

NEW WOMAN IN STILLMAN CASE FOUND

Report Banker's Wife Locates Alleged Former Friend of Husband

NEW YORK, March 29.—The name of the new "other woman" in the J. P. A. Stillman divorce case was expected today to be revealed within a few hours.

Mrs. Stillman came to New York from Lakewood, N. J., late yesterday and had a long conference with her attorneys with regard to this alleged "other woman." It was reported that she also visited the woman, who is residing near New York, and who is said to be ready to testify in her behalf.

This new woman in the case, it was reported, was very friendly with Stillman before the multi-millionaire president of the National City bank met Mrs. Florence H. Leeds, Broadway chorus girl. She had a luxurious apartment in New York and a country place on Long Island. Money and expensive gifts were lavished on her. Motor cars and many servants were at her disposal. Then, it is alleged, these attentions were directed elsewhere and she was left virtually penniless. At the present time she is said to be living in poverty.

The attentions which she enjoyed were withdrawn, it is intimated, about the same time that Stillman met Mrs. Leeds. Mrs. Stillman's knowledge of the alleged "other woman" came through an anonymous letter. After a search of more

Bebe Daniels Smiles at 10 Days in Jail

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 29.—Jail holds no terrors for Bebe Daniels. Jesting over her plight, the screen actress today was preparing to serve 10 days in the Orange county bastille, to which she was sentenced late yesterday by Justice Cox at Santa Ana for speeding.

"Oh, I hope they let me have a piano in my cell," she said, "and lots of books. If I haven't those, it will seem like 10 years."

"This Santa Ana jail was a surprise to me. Really, it's an awfully comfortable looking place of red brick, with ivy growing all over it. And—can you imagine—I think I saw lace curtains at the windows."

Miss Daniels harbors no grudge against Justice Cox, who sentenced her.

"I think he's a nice, fatherly old gentleman," she asserted. "He did what he thought was his duty."

The film star is at liberty, pending the outcome of an appeal to the superior court.

Miss Daniels was charged with driving her car 34 miles an hour more than two weeks she was located. Mrs. Stillman took a leading part in directing the search and came to New York for her conference with lawyers late yesterday, soon after the new woman had been found.

Mrs. Stillman's return to Lakewood, N. J., is indefinite, but it is understood that she has not given up her suite in the hotel there.

It developed today that all the affidavits and letters in the case may not be made public by Justice Morschauer when he rules on Mrs. Stillman's application for $10,000 monthly alimony and $75,000 attorney's fees. The expectation has been all the documents would be thrown open to the public when his decision was handed down.

DENVER GIRL'S RECORD NOTE

Lou Milton, 11-year-old Denver singer, reaches the highest note ever recorded by the human voice—the second F above high C. The highest previously reached was the second D above high C, attained by Robert Murray (insert), 12-year-old Tacoma, Wash., boy. Miss Milton's record is more than an octave higher than the highest notes sung by Tetraxini, Galli Curci and Patti. Miss Milton is said to have a continuous range of four octaves.

Seattle. "Herman Chapin, the owner, offered me half of the ground floor of the Boston block for $125 a month," Haley said. "Imagine such a rental now! Well, I pondered putting up so much money, but finally accepted and moved in."

"In the south corner of the building was M. S. Sells. Then came Dalton & Graham, myself, and the postoffice."

"When the fire came, it looked like we were going to go with the rest of the town. There were two circumstances that saved us. One was a row of maple trees across the street, that acted as a shield until they went up in smoke, and the other was the efforts of a man named J. W. Edwards."

"Edwards has never been given the credit, so far as I know," Haley went on, "but it was he who really saved the Boston block from destruction. He came into my store and got 40 or 50 buckets. Then he lined up a gang of men and started a bucket brigade up into the building to keep everything saturated with water."

"The men grew weary and discouraged, but Edwards kept them at it. They would have quit more than once."

"Water was scarce. All we could get was from a pipe that came down the hill in the rear of the building. It didn't run more than a quart or two a minute part of the time. But Edwards kept the buckets moving, even if they carried but a pint, and in the end she blaze leaped over us and licked up a row of frame buildings at the other end of the block."

"After the fire, the Boston block and professional men who have risen to prominence in Seattle. The National Bank of Commerce, the railway headquarters and ticket offices, and others came in temporarily."

"I had the biggest stock of liquor in the city stored in my basement for a while," Haley said with a smile. "It belonged to the A. P. Hoteling Co., who moved in when the fire started."

