GIRLS! GIRLS, AND ALL OF 'EM PERFECT SEWARD GOES JOY-MAD AT THE BIG NEWS

"Ziegfeld's Follies" proved a surprise—a rich, juicy, exhilarating surprise—when it opened a week's engagement at the Metropolitan theatre Sunday night. It was everything the press agent said it was, and a good deal more.

The fellow in the fourth row center on the aisle seat started to count the girls on the stage. He counted 50 or 60. But Bert Williams, Leon Errol, Ed Wynne, or maybe it was Arthur Deagan, came in with some side splitting stuff and made him lose count.

But there is this much to be said about 'em—every one of those girls is a peach.

There's never been such a galaxy of beauty assembled on one stage in Seattle before, according to the unanimous opinion of all the baldheads and the other experts on the subject who foregathered in the smoking room between the acts.

There was one scene where Bert Williams, the blackface comedian, and Leon Errol, a rare funmaker himself, sit on a suspended beam (representing the 1300th floor in the construction of a 1600-story skyscraper), and they toss a package of chuckles into the crowd at a speed that would make a chronic dyspeptic look like Happy Hooligan.

There's not even a pretense of a plot. It's just a succession of 14 scenes—all rich to the minutest detail, and all meant to feast the eye and tickle your funny bone. It's a real Broadway show.

MOORE Daphne Pollard, Seattle's queen of the Podlatch in 1911, is a favorite with Seattle playgoers. The point was settled when she appeared on the stage at the Moore theatre Sunday evening in "The Candy Shop."

"The Candy Shop" is far more classy than it was when here several months ago. It has more lively music, more lively girls and prettier, and a lot of keener dances. William Rock, the comedian, is good—he is better than good. He and Maude Fulton are the principals in a dazzling whirl of fun, music and beauty. There are a host of other characters, each capable in his part, who deserve comment. But Daphne Pollard is bound to carry off the honors of the week. She has a new song, "When It's Night Time Down in Dixie Land." You'll be whistling it before the end of the week.

Friday evening, the show will be under the management of German-Austria Relief society. Receipts on that night will go into the society's war relief fund. Special songs are being rehearsed by the company for that night, and other organizations are planning to aid, by providing box parties.

ORPHEUM For regular Orpheum fans, it will be sufficient to say that Emma Carus is back again. But for those who have never seen Emma it may be well to announce that she's the girl who dances differently from anybody else and sings differently—and gets away with it—and you laugh differently, and that the chief difference lies in the increased volume. If your arm had just been cut off you couldn't help laughing at Emma.

There's a good piano-singing act in which appear Stella Tracy, Victor Stone and Ethel Ponce.

Harry Cooper, as "The Mail Carrier," is a good comedian, and he sings well. Charles Henderson is a capable "second" in springing a lot of titterish chatter.

Two Orientals in Bryant Cheerbert's "Marvelous Manchurians," permit themselves to be swung around in midair by their quenees, and the entire troupe are excellent tumblers.

The "Two Carillons" offer a good acrobatic stunt. Lee and Cranston have some good songs and LeNoir's mannikins complete the bill.

MOTORMAN IS FATALLY SHOT BY HOLDUP MAN

SAN FRANCISCO, April 12.—Shot in the head and abdomen by a street car bandit, Motorman Gorman, of the South San Francisco line of the United Railroads, is believed today to be dying at the South San Francisco hospital.

The holdup occurred at the Twelve Mile house, shortly after midnight.

While the robber was taking $14 from Conductor Garbo, the motorman rushed to his assistance.

The bandit opened fire. In spite of his wounds Gorman wrestled the revolver from the outlaw and shot at him three times as he fled.

Study this diagram and note the principal nerves that branch off from the spine to the different organs of the body, and at once it will be seen how the different organs can be stimulated by working over these nerve centers. Ninety per cent of the diseases known to mankind are caused by nerve pressure.

Overwork, mental or physical, always results in contractions, tensions, stiffness, etc., in the neck and along the spine. This is especially true of brain workers, and a disturbance in the caliber of the blood vessels in the brain follows in their case.

There must be no pressure on nerves from their origin in the brain to their ending in the various organs and parts of the body.

Some of the diseases that Doctor Lathrop successfully treats are: Asthma, Heart Trouble, Dyspepsia, La Grippe, Female Trouble, Constipation, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Liver Trouble, Rheumatism, Appendicitis, Headaches, Paralysis, Insomnia, Kidney Trouble and Stomach Trouble.
