

GERMAN TROOPS REGAIN GROUND

Gen. Haig Reports Enemy Advance East of Albert

IRISH RAID TRENCHES

LONDON, July 12.—German troops regained some lost ground in the fighting last night between the Mametz and Trones wood, east of Albert, but all other enemy attacks were beaten off with heavy enemy losses. Gen. Haig reported to the war office this afternoon.

A party of Irish Fusiliers penetrated German trenches at a strongly held position south-east of Loos last night, Gen. Haig reported.

They remained 20 minutes, killing many Germans, and retiring with slight losses. Gen. Haig reported that the Germans have been heavily reinforced.

The allies' great steam roller is moving eastward through the German lines exactly on schedule time.

High military men, returning from the front, declared today that the offensive is proceeding with all the mathematical exactness with which it was originally planned.

They admitted the allies copied from the German attack at Verdun their present tactics of smashing their way through German defenses purely with heavy artillery and trench mortars.

They declare, however, that whereas the Germans at Verdun were unable to keep up their momentum after the first onslaught, the allies have continued to progress according to schedule.

Since the beginning of the offensive the allies' heavy artillery has completely pierced the German lines at several points, rendering possible infantry thrusts for as great a distance as 15 kilometers (eight and one-half miles), had the allies been willing to sacrifice the men, such an operation would have entailed.

Instead, the allied commanders have consistently refused to advance their men until they have brought up heavy artillery and cleared a path.

TAKE MANY PRISONERS
PARIS, July 12.—The night was calm on both banks of the Somme last night, said an official statement from the war office today, dealing with the Anglo-Franco offensive.

Since the beginning of the allied offensive the British and French forces have captured 23 villages, 19,000 prisoners, 104 cannon and several hundred machine guns.

BACK TO MOVIES, WHERE THEIR ROMANCE BEGAN, COME MR. AND MRS. LOU TELLEGEN

Mr. and Mrs. Lou Tellegen on Porch of Their California Bungalow

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 12.—Geraldine Farrar, now Mrs. Lou Tellegen, is back in this city with her husband for her annual summer engagement in pictures.

She will again play at the Lasky studio. Her husband also will play before the camera, but not in the same company with his famous wife.

Because of the popularity of his previous pictures, it has been decided to put him at the head of a company of his own.

The Tellegens were accompanied to California by five servants, a dog and two automobiles. They will live in Hollywood.

"I am glad to be back for another dip into pictures," Miss Farrar announced, "back where my romance began."

what went on there; forgot everything in the world, in fact, but the face of the blind man.

The apathy was completely gone. In its place glowed hope and happiness.

As Jomelli moved about the stage, the face followed her as tho the eyes could see her, and in her could find joy.

The man in the box looked away. HE FELT THAT HE HAD SEEN SOMETHING THAT HE SHOULD NOT—SOMETHING SACRED, LIKE A SOUL!

For an encore Jomelli sang "Annie Laurie." The smile still lurked about the lips of the blind man, and tears stole down the cheeks from the sightless eyes.

When the song was ended he rose and felt his way to the aisle and out of the theatre. What he had wanted he had found, and there was nothing for him to stay for any more.

Manager Pantages caught him in the foyer.

Hope still glowed in the face of the blind man, like the reflection of a sunset.

"You liked the songs?" asked Mr. Pantages.

"They were wonderful. They will stay in my mind and make me happy for a long time," said the man who could not see.

So Thursday afternoon Alexander Pantages and Mme. Jeanne Jomelli are inviting all the blind of Seattle to a matinee.

Manager Pantages has reserved the best section of the theatre for them, and Mme. Jomelli will sing whatever they want her to.

There will be an army of ushers to meet them and escort them to their seats.

There is only one problem, and that is the means of taking them to the theatre. Several automobiles have been offered to call at the several homes for the blind, but there are a few more needed, in order that every one may come. If any one in the city would like to help, Mr. Pantages will be delighted to hear about him.

THEATRES
'ARISTOCRAT' HEADS NEW BILL AT PALACE

The new bill at the Palace Hip Wednesday is headed by Elsie Schuyler, "The Aristocrat of Vaudeville."

The Columbia Male Quartette present a repertoire of popular songs. Ostes & Martinez are Spanish dancers. McConnell & Austin are comedy cyclists. The Lillian Sisters are singers, dancers and instrumentalists. Rizal & Altman are flexible equilibrist, who have some novel balancing stunts.

The feature photoplay will be "The Song of the Sea."

NANCE O'NEIL THE FEATURE AT THE HIP

With a complete change of bill at the Hippodrome theatre, the vaudeville numbers will be augmented by a strong picture feature.

Nance O'Neil will be shown in "A Woman's Past." The story is written by Capt. John King. It deals with the struggle of an authoress—her ambition, passions, and love—emotions in which Miss O'Neil excels.

CONFESSIONS OF A WIFE

THE EXAMINATION—AND SENTENCE

Well, little book, the doctors, my own and that wonderful one from Vienna, came yesterday, and after taking a number of X-ray pictures, they put me thru another course of questions.

I was poked and pounded until I was ready to cry. "I can't stand it any longer. I'll go back to the old inanimate condition."

This examination showed me many things. I have almost come to the conclusion that it is not death that is the pain of death.

Poor old Dick could not stay in the room during the examination. After the first time I made a noise which told I was in agony he fled.

After the examination the doctors went into conference, and I, waiting outside, must have had some such feeling as a man endures while awaiting the coming of a jury that is deciding whether it shall be "the chair" or "liberty" for him.

At last Dick and the doctors came in together, and little book, this is the verdict:

An operation is imperative. Instead of getting better, I have been slowly getting worse, and now an operation is my only chance. While they were telling me this,

STORAGE MAN SEEKS BOOZE SHIPMENTS

Walter Eyres, manager of the Eyres Storage and Transfer Co., will endeavor, Thursday, in police court, to get possession of $40,000 worth of liquor seized from his warehouse last May.

Judge Gordon refused Tuesday afternoon to dismiss the case and return the liquor. The hearing was set for Thursday.

Eyres will try to prove he held the stuff in transit lawfully for the druggists who had ordered it shipped here.

ally and still bob up serenely, and 'hoping against hope,' as the doctor says."

"For a long time he held me in his arms, sitting on the bed to make me more comfortable. I wish could tell you, little book, what it means when one is alone at the breaking point to have some one—some one who is well and strong—put his arms about you, as tho he would protect you."

No words in the language can give one that little warm, hopeful feeling that this physical contact does. I simply leaned back against Dick. It meant more to me than possibly said to me.

Little book, little book, you, being just a few sheets of white paper on which are written only words, possibly cannot understand this, but I have found out since I was sick that the love and sympathy that has been expressed in a close handicap or a caress has meant more to me than all the wonderful speeches in the world.

Love and sympathy have one universal language.
