

GIANTS NEED .300 SLUGGER TO STRENGTHEN CLUB

Washington Crew Would Be Well Received Back East

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES
BY THE SPORTS EDITOR

Seven players graduated from the Northwestern league last season to the big leagues, and seven of these fortunate diamond pastimers are still eating T-bone steaks at the expense of the big moguls. The unfortunate quartet to receive but a sip of the big league Java are "Homer" Haworth; Ray Kramer, who has been farmed out by the Giants to the Rochester club of the International league; Pat Callahan, who will again perform in the Northwestern league as a member of the Vancouver club, and "Peggy" Barth, who died a few months ago.

Of the seven who are still sticking in the coveted circle, good reports are common, and there is every indication that they will remain for the balance of the season.

Jack Smith, Seattle outfielder, and Harry Brottem, Vancouver catcher, are with the St. Louis Cardinals, and both are making good. Smith is being played in the outfield right along, while Brottem is acting as understudy to Frank Snyder, the catching sensation of the big leagues.

Kenneth Williams and McKeenry have both made good with Cincinnati to such an extent their jobs are assured. Williams has been stinging the ball hard and fielding up to form, while McKeenry demonstrated the other day that he possesses enough stuff in his long right wing to baffle the best of the hitting gentry in the National league.

Both Walter Mails and Ira Colwell are still wearing Brooklyn spangles. According to reports emanating from the Bridge City, they are in good standing, and apt to be shunted into a game any time.

George Kelly is doing bench duty for the Giants, but the tall silver has made a good impression on the crowd and the minute any of his regulars show any weakness Kelly will be rushed in to take his place.

With so many young players making good from this league, it is safe to predict that the eyes of the major league scouts will be strongly focused on the Northwestern league the coming season.

The hitting ability of "Dutch" Reuther makes his appointment to the first base position on the Indian club assume rosy prospects. Reuther is a left-hander and fairly fast. With the proper amount of coaching and patience in the fielding end, the chances are he can be developed into a first-class guard.

BAUM DISAPPOINTED AT POOR OPENING
PORTLAND, Ore., April 21.—President A. T. Baum, of the Pacific Coast league, is en route to San Francisco today, after witnessing the somewhat inauspicious opening of the baseball season on the home grounds here. He was disappointed because rain prevented the opening game Tuesday, and the postponement until Wednesday cut down the attendance figures. The official attendance was 8,851.

LEONARD IS VICTOR
NEW YORK, April 21.—Phil Bloom proved no match for Benny Leonard in their ten-round bout here last night. Leonard outboxed and outgeneraled his opponent at all stages.

HILL'S HITS
Pat Eastley cracked the apple for three swats out of four opportunities. Pretty good for an old man, eh?

FRANK GUIGNI AND "HAP" MORSE
Seven more days, Hip, hurrah! Our premier third sacker kicked the pill on three occasions. Quick Swatson, the needle.

BENNY KAUFF GOT THREE HITS
President Wilson got a pretty good idea of the European war by watching Washington mutilate the Yanks, 12 to 4.

East Has Kindly Words for Washington Crew and Stanford as Well

Just what the East has been taught to think of the Pacific coast crews is shown by a recent article in the New York Mail, which was written by James P. Sinnott, one of the best sporting authorities in the United States. The mention follows: "News from the Pacific coast that both Washington State and Leland Stanford may send crews to Poughkeepsie this year for the intercollegiate regatta will be enthusiastically received in the East. The Far Westerners won thousands of followers this side of the Mississippi by their good sportsmanship and grit in overcoming obstacles on their several trips to the big Hudson river rowing classic. "The wonderful showing of Washington last year will never be forgotten by those who witnessed the big race. With anything like an even break in luck the Pacific coast oarsmen would have won. "The Washington lads have again won the championship of the Western coast. They defeated Leland Stanford not long ago. Evidently the Stanford lads are not over-satisfied with the result when they contemplate coming to Poughkeepsie to row. "Both crews from the sunset land will find a warm welcome awaiting them if they make the trip. The non-partisan spectators will be with them to a man. And many an alumnus will find himself rooting in secret for the Pacific coast boys against his alma mater. For they have the pluck that cannot fail to win, and hold the admiration of every red-blooded man."

