I will not raise my prices because of the war, but I do expect to increase my dental practice so that the increased business will offset the increased cost of doing business because of the war.
 I want to be known as the only man in Seattle who did not raise his prices because of the war.

LIBERTY
 "Johanna Enlists" is the newest Mary Pickford release, and opens at the Liberty theatre Sunday, showing Mary as Johanna Renssaler, with her 1,000 beaux, the 143rd field artillery.
 Johanna was friendless and "beautiful" working all day on the Renssaler farm. In woe and despair, Johanna took herself off to the fields one afternoon to pray for help, and when she raised her eyes, expectant, there came down the road toward her a whole regiment of lovers, khaki-clad, and Johanna fell in love with them all.

CLEMME
 "The Crisis," based on Winston Churchill's powerful novel, will be the attraction at the Clemmer, starting Saturday. The story centers around two old Southern families, chiefly the daughter of one family and the son of the other. The cast includes such notable players as George Fawcett, Bessie Eyton, Thomas Santschi, Marshall Neilan and Eugene Besserer.
 The Clemmer Digest offers new war pictures and scenes, showing Gen. Edmund Fuch, Gen. Pershing, Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig and the Right Hon. Arthur J. Balfour.

COLISEUM
 A South African story pictured from the novel by Cynthia Stockley, "The Claw" comes to the Coliseum Saturday, with Clara Kimball Young as an Irish girl, Mary Saurin.
 Mary is on her way to her brother, along with a drunken driver, traveling across that illimitable veldt of South Africa. Scared half out of her skin, Mary felt asleep clutching her revolver, and she awakened to hear the soft fall of cushioned feet and the sniff of a wild animal's nose near her ear. She shot once, and a heavy body struck the ground. Then Major Anthony Kinsella, a man of mystery, came to her aid, and thus a romance started.

LEVY'S ORPHEUM
 The romantic and dramatic atmosphere of Monte Carlo supplies the environment of Geraldine Farrar's first Gladwyn picture, "The Turn of the Wheel," which comes to Levy's Orpheum for an engagement of one week, starting Sunday.
 Geraldine Farrar is seen in the role of Rosalie Dean, who sees at the great gambling tables a young American who is quickly losing his fortune. She prevents him from committing suicide and then gives him enough money to win back his lost fortune. Later he is arrested for the murder of his divorced wife in New York city. They return to America, where Maxfield Grey, the young American, refuses to commit himself in regard to the murder. Rosalie, however, believing in his innocence, conducts an investigation on her own accord that promises a number of surprises.

STRAND
 Elsie Ferguson is the star in "Heart of the Wilds," which is the attraction at the Strand, opening Sunday. Miss Ferguson is seen as Jon Galbraith, the daughter of an unscrupulous tavern-keeper of the Canadian-American border.
 The pictures were taken in Yellowstone park by special permission from the government, and near Cody, Wyo. Miss Ferguson is supported by a cast which includes Thomas Meighan, Joseph Smiley and Matt Moore.
 "Heart of the Wilds" is a story of the Mounted Police, a story of the wilds, fights and romance, the proving that there is one thing more sacred than love, which is honor. Marshal Neilan directed the production.

MISSION
 A crook story is the attraction at the Mission, starting Sunday. It is "Boston Blackie's Little Pal," starring Bert Lytell, with a support which includes Rhea Mitchell, little Joey Jacobs, Rosemary Theby, and Howard Davies. Boston Blackie was a gentleman-crook, with the reputation of never having been caught by the police. In the story, his activities are centered on the capturing of a famous collection of jewels.
COLONIAL
 Doris Kenyon is the star of the new show which opens at the Colonial Sunday. The photoplay is an adaptation of "The Street of Seven Stars," written by Mary Roberts Rinehart and which ran in the Saturday Evening Post.

WHOLE BRITISH NAVY TO SHARE IN PRIZE FUND

(Special to The Star by N. E. A.)
 LONDON, Sept. 14.—The capture of an enemy vessel, or a neutral vessel laden with contraband material, now has a new significance in the British navy, from the admiral to the youngest cabin boy.
 The question of the disposition of prize money—which is proceeds from the sale of captured enemy property and neutral contraband—has long been a bone of contention among British sailors. In previous wars, this prize money went only to those actually making the capture, being divided among the crew of the victorious ship.
 This resulted in the accumulation of enormous fortunes on the part of some crews, in many cases far from the actual battle front, while those actually bearing the brunt of the fighting were glad to get off with their lives.
 A recent enactment in the house of commons has changed all this. Under the new law everyone in the navy will share the prize money, providing he has put in a minimum of one month's sea service in the navy or its auxiliaries.
 Those who have been in the service for more than 30 months, should the war last no longer than five years, will be entitled to a full share commensurate with their ranks. Lesser periods will entitle the men to smaller proportionate shares.

RULES ISSUED FOR BRITISHERS

British consular officials issued a statement Saturday announcing that all British subjects between 18 and 45 inclusive, if not already registered, must register, whether or not already exempted by the British ambassador.
 British subjects may then apply for exemption to the British ambassador at Washington, D. C., as follows: Those registered before July 13, 1918, apply before Sept. 23; those registered before August 24 apply before September 24; those registered on September 4 apply before October 13; those registered on September 12, apply within 30 days after date.
 Exemption regulations are to be had from all British consular officers and at all British and Canadian recruiting mission offices. The following are the dates after which British registrants in the three above mentioned classes may not be accepted for enlistment in the British or Canadian army: Class 1, September 28; Class 2, September 23; Class 3, September 12.

NEED COAL TO SUPPLY STEEL

Five tons of coal are needed to make a ton of steel, and every time a 3,800-ton ship goes down the ways it represents a consumption of 20,000 tons of coal.
 This is the argument made by David Whitcomb, secretary of the federal fuel administration, and formerly fuel administrator for Washington state, in urging saving in the use of coal.
 Whitcomb predicts that the coming year will see the closing of numerous non-essential industries, which consume coal without contributing anything to the government's war program. He is come to move his family to Washington, D. C.
