CHEESE
When planning a menu with cheese as the central dish there are several things to be kept firmly in mind. Cheese is a concentrated food and bulky food must be added to satisfy hunger and aid digestion. A course bread should be used in place of white and a vegetable containing little starch. A salad or fresh fruit lightens the heaviness of the cheese. Tea or coffee and never chocolate should be served with a luncheon or supper in which cheese figures as the main dish.

SHAWLS CAME FIRST

The shawl is the mother of all clothes. Before scissors were invented all humans, who wore anything at all, wore shawls. The colder the climate the larger and heavier the shawl. In the tropics the shawl was of fig-leaf size. The summer shawl is our sheet. The toga, and finally the clothes of today emerged from the original shawl. Even as late as our civil war men wore shawls for overcoats.

MRS. MAX WEST'S ADVICE ON THE CARE OF CHILDREN

Mrs. Max West, United States children's bureau expert and mother of five children, will answer questions of Northwest mothers on child welfare. She will not give medical advice, or advice to different feeding cases, or deal with abnormal children. She will answer any question about the care of healthy, normal children. Inquiries and self-addressed envelopes for personal reply. The most interesting questions will be answered thru this column twice a week. Address: MRS. MAX WEST, THE STAR, SEATTLE.

BY MRS. MAX WEST

A correspondent makes a spirited protest against giving over the back yards of homes to chickens, rabbits and gardens while the children play in the streets. She makes the point that to use the small space back of the average city home for raising animals is neither cleanly, nor sightly and is an unfair competition with those by market gardeners who are trying hard to make a living. Further, that many dangers, both physical and moral, would be done away with if children had free access to a yard in which to play.

As far as small play plots are concerned, I am sure she is quite right. In some cases, however, it is impossible to set aside a part of the lot for a vegetable garden, or even a small poultry yard, and still leave room for a play ground for the young children.

I have recently been looking over some house plans of this kind, in which a central, sunny part of the yard is thus saved for the children, and at the back, behind a hedge of flowers, is the kitchen garden. But in addition to home play grounds, every city must plan from the start for a large municipal acreage for playgrounds, club houses, sports and recreation for its children.

Q.—Shall I wean my baby now or nurse him through the hot weather. He is one year old?
A.—This question has already been answered several times. A baby should be weaned by the end of the first year, in nearly every case.

Q.—What kind of milk is best for weaning a baby?
A.—All the authorities say that next to breast milk, fresh cow's milk is the best baby food. A baby a year old will also be having some other foods, such as cereals, fruit juice, and beef juice.

Q.—My baby is three months old. Some of my neighbors say he will not cut his teeth unless he is fed something. Is it right to chew his food for him?
A.—You do not say how he is being fed at present. If you are nursing him, give him nothing but breast milk until he is at least six months old. If on a bottle, give him nothing but fresh cow's milk, mixed with water and a little sugar. Milk is the only food a young baby needs, and it is a perfect food. Never put anything from your mouth into the baby's mouth.

Q.—My baby is 19 months old. I want to wean her from the bottle to a cup, but I find it hard to persuade her to drink.
A.—Do not give her the bottle at all during the day. Use a bowl or cup that has a picture in the bottom, and make a game of eating out of it until the baby finds this picture. In the interest of seeing the food disappear, she may forget the bottle. It is astonishing how many problems of childhood may be solved by making games of them.
Q.—My baby, 20 months old, is bowlegged. What can I do for her?
A.—Take her to a baby specialist for examination, or to the orthopedic clinic, if there is one in your city. Build up her general health in every way.
Q.—Please give a list of foods guaranteed to give a child red blood.
A.—The red blood corpuscles are increased by foods containing iron. These include spinach, cabbage, and other vegetables, meat, eggs, and other things. But diet must be regulated according to the special needs of the child. Pallor may indicate disease, lack of outdoor life, lack of sleep, or natural coloring. Everything must be taken together in a child's case. The first thing is to have him thoroughly examined by a competent physician to determine what causes his lack of color and who can then direct his care in the proper way.
Q.—Will a maternity corset cause a baby to be deformed?
A.—A soft and properly fitted maternity corset may be worn if very loosely adjusted in the first half of pregnancy. A stiff corset, snugly laced, is quite capable of bringing undue pressure upon the developing uterus.

WRINKLES

They're caused by thinking, worrying, or even laughing. Persons who do not think, worry or laugh have tight skins and mask-like expressions.

Warning: Unless you see the name "Bayer" on package or on tablets you are not getting genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians for twenty-one years and proved safe by millions. Take Aspirin only as told in the Bayer package for Colds, Head-

CREAMED NOODLES

2 eggs
2 tablespoons milk
1/2 teaspoon salt
flour

Beat eggs slightly with milk. Sift salt with one cup of flour and stir into eggs with fork. Add enough more flour to make a stiff dough. Roll very thin on a floured mounding board. When dry, but not brittle, roll out in narrow strips. Drop into boiling salted water and cook 15 minutes, boiling rapidly. Drain into buttered baking dish, add cream to make moist, cover with one-fourth cup grated cheese and put in a hot oven to reheat and brown.

HOW COME?

"Isn't it wonderful? I couldn't get home half fast enough thinking of the delightful surprise I had in store for you, Jack. I do hope the Blacks come over tonight. I'm dying to show it to them, too, because Mrs. Black's always showing off her things, and I'm going to tell her where and how I got 'em. I'm very proud of the fact."
"But, May, not so fast. I'll admit it's a dandy dress, and you did need something to wear around the house, and this is very—er!—fussy and stylish, and you do look adorable in it, but didn't I hear you say last night that the Easter suit was all you could afford for a long time? How come?"
"Yes, Jack, I did say I had no money, but I went to Cherry's, and you don't have to have money to buy there. Just a promise to pay; that's all. You can get your clothes there the same way, Jack. Do you blame me for being excited?"