The Boston block numbered among its tenants many business and professional men who have risen to prominence in Seattle. It is with a tinge of regret that the old timers watch the old make way for the new.

DOG LEAD SWAY TO BOY'S BODY

Despondent Youth Ends Life With Gun

Led by a whining dog that had sought for hours to attract their attention by running about in circles, the family of Melbourne J. Balcom, 22, cripple, found the young man's body dead in the bushes a few hundred yards from their ranch near Earlington Heights, east of Allentown, Monday afternoon.

Balcom's left hand clutched a heavy sporting rifle and his right hand held a string that had been tied to the trigger. In his head was a bullet wound.

Balcom's dog began whining shortly after the young man had gone out after the noon meal. It trotted from the house and twined apparently aimless in one spot and then in another. After a long time the family decided to follow where the dog might lead.

Balcom is said to have been despondent over his crippled condition. He came to western Washington eight years ago from Michigan where he was born. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Balcom, who live on the ranch; a brother, John F. Balcom, and a sister, Mrs. A. O. Cultum, of Tacoma, survive him.

AUTO PLUNGES; 4 ARE KILLED

ASTORIA, Ore., March 29.—Three persons were instantly killed, one died later of injuries and two more are in a local hospital here today, badly hurt as a result of an automobile going thru a bridge at Burnside, eight miles east of here on the lower Columbia river highway late yesterday.

The dead: August Donnerberg, 55, Portland. Mrs. Gladstone Dawson, 27, Clatsop Plains. Nan Dawson, 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dawson. The injured: Eighteen-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Dawson. Mrs. August Donnerberg, Portland.

The party was returning to Portland in Donnerberg's machine. Defective steering apparatus is thought to have caused the tragedy.

Donnerberg and Nan Dawson are believed to have been drowned in the stream into which the car plunged. The others were killed by the force of the impact. Dawson lived long enough to be brought to an Astoria hospital.

Secretary Weeks Names Bureau Chiefs

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Secretary of War Weeks today announced the following recess appointments of bureau chiefs of the war department: Major General John H. Chamberlain, inspector general; George O. Squier, chief signal officer; W. A. Holdbrook, chief of cavalry; W. J. Snow, chief of field artillery; C. H. Farnsworth, chief of infantry; Charles T. Menoher, chief of air service, and Brigadier General F. A. Fries, chief of chemical warfare service, and Herbert M. Lord, chief of finance.

Viviani Comes to Pay His Respects

NEW YORK, March 29.—"I come to the United States to pay the respects of France to President Harding" was the only statement Rene Viviani, premier of France, who arrived here yesterday afternoon, would make concerning his mission to America.

A semi-official tone was given to Viviani's arrival. Representatives of the state department were aboard the special revenue cutter that landed him at a flag-decked pier and a delegation, including Rodman Wanda maker, Ambassador Jules Jusserand and representatives of the city of New York greeted him on American soil.

Viviani refused to discuss his mission. Viviani will leave here today for Washington without having disclosed the object of his mission further than stating that he comes to pay the respects of France to President Harding.

While speculation generally credits him with coming to sound out the Harding administration on how much of the Versailles treaty the United States is willing to accept, there is also a report that he seeks American aid in averting a rumored national financial crisis that threatens to engulf France in bankruptcy.

Rockwell Praises New Poll Tax Law

"The poll tax is the only equitable method of taxation to raise the $11,000,000 for the soldiers' bonus," declared State Senator T. D. Rockwell, speaking before the King County Women's Republican club at Meves' cafeteria Monday noon. The law will probably be repealed in five years, he stated, after its purpose is accomplished.

FUNERAL SERVICES for Quincey Wellington Farr, 46, manager of the Fredson Logging company, killed in a logging accident Thursday, were held at the Bonney-Watson Co.'s parlors Monday afternoon.

JOHN BURROUGHS, THE NATURALIST, YIELDS TO DEATH ON WAY HOME

NEW YORK, March 29.—John Burroughs, naturalist, died at 2 a. m. today on a train on which he was en route from California to his home at West Park, N. Y., according to a telegram received by Dr. Walter Gray Crump here.

The telegram was sent from Buffalo, N. Y., by Dr. Clara Barrus, the naturalist's secretary, and indicated Burroughs' death occurred shortly before the train reached that city.

HE BECAME ILL ON WAY EAST

Dr. Crump said the body would be brought on to Poughkeepsie immediately. Burroughs' home, where he lived for years, is on the opposite side of the Hudson a short distance from Poughkeepsie. Friends and relatives will meet the body at Poughkeepsie.