As Usual, Both Boxers Say They Are Confident

All is set for the battle to be staged by Billy Weeks and Sid Mitchell tonight at the Elks club. This is the third meeting of these boys and each has said he will make an earnest endeavor to clean up at the other fellow's expense. Frankie Sullivan of Los Angeles, who, if anything like his namesake, is a tough one, will take on Leo Houck, the local featherweight. Charley Givens and Charley Davison will also tango in the feather class. Steve Reynolds, the fire-eating middleweight, takes on a ship-aboy lad named Roy Lee. Bert Forbes and Barney Williams are also matched. They are feather.

Here's a League That's Not Controlled by O. B.

Iron bars and prison walls may shut them off from the other world, but neither can block off America's national pastime from the inmates of Charleston prison, Massachusetts.

Baseball grips 85 per cent of the inmates, and for good. Outside the fact that there is a little crampedness in the outfield, the prison yard offers a splendid playing ground. The infield is a corker. Each day it is the duty of one man to gather up the pebbles, stones or debris and roll the infield, with the result it presents a smooth, velvety surface.

TO HONOR HURLEY WHEN HE ARRIVES

The Seattle Baseball Boosters' club will meet Monday at its headquarters and devise plans for holding a "Bill Hurley day," when that popular player has his Great Falls aggregation here to battle Seattle on May 1 to 7.

It is only fitting that some recognition be given Hurley's entrance as a club manager.

Who said Giants? Charley Schmutz, the handsome heaver of the Seattle club, sure looks like a Jess Willard alongside of Manager Tealey Raymond. Whenever size is mentioned, however, Tealey comes back with the time-worn quotation: "Good goods come in small packages."

RUSS HALL AFTER THREE PLAYERS

PORTLAND, April 21.—After conducting a still hunt for two pitchers and an infielder among the squads of the Beavers and the Bees here, Manager Russ Hall, of the Tacoma Tigers, returned to Tacoma today, the result of his mission unannounced. Hall said 19 players are still striving for places on his team. Among them are eight pitchers, but Hall wants two more candidates for the slab, so he probably figures to drop five of his present bunch of "hopes."

Hitting Strength Needed to Bolster Up Seattle's Only Weak Spot, Says Ed

More and more each day it becomes apparent that the Seattle Giants need a little infusion of batting strength. The team is weak at bat. Admitting that the local squad has the strongest pitching staff in the league, of what avail will it be if the batters do not make runs for the hurlers? A game can't be won without some slab artists to back up the twirler. Alexander or Johnson might pitch shutout games and not be able to win should the rest of their team fail to put over a run. The thing sizes up about like this:

from the outfield and given the utility assignment. He is more capable than any other member of the team to fill this role. That would give us a hard-hitting outfielder of experience, "Hunk" Shaw, a vet, who can be depended upon, altho he hasn't hit .300 for several seasons, and Bill Cunningham, who gives much promise. The outer breastworks look too dangerously weak, with two young fellows who have yet to be put to the acid test, frisking around in quest of their trap. The player turned over by St. Louis, was just the man the Giants needed, but Dugdale has received word that he will not be on hand.

GUESSING NUMBER IS POPULAR SPORT

The desk of The Star's sporting editor is piled high with fan's guesses as to how many persons will pay admission to Dugdale park on opening day next Thursday.

A letter received this morning from the "Rooters of the Sterling Hat Co." is particularly worth mentioning. Twenty employes of the firm have sent in their guesses. They range from Mayers' 4,000 to 16,180, Miss O'Keefe's guess. It's only six more days until the season opens. Get busy.

GUESS OPENING ATTENDANCE AND GET SEASON PASS

There are two season tickets for all games played by Northwestern league teams at Dugdale park, to be given away by The Star. How many fans will pay admission to the opening game? That's the question. For the fan—or fannette—that sends The Star the nearest correct figure before 6 o'clock on April 25, President Dugdale will donate a season ticket for two. For the one sending in the second nearest correct figure, Dug will kick thru with a solitary pass for the season. Get busy now if you want to see the opening game and every other this season as the guest of Dugdale and The Star. Mail your letters to the sport editor of The Star.

OREGON GOLF TITLE MATCHES IN JUNE

PORTLAND, Ore., April 21.—The state championship golf tournament will be played on the Waverly course during Rose Festival week, early in June. The qualifying rounds of the men's championship will be played Monday, June 5, and the finals Saturday, June 10. The women's qualifying rounds occur Tuesday and the finals Friday. Benny Kauff says his name is pronounced "Cowl," not "Cough."
