THANKS STAR FOR CHANCE

W. B. Davis Wishes Lesson Had Been Taught Earlier
"I wish The Star had been around to start a thrift campaign when I was a young man. It would have brought the lesson home to me in such a way that I would have begun to save 90 years ago instead of Monday. But I'm on the right road now, even if it is rather late. I hope Seattle young folks will profit by the mistakes of many in doing one and accept the opportunity The Star so generously affords."
W. B. Davis, 6509 10th ave. N. E., was the speaker. He is 92 years old. Monday he opened his first savings account and carried home a prize of $10 because he was the oldest depositor on Old Folks' day.
"I'm going to keep adding to this little start of mine as long as I am privileged to live," he continued. "Even if that shouldn't be very long I know I'll be surprised to know how much it'll amount to if I keep at it persistently. The Star is doing a great work; all Seattle has a chance to profit in a way that should make thousands of homes happy."
Mr. Davis has 14 grandchildren, 13 great grandchildren, and has the distinction of having ridden on the first trolley car operating in Seattle in 1839 on the Lake Union line, and in an airplane here when he was just 91 years old. He attributes his activity and his health to right thinking.
He has been teaching an Americanization class of Japanese students during the past 13 months.
Mr. Davis is one of thousands of Seattle folks who are profiting by The Star's campaign. By noon Tuesday more than 3,500 persons had availed themselves of The Star's offer. A credit of $1 will be given every person who clips the thrift coupon on the first page of The Star, takes it to the Seattle National bank and deposits 50 cents. Each depositor is given a savings bank in the form of a Liberty bell.
The campaign will close Saturday night. Don't delay; go to the bank today.

H. Brew Gazes on Girl Living in Glass House

By Homer Brew
Well, folks, I guess it won't come as a surprise when I tell you that I have spent the last two days watching the movie actress in Herb Schoenfeld's store window.
Most of you was down there yesterday, and I guess you noticed me. I was the little guy at the left, with his nose stuck against the window-pane. I would a been closer, but I was afraid I would be cut by broken glass.
The movie actress's name is Edna Sampson, and I guess she knows me, too, because I kept winking at her like I was a old friend.
She is staying in the window until next Saturday night as a kind of demonstration for Better Homes week, and, if all homes had a sweet momma like her, I bet there wouldn't be so many Kelly Pool experts in the world.
Edna—I hope she doesn't mind me calling her Edna—is living, eating, sleeping and breathing in the store window. She even plays the piano, but that doesn't make any difference, because Second ave. is noisy, anyway.
Last night she went to bed clad in pale pink pajamas that would have busted up the home of a Follies girl. But I notice she did not curl her hair or plaster a layer of cold cream over her face. After all, there is some things that is better hid from us men.
And this morning when she crawled out of the hay, I noticed something was missing. I guess it was the little things that make married life so enjoyable, things like a husband or a cute little yelling kiddie.
And there wasn't any of that conversation that illuminates the early morning hours with the sacred glow of domesticity, for instance: "Get up an' close the window, honey."
"Get up yourself, you big stiff."
"Hey, you left the cover off the toothpaste! It's as hard as rock."
"Where's my collar buttons? Where did you hide 'em?"
"Isn't that just like a man? They're right where you left them. If you'd put your things away at night you'd be able to find them in the morning."
"That's right. Start a quarrel. I can't even ask a simple question but

PEACE ISSUE DEPENDS ON TURK REPLY

Note Is Awaited From Angora to Decide Future in Near East
LONDON, Oct. 10.—The British cabinet was summoned to meet at 5 o'clock this afternoon to consider the Near Eastern crisis.
MUDANIA, Oct. 10.—Peace or war in the Near East was put up to the Angora government today, while Great Britain quietly shifted more troops into strategic positions in preparation for any eventuality.
Ismet Pasha, Kemalist representative at the conference here, was presented by Gen. Harrington with allied proposals for evacuation of Thrace on condition the Turks did not further violate the neutral zones. The Ottoman delegate forwarded these to Angora, promising a reply from Mustapha Kemal's government by this afternoon.
Limitations of a permanent neutral zone around the straits and the number of Turkish gendarmes which is to be permitted in Thrace were also mentioned in the allied note.
Meanwhile, the British went unostentatiously about the business of fortifying a strong line of defense east of Scutari for the protection of Constantinople. More guards have arrived, a detachment of the Coldstreamers joining the Grenadiers. Field artillery is in place. Airplanes whizzed busily overhead.
If the Turk should decide for war the curtain will roll back to disclose strong British forces ready for battle along a line of defense that cuts off Kemal's troops from Constantinople and the straits.
The Madania conference is temporarily adjourned, pending the Turkish reply. Allied representatives forced this state of affairs, the French threatening to lead a bolt from the parley if Ismet Pasha did not secure an immediate answer.

