Here's Belle of Camp Lewis Handsome? Get the Coy Feet

This is the Belle of Camp Lewis—Sergt. Martin J. Nitray—held in county jail while deputy officers and intelligence officers try to figure out why he put on woman's clothing and boarded a train for Seattle. He carried a loaded automatic in his hand bag.

The Belle of Camp Lewis was in wig, much powder, some paint, gold wrist watch and black shoes. The Belle made a nice looking girl. All but the shoes.

Deputy Sheriffs Frank Elliott and W. Coffey noticed the large pedala as the Belle alighted from the Tacoma Interurban Wednesday. They glanced closer and assured themselves that the powder and paint obscured the face of a man. It was Sergt. Martin J. Nitray, First Infantry supply company, Camp Lewis.

"I was going to surprise my mother-in-law," he told deputies. "Some surprise," commented Elliott. Nitray was carrying a handbag. It contained a big black revolver and two clips of shells. "Thought I might need the gun for protection, after I dressed up this

"My Wonderful Piano" The Marvelous Duo Art

"My Piano stands in the corner of our living-room. In appearance it is a beautiful mahogany Steinway Upright. Pianists who occasionally come to our house and sit at it marvel at its tone. It seems incredible that such a dainty instrument can hold so full, and rich, and deep a tone.

But the tone of my piano, glorious as it is, is but the smallest part of its wonder. It is really a magic instrument. To explain, let me tell you about last night.

After finishing my paper, I turned the lights low. It had been a hard day at the office and I wanted music. Nothing else is so restful and so uplifting.

When ready I summoned the fairies who preside over the destinies of all magic things. "I want to hear the most beautiful music in the world," I said. "Not too heavy and classic, but fine music with a melody exquisitely played." And then the miracle. One by one there came into my room the great pianists—the living masters of today. First at the keyboard was Paderewski. Bravo! No one in the world can play his Minuet as he. Dainty, crisp, sparkling, the superb voice of my Steinway sang a melody into the notes under those wonderful fingers that was balm to my music-hungry soul.

And then Josef Hofmann! Mendelssohn's "Rondo Capriccioso." No one who has ever heard Hofmann's playing can forget it or mistake it. No wonder the world pays such high tribute to its master artists. Pieces that you think you know take on such beauty and such new meaning under their hands. One by one the others played. Harold Bauer, Ossip Gabrilowitch, Rudolph Ganz, Percy Grainger, Guilomar Novace, dainty little Winifred Byrd—each gave freely of his or her genius to make my enjoyment and happiness complete. And then, as my mood changed, came others—masters of dance and popular music—and played as only these can play these light and rhythmic pieces.

This isn't the whole story of my wonderful piano, but only a small part. Complete, it's the most wonderful musical story the world has ever heard. And the world is beginning to find it out.

You may have a piano like it—a Weber, Steck, a Stroud or a magnificent Steinway like mine. And you may have it either as a Grand or an Upright.

Moreover, when you wish, this wonderful instrument will make a pianist of you. You may listen to Paderewski play his Minuet and then you can play it after him. Because this piano is a Pianola as well as a reproducing piano. And the Pianola music rolls make a wonderful artist of you."

We cordially invite you to come in and hear this wonderful piano—the marvelous Duo Art.

Rheumatism

Q.—Please give me a cure for rheumatism. A.—Rheumatism is a name for patent medicine men and quacks to conjure with. It is usually some underlying bone disease, infection, flat foot, loose joint, torn ligament, enlarged gland, fallen arches and a raft of other deformities or defects. If you have the symptoms and pains usually called "Rheumatism" don't take chances with patent potions or "counter prescribers."
