ENGLAND'S NEW HOME SECRETARY, HON. HERBERT SAMUEL, IS A JEW

LONDON, Feb. 18.—For the first time in England's history a professing Jew has been made home secretary of state!

He is Herbert Louis Samuel, who has just taken that office as successor to Sir John Simon.

While Disraeli became premier, he nevertheless was a member of the Church of England. But Samuel still is a strict follower of the Jewish faith.

While postmaster general of England two years ago, Herbert Samuel made an extensive tour of this country.

As home secretary he will have great power in England, being, in fact, the most direct connecting link between King George and the English people.