Qualifies as Youngest Seaman Out of Seattle

By E. P. Chalcraft
Typhoons hold no terror for William Trulock Beeks.
Just returned from a three-month voyage across the Pacific aboard the steamship President McKinley, Trulock has qualified as one of the youngest seamen to sail from Seattle.
At the age of 16 he's been thru two typhoons and is as familiar with the cities of Yokohama, Kobe, Shanghai, Hongkong and Manila as the average lad of his age is with Olympia and Tacoma.
Trulock, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Beeks, 109 W. 56th st., was graduated from Queen Anne high school last June.
He thought he wanted to enter the naval academy at Annapolis, but wasn't sure about it.
"So I thought," he explained, "that I'd try a taste of real sea life and see if I liked it."
First taking the lifeboat drill test, Trulock made a round trip from Seattle to San Pedro as deckhand aboard the H. F. Alexander. Thus qualified, he applied for and secured an assignment on the President McKinley.
Labor today had joined a wide-spread demand among opposition parties that the premier resign. Resolutions calling for immediate resignation of the government and election of a new parliament were adopted by a joint council representing trades congresses and the labor party.
The situation in the Near East furnished a useful lever for evicting Lloyd George, his enemies believe independent liberals and unionist "die hards" started the attack.
The prime minister is not saying anything. It was announced he will issue a statement on the Near East after hearing directly from Gen. Harrington.
Lloyd George, in defense of his policies regarding the Turkish trouble will be made in a public speech.

HOLDUP PLOT FRUSTRATED NEAR TENINO

Conductor Bluffs Two Bandits on Tacoma Train; Suspects Seen
TACOMA, Oct. 10.—An unsuccessful attempt to rob Tacoma-Portland passenger train No. 461 on the Northern Pacific railway near Tenino early this morning was made by two unmasked men who poked automatic pistols in the face of Conductor Ward at 4 a. m. today.
Ward is said to have refused to hold up his hands at their command. The men, becoming frightened, jumped from the train.
Tacoma police were informed the men boarded a Tacoma-bound freight. An hour later the night watchman at the G. N. railway freight sheds here chased two suspicious characters from the yard. In their flight they dropped a roll of blankets containing stolen jewelry.
Detective Captain Strickland said the goods were taken either at Vancouver, Wash., or in Portland.
Police here believe the pair who flashed weapons on Conductor Ward planned to hold up the train and make their escape when it arrived at Chehalis.

MURDER CHARGE IS DISCREDITED

Accuser of Pal Is Now Facing Probe
NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 10.—Raymond Schneider, accuser of Clifford Hayes as the murderer of Dr. Edward Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, today was shown by testimony furnished the prosecutors to have:
1. Threatened to murder the father of Pearl Bahmer, the girl for whose sake he said Hayes shot the couple on September 14.
2. Repeatedly threatened to shoot his own wife.
3. Been responsible for the attempted suicide of the Bahmer girl in the Raritan canal two months ago.
These developments in the murder mystery heightened public sentiment against the further imprisonment of young Hayes, who is in jail at Somerset as a result of Schneider's story.
Schneider says Hayes shot the minister and choir singer by mistake.
Hayes, held on charges of first degree murder, protested his innocence. "Say," he told interviewers at the jail, "if I killed them, do you think I would have stuck around New Brunswick all this time?"
Prosecutors Beckman and Strickler refused to divulge the contents of the 300-word statement that Schneider is alleged to have signed after he was grilled for 24 hours.
Pearl Bahmer, the 15-year-old girl, with brown eyes and bobbed hair, came to the defense of Hayes.
"Cliff didn't do it," she said.
It was Pearl and Schneider who reported to the police that the bodies of the millionaire pastor of the church of St. John the Evangelist and his choir leader were under the tree on the Phillips farm.
"On the morning of Saturday, September 16," the girl said, "Ray and I met to take a walk. I told him I wanted to go in the direction of De Runsey lane. He said he didn't want to go that way, but I finally coaxed him to do it."
"We turned off on the Phillips farm and noticed two persons lying under the tree. He appeared nervous when I said, 'Let's go look at them; it's funny they don't move.'"
"I don't want to go over there," he said, but finally consented.
"There we discovered the bodies of Rev. Hall and Mrs. Mills. I know the minister had his watch with him then."
"He only went to a farm house to phone the police after I had coaxed him."

