SENATORS HEAR SMYRNA HORROR

Armenian Refugees Tell of Turk Atrocities

By W. H. Porterfield

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—A tale of horror long drawn out. A dozen young girls tied by thongs to the saddlehorns of half-wild horses and dragged thru the turbid waters of a cold, muddy river, until all are dead.

Old women put to the torture to reveal supposed hidden stores of gold; young women sold into slavery and branded with their owners' private mark!

Young men shot down and left to die on the trail, older men beaten with whips, and over all the roar of flames from burning Smyrna—these are but a few of the horrible stories told by refugees from Asia Minor, Armenians who have been admitted to this country under bond and must return to Europe when their time has expired, like souls condemned.

The stories are being related in all the colorful detail which comes so readily to the Oriental, and the solemn-faced, rather unimaginative Middle-west members of the house immigration committee sit open-mouthed at the recital.

For these hearings on the White bill are still going on. White, of Kansas, has introduced a bill to permit certain Armenian refugees who may have escaped the torch and sword of the bloody Kurd and brutal Turk in Asia Minor, and who may have relatives in America, to be admitted to this country, despite the Dillingham "3 per cent" law. In amending the present immigration restrictions and let in several thousand of these Armenian refugees.

Their case is pitiful enough to bring tears from the eyes of a stone image, yet there is scarcely a chance that the bare will be let down a fraction of an inch. "For," say most of the committee-men, "if we amend the law to admit Armenians, why not Poles and Italians and Greeks? And if so, why have any law at all?"

But the stories are continuing day by day at the capitol.

Two Arrested for Selling "Smilo"

Mr. and Mrs. B. Murata were released Thursday on $250 bonds each, after they had been taken before United States Commissioner R. W. McClelland and charged with selling "Smilo," a beverage said to contain 1 per cent alcohol.

United States Commissioner A. C. Bowman released Arthur Anderson on $500 bail Thursday. Anderson was held on liquor charges.

George R. Potts was fined $300 when he pleaded guilty in federal court to liquor charges. Oscar Mohr was given a $250 fine on the same charge.

GERMANY IN 1923

Monarchists Planning for New Throne
Junkers Hope to Overturn Republic
Tell the People They Need Real Boss
Fascisti Bands Growing Thru Nation

By MILTON BRONNER

BERLIN, Dec. 29.—Openly, when time, place and officials permit; secretly, when the reverse is true, German monarchists work for restoration of a throne.

In favored places, like "White" Bavaria, they are very bold. Even in "Red" Berlin and "Redder" Saxony, they have secret organizations.

"Der Tag" used to be the day on which kaiserist Germany was to declare war and beat France, England and any other countries that stood in the path of German monarchist plans.

"Der Tag" now is the day upon which they will overturn the republic and substitute for it the old monarch, swaggering Junker clan.

Time, circumstance and condition so play into their hands that the monarchists are making substantial gains.

To those who feel Germany hasn't a friend, they say "You drove out the kaiser and got the Versailles treaty, with its cup of humiliation."

To the workmen: "Under the kaiser your wages went further."

To the small business man: "Under the Hohenzollerns you never had to pay such monetary tribute."

The monarchists have press, pamphleteers, book writers.

A stuffy Bavarian professor in a big university repeats that Germans are so constituted that they must have a boss.

The old newspaper, Kreuz Zeitung, appearing as the Neue Preussische Zeitung restores the iron cross to its title head, with the motto: "Forward With God for King and Country." This is in the capital of the German republic!

In the reichstag the monarchists have deputies. Among the 453 members, the social democrats lead with 172, the central party has 68, the German national people's party 67. This latter is the party of the Junkers and monarchists. Its reichstag leader is Karl Helfferich.

Not part of the national people's party, but playing the monarchist game, are organizations whose name is legion.

Then there are such secret organizations as brought about the murders of Erzberger and Rathenau.

