COMMITTEE DISCUSSES BILLBOARDS

Councilman Hanna's ordinance taxing and regulating billboards met with strenuous opposition Monday when it came before a joint meeting of the public safety and the franchise committees.

The lobby was crowded with Foster & Kleiser men and others opposed to the Hanna bill.

Councilman Hanna said he didn't think it fair that an organization doing a gross business of $158,000 annually should pay only $1,117 taxes. He contended this was not a just revenue, and that the company's assessed valuation is not a fair one.

Fred Foster, member of the firm, declared the bill would put the company out of business.

He says the company last year had a net payroll of $76,000, and paid to owners of vacant lots for billboard rental $22,000, besides $28,000 for material.

"We pay no commissions, no brokerage," he said. "We have developed a number of famous artists in the sign painting business in Seattle."

Carl J. Gould, representing the Fine Arts association, argued against the billboards.

Speakers for them included Nathan Eckstein, of the Schwabacher Hardware Co., Prof. Agnew, of the university, representing the Ad club, and Joseph Blithen.

After an hour's discussion the meeting adjourned to Wednesday morning, with no final action taken.

"Over the Hills to the"—Not the Poor House, But Million-Dollar Printers' Home

WONDERFUL INSTITUTION MAINTAINED AMID COLORADO'S MOUNTAINS FOR AGED, SICK OR DISABLED MEMBERS OF INTERNATIONAL TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION; MEMBERS PAY SHARE OF MAINTENANCE MONTHLY

Million dollar home for printers. Huge institution maintained at Colorado Springs, Col., by the International Typographical union for benefit of its aged, sick or disabled members.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 9.—The International Typographical union, which holds its 61st session in this city August 9 to 14, has had unstinted praise and commendation from men in all walks of life for its high ideals and beneficent activities.

It has been classed as unionism with a mission for the welfare of its members; trades unionism with human interest in its aged, sick and infirm.

Foremost in the heart of the union printer is his MILLION DOLLAR HOME IN COLORADO SPRINGS, COL., the only institution of its kind in the world.

Every month he pays his pro rata for the maintenance of its home and the comforts of its residents.

He knows that there's no "over the hills to the poorhouse" for him should disability, sickness or old age swing the red lantern.

Twenty-five years ago an unconditional gift of $10,000 to the union from George W. Childs and A. J. Drexel formed the nest egg of the home.

The main building was completed in 1892 and was later followed by a hospital annex, library addition, laundry, greenhouses, lawns, superintendent's cottage and barns. Then a tuberculosis pavilion was added to the sanitarium.

The home is on an 80-acre tract which was donated by the citizens of Colorado Springs.

The property has a valuation of $1,000,000. The I. T. U. has spent $1,250,000 in building and maintaining the home.

The I. T. U. pays a pension of $1 per week to those members who have reached the age of 60 and who are no longer able to continue active work.

In the last seven years the money in the pension fund totaled $1,949,450.68; the amount paid to pensioners in that time was $1,271,434.44.

In the last three years $1,000,000 has been handled for the mortuary benefit fund.

In its campaign for clean work shops and wholesome and sanitary conditions for the worker, the I. T. U. has brought the death rate down to 11.7 per 1,000.

STAR FOLK HAVE BIG TIME SUNDAY

It was SOME picnic.

aching bone and muscle Monday testify to the thoro enjoyment of The Star bunch who picknicked at Chaucery Wright's summer home at Miller's beach Sunday. About 100 were present.

The party of editors, reporters, printers, pressmen, advertising and circulation men, and their wives and sweethearts left The Star office at 10 a. m. in autos—and a couple of auto trucks.

The trucks were laden with everything from soup to nuts and ice cream and watermelon, and at the beach, the clam diggers got busy and topped off a day's round of feasts and sports with some of the sound's choicest shell-fish.

"Horseshoe" throwing vied with baseball for the favorite sport feature. The ladies' races proved quite exciting, and an improvised platform was mustered for dancers and rope skippers. Also for a boxing match or two and a bit of wrestling.

Chauncey Wright's graphophone furnished the music.

GOD A LOCAL ISSUE? RELIGION IS NOT A REQUISITE FOR GOOD CITIZENSHIP—HERBERT QUICK

By Herbert Quick

Not very long ago Mr. Joseph Epstein of Baltimore surprised an audience addressed by him at the City club by including religion among the requisites for good citizenship.

A man cannot be a good citizen, said this good citizen, unless he has a religion.

No particular religion is necessary, said Mr. Epstein, but some religion.

Well, then, will any religion do? The old Aetex sacrificed thousands of people on their teacalls, cutting out the beating hearts and placing them still throbbing in the altars of their gods.

These men were sincere believers in this bloody faith; but were they good citizens?

Let us take cases nearer home. Was the Catholic duke of Alva, who executed thousands of Dutch, regarded as heretic, a good citizen? Was the Protestant Maurice of Nassau, who executed thousands of other Dutch because they held what he called heretical views on infant baptism, a good citizen? Was David Hume, whose character was irreproachable, or Thomas Paine, who helped so much to found the government of the United States, or even Robert G. Ingersoll, who did much to humanize the ethics of even the Catholic churches—were these men bad citizens?

Few people will say that the religious men above mentioned were good citizens, or that those called irreligious were bad citizens.

On the other hand, Jesus was called irreligious by those who crucified him and was put to death as a bad citizen.

It is possible for the most fervent religionist to be the worst of citizens, and for the skeptic, like Benjamin Franklin, to be a good citizen.

One of Russia's greatest writers, Dostoevsky, said that in order for a man to be saved, it was necessary for him to believe in the Russian god.

Religion to him was a matter of

How it Works Out

If you can't look at some simple diagram or design and then copy it from memory you are not normal, there is something wrong with your mental apparatus.

And it is defects of the brain that cause drunkenness and not the other way about.

The laboratory has examined hundreds of chronic alcoholics and has not found one where there was not at least signs of inherited mental weakness, epilepsy, manic depressive insanity or feeble-mindedness, dementia praecox or first indications of insanity.

The laboratory physicians used a visual memory test. In the accompanying illustration the inability of the various classes of defectives properly to draw a simple form from memory is shown.
