

AGED LAWYER NOW FACING DISBARMENT

After 46 years of law practice, 27 of which have been spent in Seattle, John H. Allen, 69, a well-known attorney here and father of two prominent attorneys, faces disbarment proceedings.

He has been cited by Judge Albertson to appear next Thursday to answer to the complaint filed against him by W. G. McLaren, counsel for the Seattle Bar association. He is charged with moral turpitude and corruption in handling the finances of clients.

A vigorous, active man is Allen for all of his nearly three score years and ten. His hair is white—and that is about all the outward evidence of age.

Recently, while in Mexico, he married for the second time. His wife is reputed to be enormously wealthy.

Walter B. Allen and Jay C. Allen, well-known members of the Seattle bar, are his sons.

Allen is accused on three separate counts. In handling the estate of Mrs. Anna Victor, in 1913, he is accused of failing to account for $500 and for selling to an alleged fictitious John J. McDonald property worth $1,250 for $367.75.

The second count accuses Allen of appropriating $142 he had collected on notes turned over to him for collection by Mrs. Luella P. Kennedy in 1908.

On the third count, Allen is accused of high financing in the estate of R. J. English, of which he was appointed administrator. The estate was valued at $7,000. Suit against it was brought by one Ward for $2,000, which was carried to the supreme court on appeal.

In the meantime, Allen succeeded in getting Florence Simmons and C. F. Magaha, heirs of the deceased, to give him notes for $2,750, and, on the representation that the estate was unincumbered, he got another client to cash the notes for him. Later the heirs obtained judgment against Allen for $1,197.96.

BON HAS FINE WINDOW SHOW

Although the fashion show does not begin until next week, almost all the window displays are already in place.

Two city blocks of beautifully decorated show-windows show new spring fashions at the Bon Marche. A most striking window in "Belgian blue" features a lovely "Belgian blue" taffeta frock.

And, by the way, we're told that taffeta—not the harsh, rustling taffeta of yesterday—but a soft taffeta, with a beautiful sheen—will be one of the "hit" fabrics for spring.

To wear with the frock of Belgian blue, which shows a very fiery flared skirt—is a stunning hat of the same shade with delicate sprays of Belgian blue parasol.

A "Putty" Color Scheme. A strikingly picturesque hat, in this same shade of Belgian blue, is crocheted of silk—and is said to be immensely popular later in the season, or for those who are journeying to Southern climes.

In the "putty" shade window—which has the fetching background of "putty-colored" roses—is a handsome suit in this very popular shade.

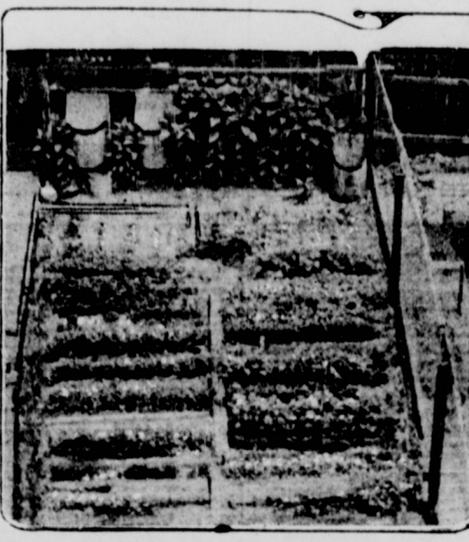

It has a flared skirt of course, and is strikingly embroidered in Belgian blue—a shade which harmonizes with it beautifully. The handsome "putty" shade hat to match is ornamented with two immense sprays of paradise feathers, placed opposite to each other.

There are the smartest of black patent leather pumps with putty-colored tops to wear with this costume.

"Battleship gray" is another shade that basks in the smile of fashion. And in the "battleship gray" window is a captivating poplin suit in this shade.

"Battleship Gray" Popular. Made with a fully flared skirt and the shortest of short jackets, it is without a doubt very stunning. A simple gray hat worn with this suit—with the necessary touch of color in a single pink rose. Silken fabrics seem to be borrowed from the days of our great-grandmothers. For there are the loveliest of soft taffetas with gay-colored flowers blooming bravely over their lustrous white backgrounds.

THE BACKYARD GARDEN

Even a Small Plot is Worth While

CHAPTER II. PLANNING THE GARDEN. The fun the beginner gets in planning his garden is only rivaled by the fun of the experienced gardener. Here is the chance to lay out on paper the spring and summer campaign in the back yard, to figure and plan so that every inch of space is utilized.

Four things should be considered at the start in making the home garden. They are, a sufficient yield to supply the family, succession of crops, ease and cheapness of cultivation, and maintenance of the fertility of the plot for the garden of next year and the year after.

Always sow in rows with the taller and more hardier plants at the north. Growing vegetables in beds is usually more work than the results are worth.

A back yard, 60x100 feet, will supply the average family with small vegetables in plenty, and with a quick succession of crops and judicious handling may also furnish some of the potatoes and cabbage required for the winter.

With the corn and other tall things on the north side, place tomatoes, eggplant and like plants adjoining them, cabbage crops the next in line and at the farthest side the root crops, such as potatoes. Keep crops of a like kind together. If rows are to be long enough for more than one vegetable a row containing parsnips, salsify and late carrots would form a good combination.

Thousands Pay Homage to Puget Sound Turkey

Salmon Day Observed in Various Ways Throughout Nation; Lister Is Banqueted.

The nation joined with Seattle yesterday in the celebration of Salmon day, with the result that thousands of pounds of the toothsome "Puget sound turkey" were consumed, with gastronomic delight and much advertising value.

Salmon in a hundred different forms, from just plain salmon to salmon "imbales," whatever they are, was served in the hotels, on steamboats, dining cars and in clubs of the country, and thousands upon thousands of cans of the famous Puget sound produce were displayed in show windows over the land.

Locally, there was a splendid display of salmon and salmon products at the Chamber of Commerce, installed by Col. H. B. Hardt, and salmon was featured at the Chamber of Commerce lunch at the Butler grill.

Railroad offices, groceries and other business houses featured the fish by elaborate window displays, and the Northern Pacific Co. sent a splendid float over the city with large salmon frozen in blocks of ice.

Gov. Lister, Mayor Gill, D. N. McIntyre, deputy commissioner of fisheries for British Columbia, and others were guests and speakers at the banquet at the Washington hotel last night, tendered Puget Sound salmon pickers by the Transportation club.

Representations were sent to Gen. Villa today urging the release of 500 prisoners, who have been imprisoned in Mexico City.

Letters To Cynthia Grey

Q.—I also bring my trouble to you. I have two children of 9 months and 5 years and my husband likes to go out nights with the boys and drink. He is kind to me and provides for us. I have no clothes for myself and of course, when it comes to that, the money is gone, for you know a man working for wages can't drink and keep a family.

Q.—I am a young girl who lives in a small town. And, oh, what a miserable, lonely life I must lead! I am so unhappy and blue. No, I am not poor—we have a nice home and I suppose I should not complain, because of the girls who are worse off than I am, but I feel like I will go wild if something doesn't happen that will break this awful monotony.
