CLEMMER
MAY ALLISON, the pretty blonde star, now at the Clemmer in "The Last Card," is a popular person with the coeds of the University of Southern California, and it is but few of the girls in that institution of learning who have not a picture of Miss Allison in some one of her many characters.
Recently when a new recreation room was opened at the Southern California school, the coeds invited Miss Allison to be present and take part in the ceremonies. To show her appreciation, Miss Allison donated a beautiful jade tea set.

WINTER GARDEN
Tom Mix's pictures are always enjoyable. Mix possesses a magnetic personality and his productions always include a routine of daredevil stunts. In "The Road Demon," at the Winter Garden this week, the popular star not only thrills with his horsemanship but with some mighty fine automobile racing. Claire Anderson plays opposite Mix.
BLUE MOUSE
"I Am Guilty," is the title of the film feature at the Blue Mouse this week. It is a melodramatic picture in which Mahlon Hamilton has the leading role.
Bradley King, magazine writer and playwright, is the author of the original screen story. The plot has to do with a mysterious murder.

STRAND
Lionel Barrymore is at the Strand this week. This clever actor is appearing in "Jim the Penman." The story is highly dramatic and offers Mr. Barrymore in the role of a young bank cashier whose uncanny skill at imitating signatures leads him into a tangled web which brings the picture to a surprising climax. Doris Rankin has the leading feminine role.
COLONIAL
The Colonial is now showing "Get Your Man," an exciting five-reeler starring Buck Jones.
"Get Your Man" was written by Alan Sullivan and deals with the experiences of a young Scotsman at home and later in Northwest Canada as a member of the Royal Northwest mounted police. There are both humor and drama in the picture.
COLISEUM
Pauline Starke, whose screen career has made rapid advancement under some very able directors, plays the leading role in "Salvation Nell," the screen version of the famous stage drama which is showing at the Coliseum.
Miss Starke is extremely young and is of the Mae Marsh type. She does some fine emotional acting in "Salvation Nell."
LIBERTY
Out of a list of more than 1,000 cities of the United States, Asheville, N. C., was chosen by the Paramount company for the locale of Booth Tarkington's mythical town of "Canaan." For weeks the location

ORIENTAL LOVERS AT REX

Yoda (Sessue Hayakawa) and Blossom (Tsuru Aoki), his wife, seem to be quite contented with each other and things in general. Incidentally, Tsuru Aoki is the wife of Hayakawa in real life as well as in "Black Roses," the picture play at the Rex this week, and of which this loving scene is a part.

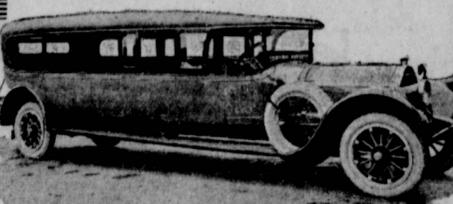

department searched for the typical town—one with the well-known town square, not too modern buildings, plenty of green grass and trees with green foliage. It was finally decided that Asheville was ideal for the filming of the picture.
Thomas Meighan is starred in "The Conquest of Canaan" at the Liberty this week.

TEARLE'S BROTHER IN "OVER THE HILL"
Noel Tearle, who plays the role of the hateful Isaac in the Fox classic, "Over the Hill," which is now playing its second big week at capacity houses at the Metropolitan theatre, is a brother of Conway Tearle, the handsome Selznick star. Tearle's role in "Over the Hill" is a thankless one. He is the shallow, cruel son of a loving, devoted mother. The actor succeeds in making the audience take an extreme dislike to him, which is in reality a great tribute to his art.
