

MAHONEY REMAINS IN JAIL HERE

Attempt to Get Out on Bail Blocked; State May File More Charges

James E. Mahoney failed in his attempt to reduce his bail of $5,000 on a forgery charge Thursday afternoon when Deputy Prosecutor T. H. Patterson told Presiding Judge King Dykeman he would pyramid the charges against the man, if necessary, in order to keep him at a high price.

Mahoney's attorney, Lee Johnston, used vigorously for reduction of bail after his client had pleaded guilty to the charge of making a forged power of attorney reporting to have been signed by his missing bride, Kate Mahoney, and giving him control over all her property.

Patterson answered that if the request were granted he would file the more forgery charges, one grand larceny charge and possibly a charge of murder in the first degree. He asserted the state could easily prove murder in the first degree if it could surmount the technical stumbling block of not being able to produce Mrs. Mahoney's body.

At Judge Dykeman's request Patterson made his argument in the form of an affidavit in which he swore that Mahoney had obtained $30,000 to $40,000 of his wife's property by forged documents and that the state had overwhelming evidence to prove murder.

Judge Dykeman then refused to reduce bail.

Wins Bullfrogs Upon Gibraltar

SIBERALTAR, June 24.—During a recent thunder storm a shower of frogs fell on the North Front. Thousands of these small, hopping creatures, unusual at the Rock, may be seen in the hedges. Some seven years ago a similar phenomenon occurred, and later a shower of sand covered everything with a pink deposit.

HIS WOODEN LEG WAS A GOOD ONE

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 24.—A legged thief grabbed $47 from Chester Mathas and ran away so fast he hit his crutches that Chester couldn't catch him.

Miracle of Shell Shock 'Marvel Voice' Is Created

Private H.P. Killikelly

SAN FRANCISCO, June 24.—The shriek of an exploding battle shell, by strange freak, has been converted into one of the world's most remarkable singing voices in the throat of H. P. Killikelly, American soldier.

Before the war, Private Killikelly could not chant a note. At Lassigny his ambulance was destroyed by barrage, and he, himself, knocked unconscious. He woke to find himself a German captive, speechless from gas and suffering from shell shock.

Following a daring escape, he was placed in a French hospital. Upon recovery he found himself possessed of what Senor Giorgio grand opera, terms "the most marvelous voice in the world, a remarkable baritone of dramatic quality, with a natural range of more than two octaves from G natural to B flat."

Heathen Ball Goes Back to Savagery in Latin Quarter

PARIS, June 24.—"The Year One of the Second Heathen Era" was ushered in by Latin quarter students with the annual four arts ball. Five thousand artists, many prominent in the social world, went back to savagery and Carthage at a leap.

While all were supposed to be "costumed" in Carthaginian style, hundreds solved the problem of "what to wear" by wearing nothing. Witnesses of the revelry at 4 o'clock in the morning saw no fewer than 300 nude women, chiefly models. An American art student, wearing only crimson bathing trunks, was nearly rejected by the reception committee because she "had too much on."

WOMAN WEARS CHAMPAGNE CORKS
The most novel costume was worn by Hebe, the famous model, who wore 13 champagne corks. "Gloria," the Swedish model, the original "September Morn," appeared with a "robe" stenciled on her back. Toward morning thousands of the unclad stormed the nearby Bois de Boulogne, where they indulged in Nervous revels while a special force of police gazed at them, smiling.

One American, giving his name as Paul Bessemer of Pittsburgh, had purchased an entry "card" consisting of a huge Habelasian poster from an artist for 1,000 francs. When he attempted to enter clad as a Roman senator a column of students discovered him to be a stranger. They tore off his costume and tied him to a post. A hundred women paraded past, each giving him a slap. He was then thrown out.

FORCE POLICEMEN TO BE KISSED
At 7 a. m. the procession passed thru the fashionable section of the Champs-Elysees, seizing taxicabs and private cars and forcing every policeman to be kissed.

Coming to the Seine, two artists, accompanied by a model, jumped in and swam across. The rest waited for the time-honored shower in the courtyard of the Fine Arts building, where the whole company cooled off in the stream from a hose played by the veteran janitor.

Aged artists said the night was the wildest in the history of Paris.

Honesty may be stamped on a man's face and yet leave a very wide margin.

WANT MORE IN CADET SCHOOL

Same Advantages as in Naval Academy
BY LEO R. SACK
WASHINGTON, June 24.—A drive is being made upon congressmen by the coast guard service to recommend young men for appointment to this service. They are being urged to persuade candidates for Annapolis and West Point to consider the advantages of the coast guard academy at New London, Conn.
After three years' study at New London, cadets are graduated as commissioned officers of the coast guard

Digs for Post Holes and Brings Up Gold

EMMETTSBURG, Ia., June 24.—Bernard Smith has discovered his farm to be a literal gold mine. Gold and silver, assaying at $20 to $40 a ton, was uncovered while the farmer was digging post holes. and are given the same rank and pay as graduates of the naval academy. While in school cadets are given the same pay and allowances as midshipmen in the navy ($750 a year and $1.08 a day for rations).
Altho congressmen cannot supply the demand for appointments to the military and naval academies, there is such "an unusually large number of vacancies at the coast guard academy," that the school authorities find it necessary to remind officials of its advantages.

"BORAX KING," BROKE, STAGES COMEBACK AT THE AGE OF 72

SAN FRANCISCO, June 24.—At the age of 72, "Borax" Smith, creator of the huge borax industry in the United States, and one of the west's most typical and picturesque figures has staged a "comeback" as spectacular as was his first entrance into the business limelight some 40 years ago.
Six months ago Francis Marion "Borax" Smith was classified as "broke" with all that the term implies. Practically impoverished at an age when the majority of men have retired from active business, Smith "disappeared," and began to reconstruct his once fabulous fortune with a government lease on borax, potash and soda deposits in the Seaford Lake, Cal., region.
Today he is credited with again being the autocrat of the borax industry. Backed by some of the strongest financial interests in New York, purchase has been made of a huge new vein of high grade colemanite in Clark County, Nevada. Engineers declare some 400,000 tons of borax are in sight.
How Smith, back in 1870, started with a mere handful of borax, used then chiefly in medicine and solder, and reared it to an industry that called for an output of 27,000 tons annually, indispensible over practically the entire range of modern

Police Going After Curbstone Lizards

NEWARK, N. J., June 24.—Newark police have started a round-up of "lizards" who pass dull evenings firing from the curbs of busy streets. The first arrest was that of "Smiling Joe" Ritchie, prize fighter, who got 30 days in jail for slapping a girl on the shoulder. Two other "lizards" were fined $10 each.
The "lizard" industry, is one of the big business romances of the age.
But in 1914 Smith failed for many millions, losing his interests and his title of "borax king."
Having regained the throne he is announced that the "20 mule team," which first established his fame, will be abandoned for a less romantic fleet of auto trucks.
