SOCIALISTS IN N. Y. EXPELLED

Lieut. Col. Roosevelt Urges Reseating 5 Assemblymen

ALBANY, N. Y., April 1.—The five suspended socialist members of the New York assembly were expelled today, on charges of disloyalty, following an all-night debate. An individual vote of expulsion was taken on each member.

The five socialists are: August Claessens, Louis Waldman, Charles Solomon, Samuel Orr, Samuel A. Dewitt.

Lieut. Col. Theodore Roosevelt led the fight for reseating them. One of the two women members, Miss Margaret L. Smith, spoke in favor of expulsion. Speaker Thaddeus Sweet also took the floor to urge ousting of the socialists.

The vote on Solomon and Claessens was 116 to 28. The vote on Waldman was 115 to 28, and the vote on Dewitt and Orr was 104 to 40.

Col. Roosevelt took issue with the majority report of the judiciary committee that tried the socialists, in which it was stated the socialists, as individuals and as a party, had been proved disloyal.

Roosevelt argued that the graver question before the assembly is expulsion of the socialist party, and that such an act would be to "commit a crime against representative government."

"The question divides itself logically into two aspects," he said. "The expulsion of the socialist party, or the expulsion of certain socialist members as individuals."

Roosevelt cited the evidence presented to the judiciary committee failed to prove the charges that the socialists were guilty of disloyal action during the war, or that they attempted to overthrow the United States government.

"In no case does the record show they violated or urged violation of any law designed for the prosecution of the war," he said.

Seven of the world war veterans in the assembly voted against the expulsion.

The children, representing five families, are taken by the Hitchcocks on contracts which guarantee them proper care and an education. Every child is a stockholder in the family corporation, sharing in the earnings. The family is self-supporting, living on a big farm near Ogema, Wis.

While Baroness Clamors for Him, His Heart, He Says Is Squashed by Factory Girl

Perry Cunningham, the "legacy love man," who was to have been married by March 31 in order to claim a $25,000 bequest left him conditionally by a deceased uncle, did not "make the grade" to the minister's altar hundreds of women and girls offered themselves as willing life-mates.

Instead, he wrote The Star today, he dallied until Wednesday morning, the final day, as he thought, trying desperately to win the heart of a young Seattle woman who had enchanted him.

Wednesday noon, with 12 hours of grace, he says, he wired his dead uncle's lawyers in New York that while he had plenty of chances to marry at once, he was unable to get the girl he wanted. The lawyers wired back:

"Uncle's will says if you are earnestly trying to get a wife March 31, you may have 30 days more to win."

With a month's extension of time, Cunningham writes, he is still in a quandary. This is the quandary: Whether to risk the loss of his legacy in further efforts to win the heart of the girl he loves, or—

Accept the proposal of a former German baroness living in San Francisco, who has a fortune in her own right, or—

Find some other American girl with whom he could be happy, and who will go with him to the altar before May 1.

Cunningham said he heard from the San Francisco baroness in a batch of more than 100 letters he received from California girls, offering to delve with him into the land of matrimony.

"Altho I wasn't expecting to marry into the nobility," he writes, "she seems to be a nice girl, and wealthy. But I prefer an American girl. If I can't get an acceptable American girl, of course, I shall marry the baroness."

Of the Seattle girl who has captivated him, and whose affections he is still vainly trying to entrap, Cunningham says:

"I really love her a great deal. She's a working girl—works in a factory. She's the girl for me, all right. I'm sure I could love her forever. But what do you think—I can't get her consent!"

With hundreds of others to choose from, Cunningham says, he has determined to marry the factory girl, the baroness or someone he likes better.

Thus far, Cunningham has not permitted himself to be interviewed. The only address he has given is Seattle general delivery, where he receives his mail.

PROBE PICKFORD DIVORCE DECREE

Attorney General Inquires Into Alleged Collusion

RENO, Nev., April 1.—The investigation into the entire record of the Mary Pickford divorce case, begun yesterday by Robert Richards, deputy attorney general of Nevada, was being continued today.

The action was begun following a meeting of the Washoe County Bar association, when resolutions were passed calling upon the attorney general to investigate the divorce proceedings at Minden, on March 2, when, after a brief hearing, Miss Pickford was given a divorce from Owen Moore on the ground of desertion.

According to reports being circulated here today, the resolution was later stricken from the records and a motion to appoint a committee to investigate all "short term" divorces in the state was substituted.

LOS ANGELES, April 1.—Denials of any irregularities in the proceedings by which she was given a divorce from Owen Moore were made today by Mary Pickford, who last Sunday became the bride of Douglas Fairbanks.

According to information received here, the probe into the record of the proceedings at Minden, Nev., is based on allegations of collusion between Miss Pickford and Moore, regarding the service of the summons by which Moore was brought into court.

The period of residence in Nevada of the principals is also said to be under investigation.

"There is certainly nothing to it," was the only remark Douglas Fairbanks would make today, declaring he knew nothing of the divorce proceedings.

CALDWELL RAID ON DENS TIPPED

Three Police Sergeants in King St. District Shifted

Mayor Caldwell was mystified today over who tipped off in advance his intended explorations in the vicinity of Sixth ave. S. and King st., which resulted yesterday in the discovery of an underground Chinatown gambling dens and interlocking tunnels.

Had his excursion not been heralded without his sanction, he said, the subterranean workings in all probability would not have been found deserted when the official party descended.

"Somebody tried to throw rocks on the track," he commented.

This fact, coupled with the alleged failure of police officers to report recent unusual activities in that locality, led to the removal of three sergeants from their beats in that district.

Those removed are Sergeants Jacob Bjarnason, John Donnan and P. H. Jennings. They said reports had been made that unusual repairs to buildings were being made near Sixth ave. S. and King st., but Chief Warren replied that no such reports had been received by him.

The displaced sergeants will be replaced by Sergeants M. D. Pence, H. G. O'Brien and Frank Fugua, the chief said.

Bjarnason will take charge of the first patrol north of Yeeler way. Donnan goes to the second patrol in the district north of Pike st. Jennings is removed to the third patrol in Belltown.

PORTLAND OFFICER GOT SOMETHING
