BIG STARS NEXT WEEK
Edna May, Burke, Chaplin Coming

(Above) The front of the Clemmer theatre, as it appears this week. Canvas representations of the great North cover the exterior of the theatre, and give an advance idea of the scenes of the play shown on the screen inside, "God's Country and the Woman." It is a striking drama, made even more dramatic by the picturesque scenes of the Far North.
(Below) A scene from "David Garrick," at the Coliseum theatre, beginning Thursday. Dustin Farnum is the star of the play.

PROGRAMS
ALHAMBRA—Mary Fuller in "A Mistress of Men," comedy. "His Neighbor's Wife," comedy. "CLASS A—One Day," sequel to "Three Weeks."
CLEMMER—William Duncan in "God's Country and the Woman."
COLISEUM—Marguerite Clark in "Molly Make-Believe," Paramount Pictorial.
COLONIAL—Winifred Green in "The Profligate."
LIBERTY—Douglas Fairbanks in "The Good Bad-Man," Keystone comedy.
MISSION—Marion Swayne in "The Carriage of Death," M. T. Domes' "Astral Night," comedy. "The Bandwagon."
REX—Maude Fealy in "The Eternal Sapho," Sidney Drew comedy.

The first, last, and only appearance of Edna May in the movies occurs in "Salvation Joan," which will show at the Clemmer theatre Sunday. She received $100,000 for making this picture, which she donated to the Red Cross society. She is the wife of Oscar Lewisohn, New York millionaire.

Billie Burke, who will come to the Rex theatre next week in "Gloria's Romance," went on the stage originally to satisfy her parents, who feared she would have difficulty in supporting herself in case anything ever happened to them. For her present work in motion pictures, she is receiving the modest sum of $4,000 per week.

The making of the William Fox feature film, "The Eternal Sapho," now showing at the Strand, was hindered by a large collection of pet superstitions, nourished by Theda Bara, the star, and several other members of the cast. Theda Bara is perhaps the most superstitious woman in America or anywhere else. She has a collection of luck pieces, amulets, charms, guards against the "evil eye" and other things that would make the average "voodooist's" outfit look like a discard. She reads the cards daily and never undertakes a new part until after she has walked in a cemetery.

Marguerite Clark on Wednesday night will close her engagement in "Molly Make-Believe," at the Coliseum. Thursday the Coliseum will change to its first male star in several weeks, handsome and debonair Dustin Farnum in "David Garrick," a classic both of the speaking stage and the screen.

COLONEL FAT AND BUSY SAYS GARDNER

the old Rough Rider hat. And this is his attire, rain or shine, on the long walks and rides. Tells of Finding Him Behind Barn With Rifle

If there are trees to be chopped, he chops them, but there is a limit to the timber on Sagamore hill; so he can't be felling trees all the time. Preparedness seemed quite inadequate when bullets go so wide as that.

inflexible system and a rigid application of the do-it-now principle are responsible for the colonel's immense accomplishments in work.

He never puts off till tomorrow what, by ANY possibility, can be done today!

He does things standing up. This particular instant is the time for deciding anything to be decided.

He comes into his study. He is in his old clothes. A visitor is talking to him; he picks up a bundle of new mail and goes into it.

He answers questions while looking over the letters. He stops to make a note of something to be remembered. He gives a direction. He is busy all the time.

Grinds Out Tremendous Lot of Copy Daily

He must be busy. HE HAS HIS LIVING TO MAKE.

He turns out more copy daily than an average newspaper hack. He must earn the $25,000 a year paid him by the Metropolitan, for he has a big and expensive family and lives in an expensive way.

The family is not so big now. Ted, Kermit and Ethel are married.

Quentin and Archie are at school. But the house is always open, with visitors coming and going, and in-laws and grandchildren ditto.

The colonel is NOT rich. He has something from his books.

To these, since he was in the White House, he has added one on African game trails, the South American exploration story, an autobiography, and the recent "Fear-God-and-Take-Your-Part" collection of his magazine contributions.

He has never taken money for speeches, in which respect he differs from most public men these days, who, from Bryan and Champ Clark down, have capitalized their publicity and expensive family and Chautauque platforms for many comfortable thousands of dollars.

The university boxing championship will be run off tonight. Some of the new boys have developed greatly so some of last year's champions stand to be displaced. The card follows:
115—Nightingale, '18, vs. Rice, '18.
125—Feak, '19, Sellick, '18.
135—Rooney, '19, vs. Sellick, '18.

SENTENCED TO JAIL

Two women convicted of bootlegging were given both fines and jail sentences by Judge Gordon Tuesday afternoon. Miss Rose Farre, 609 Weller st., was fined $100 and sentenced to 10 days in jail. Mrs. Jessie Greenwood, 905 First ave., was fined $100 and sentenced to 15 days in jail. Both women appealed.