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Billions of dollars of surplus investment money in the United States, presenting an unprecedented business revival, were disclosed today as the result of the government's call for a 34-year loan of a half billion dollars at 4 1/2 per cent.
Over-subscription of the loan, asked for refunding of part of the national debt, by $1,000,000 to $2,000,000,000, was assured today as applications for hundreds of millions rolled into the New York financial district banks from coffers of "American business."
The quota was oversubscribed in a few hours.

Search Abandoned for Miner's Body
JACKSON, Cal., Oct. 10.—Search for the body of William Fessel, who died with 46 other men in the Argonaut mine, has been temporarily abandoned because of gas and water in the lower levels of the Argonaut.
When fire again flamed up in the Argonaut, bulkheads had to be replaced in the shaft. This has caused a new accumulation of gas. Water has now risen to the 4,500 foot level in the mine and is being pumped off thru the opening made into the Kennedy mine by rescue crews.

LLOYD GEORGE FACES ATTACK

BY LLOYD ALLEN
LONDON, Oct. 10.—Lloyd George's critics are giving him no peace in the crisis.
Labor today had joined a wide-spread demand among opposition parties that the premier resign. Resolutions calling for immediate resignation of the government and election of a new parliament were adopted by a joint council representing trades congresses and the labor party.
The situation in the Near East furnished a useful lever for evicting Lloyd George, his enemies believe independent liberals and unionist "die hards" started the attack.

TOO MUCH FUEL BILL IS ARGUED

Bitter Scrap Is Staged in the Mayor's Office
At a conference in Mayor Brown's office Tuesday morning at which all of the fuel dealers of the city were represented, a movement was afoot for the repeal of the ordinance under which seven woodmen were recently arrested for selling people more wood than they paid for.
The sentiment at the meeting was divided and there were many acrimonious arguments between dealers and attorneys representing the two sides of the case.
Jesse Ives, of the Stimson Lumber company, made the direct charge that the existing ordinance, which limits the size of a load of wood, was part of a conspiracy on the part of coal interests to strangle the wood industry.
"It is impossible to sell a load of 84 cubic feet for any less money than a load of 100 cubic feet," Ives declared. "This is due to the cost of transportation. Therefore, the only way to protect the public is to set a minimum standard."
J. E. Peterson, appearing as attorney for the Stimson Co., told how a bill similar to the present ordinance had been presented to the last legislature and how the legislature had refused to pass it.
"Is that measure has another motive than that of protecting the public. Its true motive is to stifle competition."
The session was marked by several bitter attacks upon L. J. Allen, chief inspector of weights and measures, who caused the arrest of the seven dealers.
"Allen has laid down on his job. No effort has been made to enforce the ordinance," J. F. Vining charged.
A plea was made for a minimum load of wood by instead of the limited load of wood by the Bryant Lumber Co.
"It's no crime," he said, "to give someone more than he pays for. But it is an offense to short change him. The minimum load would make it impossible for the customer to get too little, but the present ordinance simply makes it impossible for him to get too much."

Pahaska Tepee Is Menaced by Flames

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 10.—Volunteer firemen battled a forest fire on Lookout mountain, near here, for several hours last night to prevent the flames destroying Pahaska Tepee, in which are kept hundreds of relics of William F. Cody (Buffalo Bill). A shift in the wind at a late hour turned the fire from the museum.
Pahaska Tepee is familiar to thousands of tourists who annually visit the summit of the mountain, on which is Cody's grave.

Rhododendron Buds Again!

Editor The Star:
On a trip to a Kitsap county resort, Sunday, I saw rhododendrons with well-developed buds, almost ready to blossom. Also dogwood trees with foliage turned red and with large seeds, yet at the same time heavily budded, as if for an October blossoming.
I would like to ask local naturalists if this is not an extremely unusual phenomenon, due to the uncommon duration of our warm weather.
