Legionnaires Visit Port Townsend Sick

More than 300 Legionnaires and their families from Seattle visited the Marine hospital at Port Townsend Sunday, to entertain the 75 disabled veterans on Mothers' day.

The men were entertained at Chelmsokoma park, where a picnic lunch was served and games played. Music was furnished by the Sixth United States Artillery band.

It's a Sad, Sad Story, But It Had to Come

He wore a shame-faced expression as he walked up Second ave. He gazed furtively at passers-by, frequently turning his face toward shop windows, as if he didn't want to be recognized.

He walked with the air of a man who was expecting an unpleasant surprise—like a copper's heavy hand on his shoulder.

Frequently he blushed guiltily and clenched his fists nervously.

As a matter of fact his past was as blameless as a newborn babe; the doors of the proudest homes in Seattle were open to him; he was honored and respected everywhere.

Yet—

He was a shamed man, none the less.

He had been betrayed by the warm weather over the week-end.

Saturday's sunshine had made his old fedora unendurable and he had gone home and retrieved his last year's straw hat from the clothes closet.

Friend wife did the rest with a can of whitewash.

And so he ventured forth with the first straw hat of the season.

Altogether a suspicious performance.

You'd think that he had just committed some terrible crime—murdered his grandmother, hooked his wife's wedding ring or stool pigeoned on his favorite bootlegger.

But appearances are deceiving.

Mysteries of Radio Explained by Expert

BY R. L. DUNCAN

Director, Radio Institute of America

Nickel-iron batteries constitute the second general type of storage battery used in radio reception.

They consist of nickel-plated steel grids. The positive plates have round tubes which contain a nickel oxide as the active material. The negative plates have thin, rectangular pockets, hydraulically pressed, perforated and corrugated, containing iron in a very finely divided state.

The electrolyte for these batteries is a 21 per cent solution of potassium hydrate mixed with a small amount of lithium hydrate. The cells are contained in a steel can, which is electrically welded together. They are connected to form a battery by means of copper connectors.

During the charge of the battery the oxygen is transferred from the iron to the nickel electrodes. During the discharge the oxygen is returned.

In the case of the lead cell one uses a hydrometer to measure the specific gravity of the fluid. But the specific gravity of the electrolyte in the nickel-iron cell never changes. Therefore the only way to measure its state of charge is by using an ampere-hour meter.

This type of battery is very durable and will stand a considerable strain. The full charge of such a battery is usually 1.3 volts per cell. It is recharged when the voltage drops below .9 per cell.

The charge voltage of a lead cell is 2.08 volts. It should never be discharged below 1.8 volts.

Never permit a battery to be over-charged nor drop below its normal discharge.

A well kept battery will last for years if given the proper care. The best way to treat it is to keep it working. Discharge and recharge it often, for if it is kept idle its strength and durability will become weakened.

But never charge or discharge it too rapidly. About the worst thing that one can do to a battery is to have a wire on each terminal and then touch, or almost touch, the ends together to see the spark. Some dealers do this to show the purchaser that the battery is O. K. But it is a poor practice.

Always keep the level of the electrolyte 1/2 an inch above the plates. Keep flames of all kinds, at all times, away from the battery. Keep all terminals and connections tight and free from corrosion. Keep the battery clean and dry and do not allow any impurities to get into it.

VETS HAVE HALF OF FUND RAISED

Start Whirlwind Drive to Get Remainder This Week

With approximately half of the required $25,000 already raised, a whirlwind campaign was inaugurated Monday to complete this week the fund needed to finance the national convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the reunion of the 81st division in Seattle.

The two meetings are expected to bring 80,000 people to the city—people from every state in the country and some from foreign lands. The citizens' committee in charge of the drive is therefore "selling" these visitors to the city.

"Each visitor," explained S. B. Asis, chairman of the committee, "is expected to spend from $75 to $100 during the five days he is in town. In order to entertain these visitors properly, we need only a little more than 50 cents apiece. Not bad as a business proposition, is it—80 cents for at least $75?"

Dan W. Bass, J. P. Douglas and C. S. Willis, comprising the committee on decoration, plan to make Seattle streets and buildings a mass of vivid color during the joint convention.

Ralph A. Horr, director of convention activities for the Veterans of Foreign Wars, is working out an elaborate program of entertainment and sports events, and Daniel L. Pratt, secretary of the Pacific International Yachting association, in charge of aquatic events, was to announce details of a proposed yacht and power boat regatta at a meeting of the executive committee Monday night, in the Denny building.

Synthetic leather and rubber are made from yeast, glycerine, tar and water.

It is now possible to send a crewless vessel as far as radio impulses will carry.

Stops Pain Instantly

The simplest way to end a corn is Blue-jay. A touch stops the pain instantly. Then the corn loosens and comes out. Made in two forms—a colorless, clear liquid (one drop does it) and in extra thin plasters. Use whichever form you prefer, plasters or the liquid—the action is the same. Safe, gentle. SCIENTIST TELLS OF GLAND ACTION SEAT OF LIFE

EXHAUSTION of the glands of internal secretion and more particularly those glands that provide dynamic force to the body, is now recognized as the cause of fatigue and all weaknesses. These glands are the ones mainly responsible for the source and distribution of energy and it is chiefly from these glandular substances that effective medication is derived.

FUGITIVE GETS IN SMART SET

That Guy Manners, wanted here for embezzling $1,550 from the family of Nettie G. Hammond, his fiancée, cut a wide swath in Nashville, Tenn., a year ago is the information just received from the Southern city.

Manners is wanted here for using the mails to defraud. Shortly after his indictment by the grand jury, he jumped his $1,000 bond in New Orleans and vanished.

In Nashville, Manners was employed by the Chamber of Commerce. He posed as a literary man and as a cousin of Lady Diana Manners, of London. He was entertained in the most exclusive circles.

HOLDS TO LOG TILL RESCUED

Knocked from his feet by an eight-inch fuel oil hose Monday morning, J. Swanson, 85, quartermaster aboard the Union oil tanker Lyman Stewart, fell 20 feet from the deck. He struck across his back on a log at the foot of the piling at Pier 14, and altho half unconscious, clung to the log until rescued by Guy Wrenn, a dock worker.

Swanson was taken to Providence hospital in a critical condition. It is feared that his back is broken.

Whole City Joins to Honor Mothers

Mothers' Day was observed with much reverence in Seattle Sunday. "Mother" was spoken of in churches and at special meetings. White and red carnations were worn by hundreds of men and women. Florists reported that their carnation supplies were practically exhausted Sunday morning. Telegraph wires were busy sending messages of love to mothers far away.
