HARD TO BLOW TAPS FOR YOUR PAL—BUGLER WEEPS

United Press Correspondent
 WITH THE AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY ARMY, France, March 15.—Sometimes a grown man will burst right out and cry like a child—even a full-grown, hard-swearing bugler of 16. And it helps a fellow regain control of the bow if a motherly woman puts her arm around a fellow's shoulder and says, "There, there, little son." Just as his own gray-haired mother would if he were back home in Clarinda, Iowa.

Of course a soldier is supposed never to cry. But suppose you were just 15 and 4,000 miles from home in the holiday season. And suppose your best pal in the world was another man of 16. Well, your pal gets sick with pneumonia during a long march thru the blizzards. He gets taken away to the hospital. Next thing you hear is that he failed to rally in the crisis and passed out last night—the fellow you enlisted with and bunked with ever since you came into the army.

You are the bugler told off to go to the base hospital and blow "taps" over your own bunkie.

There are two young American nurses at the grave-side, standing knee-deep in snow, the wind whipping their red-lined capes every which way. They are dabbing at their red eyes with knotted handkerchiefs. They nursed your bunkie those last few days and called him "The Child."

One of them sobs out loud. "Nothing gets on the nerves of a 15-year-old man so much as hearing a woman sob."

Calls Him "Sonny"

The chaplain winds up his stereotyped talk and you place the bugle to your lips. You play taps as you never played it before. But the blizzard howls down the clear quivering notes and drowns out the struggling echoes.

We saw the little boy from Clarinda as he came marching back into the hospital grounds—still a soldier, chin up, eyes front, shoulders squared. He dropped from the parade and went straight to the office of the head nurse to thank her for the care his best pal had received.

Those kindly blue eyes of hers seemed to melt right thru the stern soldier "front" of the 16-year-old soldier. She called him "sonny," which put him at a disadvantage right off.

Exactly what was said in the next 15 minutes is between Sammy and the gray-haired, motherly head nurse. He came out of the office smiling thru his tears of loneliness, a slab of Christmas pudding in one hand and the shiny brass bugle in the other.

The head nurse says it's nothing unusual for grown soldier men to cry—even men much older than 16.

Blue Star in Service Flag Tells of Hello Girl in France; French Prof. 'Tears His Hair'

"Good-bye, 'Varsity! Hello, France!"

A dozen pretty U. of W. co-eds are singing their own version of the popular song.

They're bubbling over with joy for they're going to France for Uncle Sam as "hello" girls.

Each is anxiously awaiting the day when she will lean against the rail of a transport, seat and trim in her navy blue operator's uniform, and wave good-bye to Etat Unis, as the Statue of Liberty disappears on the horizon.

HE DARKENED HIS GRAY HAIR

They Used to Call Him Grandpa, Now They Call Him Kid

TELLS HOW HE DID IT

Mr. J. A. McCrea, a well known resident of San Francisco, who was called Daddy and Grandpa on account of his white hair, and who darkened it with a simple home-made mixture, recently made the following statement:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and 1/2 ounce of glycerine. Those ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off. My friends now call me 'Kid.'"

Serve Behind Lines

The government is sending scores of young women who can speak French fluently and can operate a switchboard, to France for service behind the lines.

The first division of 100 operators is already looking for periscope operators.

of the surface of the Atlantic. They'll soon be doing their bit "over there."

And in this division is Miss Helen A. Nalenthin, the first Seattle girl to be admitted into the service. She was a Junior in the university, and gave up her studies to answer the call. She has been trained as an inspector of operators.

Singing, laughing and guessing what they'll find in France!

That's how the girls are enjoying their game of tag with Kaiser Bill's submarines, near the opposite shore. Signals, frosts and muttering.

Prof Is Restless

This is how a certain gentleman on the campus is taking it. He paces up and down in his office on the second floor of Denny hall.

And why should he be so restless?

He is Prof. J. H. Frein, head of the French department, and they're taking all his "majors."

"If they don't stop going we won't have any seniors left in the department," he complains. "And then how can we graduate any?"

Prof. Frein misses his star students, but after all, he's glad they have the chance to go.

"They're a very fine lot of girls—all anxious to help win the war. With so many young men gone, they feel it is their duty to serve in whatever capacity they are fitted.

Can't Stop Them

"One girl, I understand, has a brother who has tried to get into every branch of the service, and had been turned down. She was determined that her family should have a service flag, so she volunteered for this work."

She explains to them the danger and hardships, but that doesn't stop them.

Blue stars on service flags represent the number of girls who have gone.

Since last spring there has been keen rivalry among fraternities to add stars to their flag.

Sororities in Race

Now the sororities are in the race. Two already have a flag. Alpha Phi and Alpha Gamma Delta. Proud? Why, they'd give up the honor of having secretary of the student body, half a dozen class officers, and a score of class numerals before they would part with a star.

Seven universities girls already have gone, and two will leave next week. Other girls who have not attended the university, but who are qualified, also are accepted. Many have made application.

The girls are given two preliminary examinations in French and a physical examination here. After obtaining recommendation from Prof. Frein, they are quizzed on their French by J. W. Newell, district

FOUR DIE IN BATTLE

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Four men were killed in action, two died of wounds, one was accidentally killed and three died of disease, 14 were severely wounded and 49 slightly wounded, the war department announced today.

The Des Moines Council of Patriots has adopted a resolution of condolence for Charles Anton Utz, who died of pneumonia while serving in France as a private in Company C, 147th machine gun company. Utz formerly resided near Des Moines and his relatives still live there.

If a man is going to commit a crime, the chances are that he will do it at the age of 29. It is a curious fact that statistics have shown that man is more dangerous at this period of his life than at any other.
