you have not already done so, invite several of your best young men and women friends out some evening and ask them to join the party. If some of his friends are yours, also, be sure to invite them.

Having done this, and failed to establish any firm footing on the ground of friendship, there is nothing else to do but submit to the inevitable, as you cannot take the initiative.

Q.—I use coal for cooking and cannot keep my oven from burning on the bottom. Can you tell me any way to remedy this? C. D.

A.—Place a sheet of asbestos on the bottom of the oven.

Q.—What region on the earth has the greatest annual rainfall, and what city has the highest temperature? W.

A.—Cherrapongee, in Southwestern Assam, has an annual average rainfall of 610 inches. It is the wettest place in the world. Calcutta has a mean annual temperature of 82.4, the highest of which any record is kept.

Q.—I am 18 years old and have gone with a young man several years. I have never been married and I love him dearly. We are not engaged, and he has not yet asked me to marry him. Since my graduation from high school in another city, I have corresponded with several of my classmates (boys); but our letters are nothing more than friendly. The man I go with gets furious every time he knows of my writing to these boys or receiving a letter from them and insists that I drop this correspondence. Do you think it is right for me to keep it up? NOT ENGAGED.

Well, I should say so. No girl should give any man the right to dictate to her in this matter, engaged or not engaged, married or unmarried. A person who may not communicate with any one without the consent of another is a slave to that other; and the fact is not changed by any formula repeated by a preacher or justice of the peace.

A man who is fit to enter into relations as intimate as those of marriage with a woman, certainly ought to have as much respect for her as he would have for an office boy or a scrubwoman, whose correspondence he would not think of censoring or supervising.

Q.—I am a young woman, 24 years old, and am teaching school at the present time. I am deeply interested in my work; but my poor mother thinks I ought to pay more attention to men, and says I am losing chances every day. A number of my friends also seem to think I am too particular about whom I go with.

Two young men have called on me for about three years; but I care for neither except as friends, and have made this plain to both of them. So they just take me out occasionally. Is it right for me to accept their attentions when I feel I can never marry either? I have been told it is not a good thing to go with men so long without serious thoughts of the future.

SCHOOL-MARM.

A.—As long as the young men understand their position and yours, it is right. There is always safety in numbers, and you may have as many impartial friends and go with them as you like, so long as you are frank. Be as particular as you like. You still have time enough to think of men in a serious way.

Q.—Please print formula for making the salt beads, which are so popular. BUNCH OF GIRLS.

A.—Take 1 cup fine table salt and heat it very hot. Dissolve 1/2 cup cornstarch in 1/2 cup water. With the cornstarch solution mix the coloring matter, which may be bluing, Easter egg dye or red ink for salmon pink. To make black beads, use black ink.

Remove the salt from the fire, and add the colored mixture. Work with the hands into a smooth dough. Wrap it in a damp cloth and break off pieces of equal size, molding them into beads.

String beads on hatpin, a knitting needle, or a fine wire, and dry several days. They shrink in drying. To polish, dip the beads in sweet oil and rub with a bit of flannel.

String with steel or gilt beads between the colored ones. Pure white beads alternated with gilt beads are pretty.

Some girls make several strings of beads of various colors to match or contrast with different frocks. To make mottled beads, take two portions of paste with contrasting dyes; for instance, red and blue, then knead pastes together before molding beads.

RAILROADS TO ASK REPEAL OF SAFETY FULL-CREW LAW

Editor The Star: I noticed in reading an article in the Tacoma Tribune of December 26, by Mr. W. C. Albee, superintendent of the N. P. railroad, urging the uselessness of the full crew law passed by the legislature in 1911, that there were one or two statements that were not perfectly clear.

At the time the full crew law was put into effect, work was plentiful and there was no occasion to pass a bill of this kind to create jobs for the unemployed, as he says was done. This bill was passed to compel the railroads to have sufficient crew to properly handle long trains.

In many cases short crews were unable to properly man the trains, even under the best circumstances, to say nothing of bad weather, fog and breakdowns. The train crew, being held responsible for wrecks, were anxious to have sufficient help to be able to absolutely guard both ends of the train against wreck.

The whole question, from the railroad's viewpoint, seems to be whether to save $100,000 yearly or permit the appalling loss of life common before the passage of the full crew law. The railroads naturally want to avoid this expenditure for salaries. It is a cash outlay. Loss of lives is paid for by the insurance companies.

I believe the senators and representatives of Washington are fair minded enough to realize the advantage derived from the operation of this bill during the last three years, and will be satisfied to let the bill stand as it is.

MARK FLETCHER, Chairman Railroad Brotherhood's Legislative Board.

COTTON LEAVES

ESCAPES FROM SPEEDING TRAIN

Sam Levikow, being brought by Detective James Doom from St. Joseph, Mo., to face a charge of robbing the store of D. B. McBride & Co. of woollens valued at $2,000, last November, escaped from the train Monday morning as it was leaving Auburn.

Levikow asked permission of his guard to go to the lavatory. He entered and locked the door, then escaped from the window while the train was moving rapidly.

Police from the Georgetown station are searching for him.

W. S. Hammond

ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan. 4.—There will be no social frills to the new democratic administration in Minnesota. The official hall with which former governors opened their administrations will be omitted. The new executive, W. S. Hammond, is a bachelor, and the "executive mansion" is just an unpretentious bachelor suite in a downtown hotel.

The new governor represented Minnesota in Congress for several years.

Service at Queen Anne Congregational church conducted by candlelight.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Don't stay gray! Nobody can tell when you darken gray, faded hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully dark, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.

G. A. Magnus Joins the Big Army of Regal Boosters

And here's how it happened: "I certainly want to join your band of boosters, for the nine teeth that you extracted for me did not hurt a bit. I have had teeth extracted by dentists who told me that they would not hurt, but they certainly did hurt, so I was very skeptical when you said that you would not hurt, but you certainly did prove to me that you can deliver painless dentistry."

"G. A. MAGNUS, "719 North 32nd Street, City."
