

PROGRESSIVES OF STAR ENTHUSE AT BIG NIGHT RALLY

Great Crowd Turns Out to Hear D. E. Hubbard, Mrs. Roberts, O. V. Badley and Captain Yates.

What is declared to be the most enthusiastic political meeting ever held in Ada county was held at Star last night. There was an audience of no less than 500 people present and the utterances of the speakers were loudly applauded showing the unanimous sympathy that was felt for what they advocated. A Progressive club has been organized at the village having nearly 300 members and the vote there will be practically split for the Progressive ticket with more than 600 votes that may be cast.

Mrs. F. H. Roberts presided at the meeting and among the speakers were Mrs. Roberts, O. V. Badley, candidate for secretary of state; Captain Yates, nominee for state treasurer, and D. E. Hubbard.

Mr. Hubbard made a great hit with the audience by declaring that if the first two letters of the names of Haines were taken and combined with the first two letters of the name of Hawley, it would indicate just what the people of Idaho would get if either were elected this fall—the "Ha-ha." He then told them that if they would take the first three letters of Haines' name and combine them with the first three letters of Hawley's name they would get a significant combination of "Hal-haw."

Captain Yates sprung a great surprise on his friends by showing himself a campaign speaker of considerable ability. He spoke earnestly and effectively and was frequently interrupted with applause. He gave a history of the fight to make the Republican party progressive, calling attention to the obstacles thrown in the way of the movement by special interests and great corporations and their newspapers. He told of the Lewiston and Chicago conventions of the Republican party and of the great Progressive convention at Chicago, all of which he had attended. He gave much information that he had gained at first hand and his remarks along this line were listened to attentively and eagerly by the audience.

High Cost of Living.
O. V. Badley, candidate for secretary of state, also delivered a telling speech. He discussed the question of high cost of living and indicated the remedies proposed by the Progressive party. He spoke of the question of taxation and its inequalities, giving individual illustrations from the tax rolls of Ada county, showing that the taxes of farmers have been greatly increased while the taxes of the rich city residents had been decreased at the same time. He declared that both the old parties are reactionary through their domination by corporate and special interests. He spoke of their fear to demand equal taxation of mining property of the state and discussed the need of a public utilities commission.

D. R. Hubbard spoke of the great work done by Governor Johnson in California in clearing that state of the dominating influence of the Southern Pacific railway and declared that Idaho is today dominated and controlled to a greater degree by similar influences than California was and urged the people to join with the Progressive candidates in an effort to free this state just as Johnson had freed California. "If some of the things existing in this state were exposed," he said, "the corruption would stink the heavens." He declared that the state platforms of both the Republican and Democratic parties had been prepared before even their state conventions met and that they were prepared by the special interests that control both those parties in this state.

Tribute to Martin.
Mr. Hubbard paid a splendid tribute to G. H. Martin, the Progressive nominee for governor, whom he has known since they were boys together. They were raised as neighbor boys and Mr. Hubbard has watched Mr. Martin grow from boyhood up. He declared that he has always known him to be an upright, honest, capable man, "true as steel," and as a man in hearty sympathy in every way with the common people.

Relative to the practices and principles of the trusts and great corporations, he declared it to be their purpose to so arrange all governmental and business affairs that the people should be just able to make a living and no more, taking to themselves all the surplus. He illustrated his point by numerous cases of railroad rates on hay and potatoes showing that the railroad company first ascertained the prevailing price for the product where raised, which, because there was a surplus, was low, and then ascertained the price elsewhere, as at Portland, for instance, where because of a scarcity, the price was fixed to be equal to the difference between the two. In this manner the railroad took all the profit leaving none for the producer and permitting no reduction to the consumer.

Mrs. F. H. Roberts received hearty applause as she discussed the child labor question in its relation to the homes and as she especially appealed to the women in this woman's suffrage state, to answer to the expectations of women elsewhere as to the benefits to come from equal suffrage.

When you see a man who won't buy the morning paper on the ground that he gets all the news out of the afternoon paper, and won't take the afternoon paper because he can get all the news out of the morning paper, you may know that he borrows both papers from his neighbors.

HAWLEY SCORED
influenced our governor to disapprove of that measure.
"The recognition of the rights of married women contained in that measure and the preservation and protection of the rights of such women and of their children are paramount to any consideration which could possibly have influenced our governor in vetoing that measure. No good wife ever embarrasses her husband by refusing to join in a deed or mortgage incumbering or conveying community property, unless such refusal is necessary for her protection and that of her children, and when her refusal is based upon such grounds, it is entirely justifiable."
"Another bill was passed by the legislature at the last session for the purpose of harmonizing the conflict between sections 3107, 3108 and 3109 of our revised codes, preventing a married woman from conveying her separate real estate without the signature of her husband unless the husband had been absent from the state for one year, and the provisions of section 2688 of the revised codes, which provides that the wife may convey her separate property with the same freedom as the husband. This bill also was vetoed by Governor Hawley."

TEXAS MAN GIVES PRAISE TO IDAHO
Idaho has all other states beaten to a frazzle, according to W. J. Clarke, postmaster at Dalhart, Tex. He has written to the Boise Commercial club telling of his travels through the other states of the west and insisting that Idaho is the best of them all. He writes R. W. Childs, secretary of the club: "On my return today from a trip through Colorado, Utah, Idaho, Oregon, California, Arizona, New Mexico and Texas, I have decided to locate in the near future in your city."
He also asks the club to send him the name of some rental company here that will secure a good house for him and to have it ready when he comes. He evidently plans to make this his home and to resign as postmaster in his own city.
