

ENDED HIS LIFE RATHER THAN FACE FORGERY CHARGE

Arthur Steinhouse Suicided When Officer Arrives to Arrest Him—Took Cyanide of Potassium.

Fearing arrest because he had given a forged check, and dependent because he was not receiving any more money from home, Arthur Steinhouse, former bookkeeper for the Central Auto company, committed suicide at the Palatine rooming house at noon today by drinking a quantity of cyanide of potassium, dying almost instantly after taking the poison.

The tragedy which ended the life of young Steinhouse occurred just as the clock was striking 12 and he had no sooner swallowed the poison draught than Officer Sutton sped to the telephone and called Mr. Pittenger, who arrived just as the man had breathed his last.

Clutched in his hand was a telegram from Salt Lake, which read: Salt Lake, October 16, 1912. Arthur Steinhouse.

Impossible to send you any more. Go somewhere and get work. S. M. STEINHOUSE.

Steinhouse was arrested last week charged with embezzling $50 from the Central Auto company, and after spending several days in jail, he secured the money from Salt Lake, paid back the amount he was alleged to have stolen, and was discharged.

Not having paid his room rent, the proprietor of the Palatine attempted to get some money, and Steinhouse today gave him a check on the Pacific National bank for $20, which paid the amount due, and left a little over, which Bogdonowich gave him in money.

A little later upon presenting the check at the bank it was turned down and the rooming house proprietor called an officer. Sutton was sent to the place and was informed that Steinhouse was in room 15.

He went up stairs, knocked at the door and informed Steinhouse that he was an officer and had come after him. Steinhouse answered that he would open the door in a minute, and it is believed that during that interval he swallowed the poison, which ended his life a minute later, as he was not seen to drink anything after the officer entered.

"As soon as I put on my coat I will go with you," said Steinhouse. At that juncture a Western Union Telegraph boy came up on a wheel and he said, "Here is a telegram; perhaps it is some good news for me." He opened it, his face convulsed visibly. When asked to sign for its delivery he replied, "I can't," staggered backward and fell on the bed, writhing in agony.

Dr. Pittenger pronounced Steinhouse dead when he arrived and made an examination and Coroner Schreiber was called to take possession of the body and the effects in the room, among which was a small package purchased at the Owl drug store, labeled "Potassium Cyanide," but which was unopened. He also had a small box, containing a similar label, but which did not show where it was purchased. This was about empty. Another small package purchased at the Overland drug store is said to contain strychnine, but which appeared not to have been touched. Having the different poisons in his possession leads the police to believe that he had contemplated ending his life.

An inquest over the body will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at the Schreiber & Sidenfaden undertaking establishment.

GOOD SPORT IS BEING PROVIDED AT RACE COURSE

Some mighty good horses are running on the track at the Fair grounds during the extension of the races under a deal just closed by W. H. Baird with the association.

The National Association of State School Superintendents opened its second and last day's session this morning in the house of representatives at the state capitol with many educators of prominence in attendance.

The association went into session yesterday afternoon, and aside from informal discussions and the appointment of temporary committees did little. Today the educators took up the discussion of educational reforms and expect to be able to secure concrete action on these before the final session tonight.

The question of selecting the next place for the annual session of the association will also be decided.

Those in attendance, including many prominent educators, are the following: Dr. Updegraff, bureau of education at Washington; C. G. Lawrence, state superintendent of South Dakota; Assistant State Superintendent Layhous of Washington; Alvan White, state superintendent of New Mexico; Miss Anna V. Day, assistant superintendent of Nebraska; W. E. Harmon, state superintendent of Montana; Miss Catherine Burke of state normal at Spokane; A. C. Nelson, state superintendent of Utah; Professor Soulen and Dean Carlyle of the University of Idaho at Moscow.

Unique Luncheon Enjoyed. One of the features of today's session was the unique luncheon enjoyed by the educators at the high school, served by the domestic science pupils of that institution. The students took particular pains to serve rare dishes they had prepared for the occasion, and the educators thoroughly enjoyed the treat.

This afternoon Dr. Updegraff, of the bureau of education, Washington, D. C., gave a talk to the educators on the work that his department is doing. It was thoroughly enjoyed. Several informal discussions were given yesterday afternoon. The committees appointed took up the questions of importance, relating to the classification and handling of examination papers, appeals, etc., and will make their reports during the day.

PAVING DISTRICT WILL BE CREATED

The city council today agreed to create a paving district, advertising for bids for all kinds of paving and after getting the prices submit the proposition to the public through a bond issue.

It is likely that the district will be created at the next meeting and bids advertised for at once. All the necessary preliminary arrangements will be made for starting the work early next spring.

Jess H. Hawley, attorney for the Beaver River company, was before the council asking that a route for the underground and overhead system of the company be given as soon as possible as work would be started in a few days. He also requested a larger territory for underground work than was at first contemplated as the company wishes to put more of its wires underground than the city compels in the business district.

An ordinance by Councilman Woodcock creating the new fire limits and specifying building restrictions within said limits, was placed on its final reading and passed.

The reports of all city officers were read and approved.

A Streetwise Romance. (From Judge.) The crowded car swung round the street.

And awayed them; for a moment sweet she touched him—for a moment flash—That made his poor heart leap with in.

She left the car, and riding on, He felt a strange, new feeling dawn—A sense of something that was gone—It was his watch and diamond pin!

Verdict Against Gooding Doctor. (Capital News Special Service) Shoshone, Oct. 15.—On Sunday morning at 1 o'clock the jury returned a verdict in the case of malpractice charged against Dr. Carey of Gooding. He was charged with malpractice in the case of a little boy by the name of Elton Osborne, living with his parents a short distance from the town of Gooding.

The doctor was called to the scene, who was complaining of a pain in the heel. Inflammation had set in above the foot in the leg and the doctor undertook the case. He first poulticed the limb and afterwards during an interval of two months he lanced the limb seven times, covering the distance between the foot and the knee. Drs. Zeller, Lamb and Goodall were called into consultation and made a different diagnosis from that made by Dr. Carey, and were called on to operate on the limb. An action was filed in the district court and after hearing the charges of malpractice the jury returned a verdict for damages in the sum of $4000.

Health Authorities Close Restaurant. The state health department today closed down the State restaurant, a Chinese house, J. K. White, deputy state sanitary inspector, placed a card on the door closing the place until it is thoroughly cleaned while City Building Inspector Hammond immediately condemned all of the plumbing and ordered some new connections put in at once.

The sanitary inspector says the sewer had become stopped and that the waste had flooded the floor of the room in which the restaurant kept its fresh meats. He says he smelled the odor as he went past the door and that he followed his nose to the seat of the trouble. When he found that the sewer was out of commission, he placed a closed sign on the door, ordered all of the floor covering removed, and everything scoured and scrubbed from top to bottom.

All of the force of the place was busy this afternoon in cleaning the place. The matting and linoleum was removed and fine sand sprinkled over the floor. The sewer is being cleaned out, the kitchen scrubbed, and the place put in a completely satisfactory condition from a sanitary standpoint. The health officer declares that there are other restaurants in the city that he believes should have a thorough cleaning and he intends to make several more inspections before he is through with the work. The city building inspector is also looking into the plumbing conditions of some of the restaurants to see where improvements can be made.
