AGED WOMAN LOSES MEMORY

Is Taken From Train at Portland

PORTLAND, May 27.—Suffering from complete loss of memory, a woman about 80 years of age was taken from the California express here last night upon its arrival from San Francisco.

She was ill and penniless. Police said that there were no identification marks of any nature in her luggage.

Outside of a whispered statement that she "thought her name was Mily Black," the woman could give no information as to herself, home or friends.

Find Many Movies Break Moral Code

OF 294 films examined throughout the state during the past week, more than 135 violated one or more of the standards of moral propriety.

This was the report compiled by the State Federation of Women's clubs. Of the offensive films, the greatest number transgressed in picturing immoral or vulgar situations.

Girl Responsible for Killing Child

FAIRMINGTON, Mo., May 27.—Mrs. John Parsons, 13, was mentally responsible when she shot and killed her stepdaughter, Lilly, 6, a jury in juvenile court decided yesterday.

The maximum punishment that can be imposed by the juvenile court is a term in reform school. During her trial, in which she had maintained the shooting was accidental, she wept bitterly.

Saloon Porter Grows Rich Reforms, Aids Gypsy Smith

Mr. and Mrs. E. Howard Cadle and sketch showing Cadle's five-year transformation.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 27.—If you had "gone broke" and worked as a porter in a saloon and on the "mop gang" of a janitor's force and then in a few years had made a million dollars, how would you enjoy it? E. Howard Cadle of Indianapolis is the man who was the saloon porter and the mop handler.

Something like five years ago Cadle and his wife and children were living in poverty in Orleans, Ind. He was the object of the rough humor of the men who patronized the saloon where he worked.

Today Cadle has a six-figure income and a fine home and the servants, and already is planning how to spend the coming winter.

He has decided to go on the road with Gypsy Smith, the evangelist, and Mrs. Cadle will accompany him.

WIFE GOING WITH HIM The Gypsy Smith meetings will begin at Omaha and Mr. and Mrs. Cadle will continue with the evangelist throughout the winter.

It will make all the necessary arrangements for the meetings, telling them the story of my life," says Cadle. He already has been foremost in promoting Gypsy Smith meetings at Louisville and in Indianapolis.

After the Louisville meeting Cadle bought ground and built a permanent tabernacle up that city. On the wall is a tablet bearing the following inscription:

"Erected by E. Howard Cadle in honor of his mother, whose prayers saved him from a drunkard's and gambler's grave."

Cadle was born 37 years ago at Salem, Ind. He made money rapidly at intervals, and lost it just as rapidly.

His mania for gambling was so strong, he says, that he would bet on any chance. For instance, with two mindrops running down a board, he would bet which would reach the bottom first.

He was receiving $5 a week for his work as saloon porter when a doctor told him he had only four months to live. Cadle says this was his first real awakening.

He went back to his mother's home and there he told her he had decided to live a Christian life.

After ups and downs, he sought employment as an automobile salesman. In this job he achieved the record of selling a car a day for a year.

Finally, after he had paid off his debts, he had $200 and with this he started in the shoe repair business.

"GET OUT OR BUY OUT" After a little while he organized a company, then found himself in disagreement with others in the company, and it was necessary for him to get out or buy the others out.

But he had nothing like the amount of money required for the purchase. He happened to think of James P. Goodrich, whom he had seen when the latter was governor of Indiana and Cadle was on the janitor's force at the statehouse.

He went to Goodrich and told him of his predicament. Goodrich wrote out a check to Cadle for $25,500. Cadle then became president of the company and Goodrich vice president.

Today the concern has 16 establishments in the following cities: Chicago, Cincinnati, Louisville, Evansville, Ind., Terre Haute (Ind.), Columbus (O.), Fort Wayne (Ind.), Indianapolis and Dayton.

It is not an easy task for Cadle to tell his life story. There are tears in his eyes when he frankly says that in the old days he was not worthy the unstinted devotion his wife gave him.

But the old days are gone and Mr. and Mrs. Cadle are now happy in

Girl Psychic Makes the Furniture Jump

LONDON, May 27.—A new demonstration of psychic influence comes from the village of Dietersheim, in Bavaria, where the nine-year-old daughter of a servant is puzzling the scientists of Middle Europe by the strange powers she seems to possess. The girl is Marie Patch, and in all outward respects is a normal child. When she enters a room, however, the crockery, furniture, food and glassware jump about, and force has to be used to keep them in place.

Babies Born at Sea Named After Ships

NEW YORK, May 27.—Nobody broke a bottle of champagne on them, but they have been named Baltic, Olympic and Adriatic. "They" means three babies born on the liner Adriatic, which arrived from Cherbourg last week. They are the children of three stowage couples and were named after ships.