Dr. Crump's information was that Burroughs, who spent the winter in Pasadena, Cal., became ill after his train left Chicago on the eastward journey. A telegram was sent to Dr. Crump by Dr. Barrus, requesting him to meet Burroughs at Poughkeepsie.

When Dr. Crump was making preparations to start for Poughkeepsie, the second message arrived, advising him that the naturalist was dead.

Dr. Barrus had been with Burroughs seven years as his secretary. She has written several widely read books on his work.

WAS PLANNING BIRTHDAY PARTY

Burroughs, it was said, had hoped to reach home before April 2, to celebrate his 84th birthday with old friends. His 83rd was celebrated with a great gathering, which included his particular friends, Henry Ford, H. S. Firestone and Thomas A. Edison.

The event was to have taken place at his home in Floral Park, near Poughkeepsie.

Burroughs' death removed from American life its best beloved naturalist, and one of its most prominent essayists and critics.

It was the unconventional in writing and in nature that appealed to him.

Burroughs was a close friend of Theodore Roosevelt and the two often enjoyed tramps thru the woods, studying bird and animal life. During the last few years he had spent most of his summers camping with Thomas A. Edison and Henry Ford.

He Wanted to See "Sap Running Again"

PARADISE, Cal., March 29.—Friends who bade John Burroughs today goodbye on March 25, when he left for his home in West Park, N. Y., sensed the probability that the farewells were final.

Burroughs at that time was very weak, and only the longing to get home by April 3, his 84th birthday, kept him together. To be at River By, his West Park home, in one more budding April and to "see the sap running again" from his sugar maple was the last wish of Burroughs.

When John Burroughs arrived here from La Jolla, Cal., a month ago, he was in low spirits. He complained of the cold and for the first time in his life he deserted the open for the comforts of a warm house.

He had taken a bungalow in Sierra Madre canyon, near Pasadena. However, the beauties of nature could not overcome the chill settling in his blood, and he complained a way of being cold. He had an oil stove and an electric burner beside a wood fire in the bungalow, but his cooling blood could not withstand the open, and he came down into the city of Pasadena to die.

Here he entered a local hospital, where two minor operations were performed for an abscess in his chest. He said he felt he was growing old, and at last the fires of life were burning low. He spoke of his approaching birthday, on April 2, and said he wanted to celebrate it at his home in the East.

TACOMA THUG SHOOTS THREE

Mysterious Assailant Flees After Volley

TACOMA, March 29.—Patrick Hinz was believed to be dying in a hospital here today, Frank Kella may be fatally wounded, and Raphael Millell is suffering from bullet wounds received in a mysterious attack by an unknown gunman who fired upon the three Italians and a fourth man who was not hit, near St. Leo's church on Yakima ave., late last night.

The assassin, who was muffled in an overcoat with upturned collar, fled following the shooting, and has not been apprehended.

The four men had been playing cards in a Greek cafe and were on their way home when halted by the gunman who, according to Millell, drew a pistol and cried, "Hands up!" He then immediately began firing. Three of his victims fell to the sidewalk, while the fourth ran from the scene and notified the police by phone.

Planes Take Count of Olympia Damage

HOQUIAM, March 29.—Two army airplanes, piloted by Capt. Lowell Smith and Lieut. Kiel, carrying forestry observers, flew over the storm-devastated regions of the Olympic peninsula yesterday.

The flight consumed nearly three hours, and the aviators made a careful inspection of the fallen timber of the storm-ridden area. They reported timber down only in patches, except in the Clearwater valley and the Hoh district. The greatest damage was observed in the Hoh and Bocoachiel districts.

Restrict Fishing for Young Salmon

Restriction of fishing for immature salmon is expected to be one of the first acts of the Washington state fisheries board, which is to be formally organized this week. Its members are: Capt. Harry Ramwell, of Everett; E. P. Blake, of Seattle, and E. A. Sims, of Port Townsend.

Boy Deserter Now Faces Two Terms

J. P. Bosworth, 17, accused of deserting from the navy, will have to stand trial for the alleged offense after he has served his sentence of one to 15 years at the state reformatory imposed Monday by Presiding Judge King Dykeman. Naval authorities at San Francisco wired that the boy should serve his civil sentence first. Bosworth was accused here of stealing an automobile.

Dropping a sack containing $40 worth of cigars which they had stolen, two thieves made their escape from the Middleton pharmacy, 2338 10th ave. N. E., Monday night.