After these murders the government passed laws for the republic's safety. These laws have brought the republic and the Bavarian government into sharp dispute. The latter has looked with benevolent eyes upon various organizations whose aim is, to say the least, anti-republican.

Bavaria insists upon self-government, home rule. This undoubtedly has the support of the mass of Bavarians.

One of recent Bavarian developments was formation of the national socialists. They are not socialists. They are monarchists. It has been openly charged they have organized storm troops and secreted weapons.

Mussolini's success with his fascisti in combating the Italian socialists has brought new ambitions to the national socialists. They dream of a movement which shall spread over Germany as the fascisti spread over Italy. It would end the republic and restore the monarchists. The other day, in the Bavarian landtag, one of them raised the cry—"Long live the king."

As soon as these national socialists, under various disguising names, sought to organize outside Bavaria, the Berlin government dissolved the organizations and forbade their meetings.

Bavaria ignored the decree. In the landtag, Minister of the Interior Schweyer said he saw no danger in the national socialists.

More recently the German government issued decrees against student societies in lyciums and universities, whose existence it deemed a menace to the state—societies dominated by sons of Junker families, of old officers now without fat jobs.

But the trouble, even outside of Bavaria, is that the government is never sure it has accomplished its purpose. It dissolved the Orghesch, a semi-military society, and practically the next day there was formed a union of ex-members of the Orghesch.

ARTHUR BURCH BACK ON SOIL

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 29.—Arthur C. Burch, acquitted defendant in the J. Bolton Kennedy murder case, has gone "back to the soil."

Burch, it was learned today, is now boss of an excavation gang doing grading work on suburban lots near Beverly Glen, where Kennedy was shot to death as he started to enter his summer home.

Burch, garbed in overalls, and just as "chippy" as ever, said that he took the job because he needs outdoor work, after his confinement for more than a year in the county jail.

Madalynne Obenchain, co-defendant, is said to be living in Los Angeles with friends. But her whereabouts is still a secret, even the police having no track of her.

BANDIT TURNS DOWN MONEY

A black bandit, who stopped Mrs. L. C. Jones, 202 E. John st., Thursday night at 20th ave. and E. Madison st., refused to take 50 cents, which she declared was all that she possessed.

The man stopped Mrs. Jones as she was coming back from a grocery store and inquired: "How much money have you?"

"Just half a dollar," Mrs. Jones replied.

The bandit shrugged his shoulders. "You can keep it," he said. "You need it more than I do."

Another highwayman, who robbed Mrs. Margaret Finks, 723 Marion st., was not so considerate. He roughly jostled Mrs. Finks at Second ave. and Union st., taking her purse, containing a brooch, which had been in the family for 130 years and was highly valued. No description of the man could be obtained.

Important to Mothers

Scientists tell us that the human body runs as an engine runs—on fuel. As fat burns more readily than almost any other food—fat is a perfect fuel food—it produces energy to run the body and heat to keep it warm.

Children, who are "going from morning until night" need more energy food than grown-ups—they need fat. But delicate children who need it most, frequently will not eat fat in its usual form. Practically all children will eat fat in the form of delicate made from the rich fat of the white coconut meat. Nucoa is not only non-injurious to the most delicate of digestions, but is helpful when animal fats cannot be eaten. A Spread made from coconut fat—as Nucoa is made—is used exclusively in many famous hospitals for the treatment of stomach troubles and various forms of digestive disorders.

NUCOA

Energy foods, however, are by no means the only foods a child needs. There must be food for growth, such as milk, which supplies the lime needed for building bone, sound teeth, etc. They need iron to make red blood—to be found in spinach and other vegetables, in eggs, raisins, etc. And they need fluorine for strong eyes—fluorine is one of the 16 vital food elements and is found in whole wheat products. And they need the wonderful properties to be found in oranges, tomatoes, carrots.

So the wise mother will give her children cereals with plenty of cream, a pint (at least) of milk a day, leafy vegetables, eggs and good bread spread with the energy food—Nucoa.
