

LOVE DIES IN SONG NEST

Writer of Music Is Thru, But Wants Her Picture Back

The Nelson Home for Song Writers is situated on beautiful Hartstine island, across the bay from Olympia, the capital of Washington, in the wonderful Puget sound country. So reads the prospectus.

What a place for love! It was autumn, visualize Karl Gustav Nelson, founder of the Nelson Home for Song Writers, benefactor, writer of "My Eastern Rose" and "My Kentucky Belle," dreamer of dreams, seated on the bench in the mellow autumn moonlight, with the water plashing at his feet and the zephyrs whispering softly, sweetly—

See him arise and go into the house and pick up his evening paper. Read what he reads:

"Wanted—By young California widow with an electric washing machine and a nice boy of 8, position as housekeeper."

Is it any wonder that Karl Gustav Nelson, bachelor, pining for the touch of a woman's hand, the sound of a woman's voice, came hurrying to Seattle that morning following and married the young California widow in Justice (now Judge) Otis W. Brinker's court?

And took her home to beautiful Hartstine island and killed and cooed with her in the glow of the setting sun, and dreamed more dreams and wrote more songs?

That happened in October, 1920. The newspapers gave the event a double-column write-up. It is great to be America's greatest song writer with a home for song writers on beautiful Hartstine and a buxom California widow for a bride.

The vanished bride

But now all is changed. Karl Gustav Nelson has made his will, which reads: "Barred forever from this property are relatives of testator."

He will, when he dies, leave his estate and the Nelson Home for Song Writers, not to his bride but to a successor, a writer of songs, preferably one bowed down by poverty, who shall be named by a jury of 12 musicians. He writes the editor: "I enclose a snapshot of my wife, the buxom widow of California. I fell for her hard luck story. I never heard any more about her worldly goods—she even had a ranch up somewhere in Okanogan county stocked with full-blooded cattle. She told me she had traded with an old bachelor up there her saddle horse for his ranch.

"Well, all looked well until our honeymoon had passed one month. Then I went to Seattle for a business trip and a week later when I came back home my buxom Calif. widow with her trained angel child had disappeared.

"I did not hear from her until next February, when I got a divorce summons to appear in superior court in Seattle, and her lawyer wanted $25 of me for cost. Then she would pay the balance.

"She took my trunk. My safe was too heavy, so I still have that. She never filed the divorce suit. I got into communication with her former husband, Melvin A. Knowles, of Okanogan county. She had done the same to him."

All of which might be taken to indicate that Karl Gustav Nelson is done with his bride, forever. But, if that is so, then why did he add a postscript, to-wit:

"When you have used the photo please return it to me, as it is the only one that I have."

Woman Denies She Drove Recklessly

SALEM, Ore., Aug. 2.—Mrs. Edith Grub, Spokane, pleaded not guilty to charges of reckless driving before Judge Unruh here yesterday. She is charged with failing to stop and render assistance to an accident victim. Her hearing has been set for August 9.

Mrs. Grub is also defendant in a suit for $1,000 general damages filed in circuit court by C. W. Finn, stage driver, whom Mrs. Grub is alleged to have run down on the highway near here a week ago. She is arrested in Portland.

Talented Actress at Met

Was Original Mrs. Wiggs

Mary Carr. Her acting in "Over the Hill" at the Metropolitan this week is one of the outstanding features of this wonderful screen classic.

"Over the Hill," the Fox production showing at the Metropolitan for a limited engagement, presents one of the finest casts of players ever assembled. The work of Mary Carr, who plays the "mother role," is undoubtedly the best piece of acting ever flashed upon the motion picture screen. Her performance in "Over the Hill" has proven such wonderful success for Mary Carr that she has taken her place among the stellar stars of the cinema world.

SMALL ASKS FOR JUSTICE

Accused Governor Issues Appeal to People

BY J. L. O'SULLIVAN
United Press Staff Correspondent.

KANKAKEE, Ill., Aug. 2.—Governor Len Small today appealed to the people of the state not to prejudge him before he had an opportunity to demonstrate his innocence by process of law. The governor, indicted for alleged juggling of millions in state funds while serving as treasurer of Illinois, told the United Press "there is not one iota of evidence existing as to any wrongdoing on my part."

The executive, who has been touring the state on road inspection work since Sheriff Meester at Springfield refused his request to be arrested in Chicago, reiterated he never retained for himself one penny in state funds or interest from Illinois moneys.

"Up to the time I announced my candidacy for the republican nomination for governor, no person ever accused me of any wrongdoing," he declared.

"Attorney General Brundage, his associates and the interests which they represent have had open access to my official record all during the past four years. They have known all the time the exact amount of money which I had in my custody as state treasurer and they know as I know that I am absolutely innocent of every charge made in the indictments voted against me by the Sangamon county grand jury."

"Every man, every woman in Illinois, who is forced to pay exorbitant taxes upon their small homes should realize that my demand for bringing to light the hidden billions of dollars in this state of untaxed property has sent the agents of these interests to the capital to grind out lies to besmirch my good name."

"I will invoke every power of the state to keep at bay the corrupt and scheming agents of those in whose way I stand."

FUNERAL SERVICES for Abraham Mathisen, 1110 Eighth ave., who died Sunday, will be held from Bonney-Watson chapel Wednesday at 10:30 a. m.

FUNERAL SERVICES for Francis A. Burkhardt, who died at Redmond Sunday, were held from the Home Undertaking Co. Tuesday.
