Cynthia Grey:

The Girl Away From Home—The Four Square Walls of Her Hotel Room Her Home and Only Place to Entertain Boy Friends—She Seeks Advice.

BY CYNTHIA GREY

This morning I found among my mail a letter from the girl away from home. She has no girl friends or relatives in Washington. She has no place other than her hotel room to entertain her boy friends. First-class hotels, she says, will not permit it—and the others, she cannot live in them. What is she to do? Her letter follows:

Dear Cynthia Grey: I have read your letters every night since I landed in Seattle and you seem like a real friend, so here I come.

Three months ago I came here and I have a good position in a store and like your city fine, only for one reason. I am 20 years old and have no folks in Washington, but I have lots of boy friends. You may think this sounds odd, but when you read my letter thru you will understand.

I rented a nice place of two rooms on Third ave. when I first came to Seattle. I had only been here five or six days when I met some of my boy friends from home. These boys had lived in the same town with me all of my life and used to eat at my mother's a great deal. The first thing they said was: "L, if you will cook us a good meal we will bring up the food," so I promised and that evening they came home with me after work and I cooked dinner, and after that we played cards until about 9:30. A few nights afterward they came up and always went away before 10. About a week afterward, my landlady told me to move. I did, but tried to explain, but she only said, "Oh, I know about your kind," and shut the door in my face.

The next place I moved to I soon found wasn't decent, so I moved again. Of course they didn't care how many callers I had, but I could not live in a place like that. And I had to move twice after that. Finally I told the boys not to come up so often, and they said they would not bother me again, and have not so far; but I like my friends and like them to come and see me, just as much as the girls who have homes. Now, shall I quit having friends and always be alone? You know my room is the only place I have to call a home? Can you tell me what I could do? Yours truly, losing the line of the early city wall across Manhattan Island. It contains numerous banking institutions, and is the center of financial operations in the United States. The stock exchange, being just off it on Broad street, "Wall street" is an expression often used as a symbol for the money power of the country.

Was Sir Isaac Newton a Christian believer? The following is what one of the standard books of reference says: "That the greatest philosopher of which any age can boast," says Brewster, "was a sincere and humble believer in the leading doctrines of our religion and lived conformably to its precepts, has been justly regarded as a proud triumph of the Christian faith. Newton's religious opinions, however, were not strictly orthodox. Like Milton, he appears to have had a decided leaning towards Arianism."

Is the intellectual capacity of women equal to that of men? Anthropologists and psychologists seem to be rather generally agreed that all recent studies of the question of the relative mental capacity of men and women show that the intellectual capacity of women is quite equal to that of men. Intelligence tests among students and other classes seem to prove this. The average size of the brain of women is somewhat below that of men, but size of brain seems to have no direct relation to intelligence.

Under the selective draft law, how many men were registered and how many inducted into the service? There were 2,231,021 men registered and slightly more than 2,200,000 were inducted.
