BIG MEN OF ALASKA

He's Built a Thousand Miles of Highway in the North—Col. Richardson Knows the Travel Courses of Alaska as a Surgeon Knows the Arteries and Bones of the Human Body

By Jack Jungmeyer

Greatly hated and greatly admired—a man of many friends and many enemies!

Such is the record Col. W. P. Richardson has made as president of the Alaska road commission during the past ten years.

He has actively directed the construction of approximately 1,000 miles of highway, 580 miles of sled roads and 2,250 miles of trail through the Northwest territory.

In addition to this, Col. Richardson investigated all the early Alaskan railroad projects for the government, and built all the army posts, beginning at Circle City, where he was sent as lieutenant of a company in '97.

Big, bluff, uncompromising, it was his first job to maintain law on the Yukon during the days when men were apt to regard the law as a hindrance and handicap in the battle for riches.

He did that with a directness and unflinching vigilance that gave pause to potential outlaws and won him the plaudits of the pioneer majority.

Quick to identify himself with the important task of constructing roads from camp to river transportation and mining centers, Col. Richardson has won a place among the big men of Alaska by making "the pitiless path of the musher" less heart-breaking.

How thoroughly he had digested the problem of highways in the North was illustrated in 1906, when he met J. L. McPherson, engineer in charge of the Seward-Fairbanks rail route, at a critical time in the government project, and in ten minutes detailed to him the major problems of Alaskan transportation.

He knows the natural travel courses of Alaska as a surgeon knows the arteries and bones of the human body.

The son-of-a-gun's tribute to him is that Col. Richardson is making the land worth while to the man who's holding on to what his hero has conquered.

TRIES TO KILL GIRL

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., April 21.—Following a quarrel over money matters, Alfred L. Sharpe, formerly collector of customs at El Paso, Tex., last night shot and seriously wounded his 18-year-old daughter, Holland, and then killed himself. The girl has a slight chance for recovery.

CIRCUIT OPENS OFFICES HERE

Seattle Becomes Northwest Headquarters for Vaudeville

SEND ACTS FROM HERE

Seattle will soon become the Northwest headquarters for the Western Vaudeville Managers' association, one of the largest and most powerful theatrical organizations in the United States, as a result of a visit here yesterday of K. C. Meagher, assistant general manager.

The association will open an office here in the immediate future, and will send a personal representative to Seattle to take charge of its affairs.

Manager Meagher said yesterday that Seattle will be made the distributing point in this field, acts being routed out of this city to all parts of the Northwest territory.

Seattle's constantly increasing importance as a theatrical center and the strong feeling on the part of the association in the North Pacific coast district are assigned by Mr. Meagher as two of the chief reasons for establishing the office.

Announcement of the association's plans was made following a conference here yesterday afternoon between the assistant general manager and S. Morton Cohn, president of the Fifth Ave. Amusement company.

The latter will operate the Oak theatre, at Second ave. and Seneca st., which opens Sunday.

The Oak will be supplied with its vaudeville by the Western Vaudeville Managers' association.

The association, which has its headquarters in Chicago, now furnishes vaudeville bills to 325 theatres in all parts of the United States.

Martin Beck, general manager of the Orpheum circuit, is president of the association.

Mort H. Singer, well-known Chicago producer, whose attractions are familiar to all Seattle theatre-goers, is general manager.

"Seattle playgoers will see first-class vaudeville at The Oak," Mr. Meagher said, yesterday. "I say this because the association will not book acts of inferior quality, and Mr. Cohn would not play them if we did. Our bills are assembled in Chicago, and come thru to the Coast intact. Every one is what is known as a road show. This makes the program well blended and balanced. We do not reach out here, there and everywhere for talent. The bills run smoothly for the simple reason the acts play together for months at a time."

President Cohn of the amusement company that will run The Oak is a pioneer figure in Pacific coast theatricals.

WOMEN FIND WAY TO BEAT THE GAME

SAN FRANCISCO, April 21.—Suffragists of states which have not yet given women the ballot are coming to the Pacific coast to establish a residence and vote in the presidential election. It was learned today.

A "suffrage club" will arrive here Monday, carrying many women prominent in the vote fight.

Miss Mabel Vernon of Delaware, one of the suffrage delegates to Washington, has left San Francisco, en route to Nevada, where she will establish a six months' residence and cast her ballot for president in November.

After the election, these women intend to return to their homes.

U. S. TO GIVE ALEUTS A NEW OCCUPATION

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 21.—Because he was forced to take away the means of livelihood of the Aleut natives of the Pribiloff islands, Uncle Sam is going to teach the natives a new industry, also have the product marketed in the United States.

The natives will be taught to weave baskets, hats and other articles from a grass found on the islands.

Formerly the natives obtained a livelihood from sealing. When the seal herds were being killed off, the United States concluded a treaty with Great Britain, Russia and Japan, under which sealing has been stopped.

Visitors to that Frisco expo spent $4,600 on chewing gum. Oh! those East Easterners!

MASONS WILL FIGHT

A patriotic banquet after the Maundy Thursday ceremonies, held Thursday night in Scottish Rite temple, was the scene of wild huzzas and applause when Dr. E. Weldon Young, replying to the toast, "Our Country, the National Government and the President," cried: "The ranks of Freemasonry are ready to follow the flag, whether it leads beyond the Rio Grande or the Rhine."
