May Okeh Generous Fuel Men

Wagons carrying loads of fuel as large as those pictured in the caravan above will be within the law, if expected legislation is enacted in the city council.

Former regulation, which placed a load at 84 cubic feet as a fixed quantity, will be changed to name the same quantity as a "minimum."

TURKS SIGN ARMISTICE WITH ALLIES

Final Parley on Permanent Balkan Peace Will Soon Be Called

BY EDWARD J. BING MUDANIA, Oct. 11.—The Near Eastern armistice was signed by the allies at 6:35 this morning.

The final meeting of the Mudania conference lasted but 10 minutes.

Journalists were called into the room while the allied generals and Ismet Pasha, representative of the Turkish nationalists, fixed their signatures to the protocol.

The armistice terms represented the utmost concessions the Western powers would make to the Turks.

Previous to the conclusion of the armistice parley, Sir Charles Harington, British commander-in-chief, notified Ismet Pasha that the protocol represented the final terms of the allies, as he had the backing of both France and Italy.

Calling of the peace conference, which is designed to bring permanent peace in the Near East, is to come soon.

As far as is known, no action was taken on the suggestion of the French that the parley be held at Scutari, Turkey, on November 1.

Five copies of the armistice were signed. Copies went to each of the following countries after their representatives affixed their signatures: Great Britain, France, Italy, Greece and Turkey.

The Turks signed at 11 o'clock last night.

The essence of the armistice follows:

1. The Greeks must evacuate Thrace. The Hellenic army must be out in two weeks and the civil force shortly thereafter.

2. The Turkish gendarmeries may enter Thrace after an allied control of 45 days. The Turkish force of civil police must not exceed 3,000.

3. The Turks must not advance beyond the present lines in the land neutral zone.

4.—In the Chanak neutral zone the Turks must withdraw 10 miles from the British positions. The British must not bring in reinforcements in this area.

5.—The Turks guarantee to protect minorities.

The above will be the status in the Near East until after the final peace parley is held.

Here's Inside Story of Seattle Bootleg Trade

Plain Facts on How Liquor Is Marketed in This Community

(Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of articles on the bootlegging industry in Seattle. It is not a fanciful tale—it is a plain, matter-of-fact statement, as made to a reporter for The Star by one of the principal "retailers" in Seattle. The reader must bear in mind that it is the story of the bootlegger, told from his own viewpoint, and that The Star does not in any way subscribe to many of his views.)

BY JOHN DOE, M. D. (As related to Robert Bastien Bermann)

A lot of people will think it queer, no doubt, that I, a man who makes his living by breaking the law, should voluntarily go to a newspaper and reveal to it, for publication, the inmost secrets of my illicit trade.

But, when you stop to consider, it isn't so queer after all. You can hardly pick up a magazine these days without finding some article as "How I Made a Million Dollars in the Glass Button Industry" or "The Road to Success in the Manicuring Profession." If these men and women deem it advisable to describe their methods to the public why shouldn't I?

Because you must remember that, from my standpoint, my business is just as legitimate as any one's else. I am a law-breaker—yes. But I am not a criminal. And I consider that to attain success, thru honorable means, in the bootlegging business is just as commendable as the attainment of success, thru honorable means, in banking or railroading or anything else.

As for revealing trade secrets—well, there isn't much that I could tell the police or the federal or county people, anyway. If I do find myself going into dangerous detail I'll pull up.

And my story may do a lot of good—both to the public and the bootlegging profession.

This is the age of publicity. Publicity can't hurt any legitimate business—and, as I believe bootlegging, my kind of bootlegging, is legitimate, publicity can't hurt me.

Instead, it may tend to increase my business, by demonstrating to the public that we bootleggers—that is, the honorable ones—are'n't highbalds, and that we are only making a living out of our profession.

However, I am digressing too far. To begin at the beginning, I ought to tell you who I am.

The name "John Doe" is, of course, assumed. But the initials that appear after it are not. I am a duly licensed physician.

Claims He Bootlegged; Gets Prosecutor's Aid

Bootleggers have taken to court to settle their differences. Upon complaint of a man giving the name of Dave Smith, 3345 Minor ave., the prosecuting attorney Wednesday charged Harry Cooper, now in the county jail, with robbery.

Smith accuses Cooper of holding him up September 13 and taking from him bootleg liquor valued at $1,962.

Smith identified Cooper as the leader of a gang of five knock-over artists who robbed him of his stock in trade.

No action is contemplated against Smith in connection with his confessed importation of a cargo of booze, which consisted of 18 cases of Scotch whisky and seven cases of Gordon gin, as the evidence is not available, according to the prosecuting attorney.

YEGG RETURNS BABY'S RING NAME ORDERED PUT ON BALLOT

Conscience-stricken because he had stolen five babies' rings from Mrs. George Turpel of the Monterey apartments, 622 First ave. W., a burglar Tuesday night hurried the jewel case in which they were kept thru an open window, where Mrs. Turpel found them a moment later.

The jewel box was stolen last Saturday, together with a gold watch, a diamond ring, an opal stickpin and a pencil. All were returned.

Thieves Tuesday night entered the Ulica Cash Grocery, 1221 Terry ave., but secured only some foreign money and tobacco. Cutting a hole in a window screen, burglars entered the home of C. W. Ramsey, 3051 19th ave. S., and took a silver dollar, leaving much jewelry untouched.

C. A. Short, 4525 Sixth ave. N. E., told police thieves had cut away his screen door and entered his place, taking $40 cash.

A thief who defied superstition took $11 from the home of H. T. Kreisler, 4541 Latona ave., and left several good fingerprints.
