OREGON LOOKS A SAFE BET TO COP TRACK MEET HERE

Things look blue for Washington's track team when it meets Oregon on Denny field Saturday, chief reason being that old alibi, the weather. This factor, coupled with the fact that Washington has one of the worst tracks in the West, not excepting high school and grade school tracks, is to be blamed for the poor condition of the team.

Drummond and Newton are the quarter men, but they have not rounded into shape in this event yet, and they must over Denny Field's tortuous trail in about 45. With more time they should both cut this down to 40 flat.

SEATTLE IS VICTOR 3 TO 0

VANCOUVER, May 16.—With Charley Schmutz on the mound, the Seattle club blanked the locals yesterday, winning, 3 to 0. The affair was a pitchers' duel between Schmutz and Acosta. The Seattle slab artist allowed but two hits, while the Acosta batters swung on Don Jose for twice that number.

one of the best all-around track men in the country, having been rated as third best all-around last at the San Francisco games last summer. He is equally good in the track and field events, and is hard to beat with the weights. Multhead holds Coast records in the hurdles, and can jump over six feet. Needless to say, Oregon will have other very good men on her team, and regardless of the "bear stories" which she has sent out, it would not be surprising if she repeated her last year's stunt and won the conference title again.

Prospects are bright for one of the best lines Washington has had in years, but when it comes to finding new faces to take the places of Miller and Shiel, Doble is confronted with a difficulty.

Washington Line Will Be Best That Ever Donned Moleskin

The varsity linemen who probably will answer the call next fall are Capt. Louis Seearate, who is one of the most reliable guards Washington has had in a great many years; Grimm, a freshman tackle, who showed signs of stuff and Abel, at end, and Newton, tackle. Other promising material for the line is found in Gilmer, a 200-pounder from Lincoln, and Thomasen, another 200-pounder, who has had considerable prep school experience, and is built very much like Gellatly, center of the team two years ago. Smith and Calkins were also out and should push hard for regular berth. Faulk and Mayfield also will bid hard for places.

Washington Line Will Be Best That Ever Donned Moleskin

In the backfield, Noble and Young will contend for their old places at half and quarter, with Gardner, Wood, Hainsworth, Johnson and probably MacKechtie ready to fill the openings. Hainsworth has plenty of weight and strength and some varsity experience and should develop into a good fullback. Kecklie is not in school at present, but is expected back in the fall. He will go strong for the open position at half.
