

FRENCH PRAISES BORAH'S RECORD IN THE SENATE

Congressman Pays High Tribute to Senator—Discusses the Trusts at Large Meeting at Kellogg.

(Capital News Special Service)

Kellogg, Oct. 29.—Congressman French addressed one of the largest political meetings of the campaign at this place last night. He discussed the trust question in his address last night and urged that the problem must be solved along the line that the transportation question is being worked out today. The government, contended the speaker, must assume full control of all industrial concerns that are monopolistic in character doing an interstate business.

The speaker closed his address by paying a tribute to the services of Senator William E. Borah, and urging his election as one of the first considerations of the state of Idaho will be that of Senator Borah. "Whether or not Idaho will re-elect Senator Borah," said Mr. French, "is a question that is being asked in every state of the American Union. The eyes of the nation are upon him and they are upon the state of Idaho. Through his genius and ability Senator Borah has accomplished in one short term in the senate of the United States, more than most senators have accomplished in a lifetime. In a body where there is no dearth of ability and to which most of the members have been elected because of their commanding influence in their respective states, Senator Borah has won a place of first distinction and stands today a national character.

Some of His Work. "I do not propose to discuss his services at length, but I cannot fail to remind you of a few of the measures with which he has been identified. "The national reclamation act was passed 10 years ago and Idaho has received a large share of the funds and the attention of the government in the reclaiming of her arid lands. This work had progressed so fast that in spite of the funds that were being received from public lands, the work of reclamation three years ago was so extensive that additional funds were needed to prevent serious embarrassment and delay in the completion of projects that had already been undertaken.

To meet this situation Senator Borah pushed through congress the act providing a bond issue of $20,000,000, and Idaho received her large share for use in the prosecution of her work.

"Another measure of local interest, as well as of interest to the west was the three-year homestead act. The original homestead act was passed 59 years ago and had served its purpose in the building of the west. Conditions had changed, however. Our best lands were gone. Canada was offering her homestead lands upon the basis of a three-year residence and in most provinces nearly a half year's absence every year. Senator Borah's bill grants practically the same conditions to the homesteader of the west, and to pass the measure through congress was one of the hardest tasks with which I have been connected during my membership in that body.

Children's Bureau Law. "Another measure that bears his name I cannot fail to mention is the children's bureau law. I am glad that the people of Idaho do not need to have personal interest in that measure. Our state is large and our people are prosperous. The boys and girls have the training of mothers and fathers with all that training means looking to the preparation of the young for the life work. Not so with millions of boys and girls of our congested industrial centers. It was to reach this class that those engaged in the splendid work of uplifting the world conceived the idea that the government should establish a bureau that would have as its only function the study of the problem of making better their condition. The Borah law establishes the bureau and has given to the government, eyes to see and hands to reach out and take hold of the hands of the many boys and girls who do not know the blessings of a real home, and place them on a higher plane, looking to American citizenship.

"Last of all I would mention the amendment to our constitution looking to the election of senators by direct vote of the people. Many of our people and probably most of them for 75 years have believed that that amendment should be added to our organic law. Yet the amendment failed of passage. It had been approved by the house of representatives over and over again only to meet failure in the senate. In the sixty-first congress, chiefly through the efforts of your junior senator, the amendment came within four votes of obtaining the necessary two-thirds vote. In the present congress it did receive that vote and when the story of the passage of that amendment shall have been written in future years, the name of Senator Borah, as the advocate and champion of the amendment, will stand out from among the others who have labored for its passage as the man who carried forward the fight until victory was his reward.

"I need not say more of Senator Borah. The highest praise I could pay him would be to tell the story of his work. I have done this briefly. He is fighting your battles. He stands for the principles in which you believe—strong, aggressive, possessed of superb ability and qualities of mind that make him fit to do great things. His re-election should rise above partisanship, and in the spirit of lofty civic pride and duty to state and nation, our people should return him to that legislative body where he has served so well."

RECORD IN POTATO RAISING IS MADE

Three Hundred Bushels to the Acre at the Gooding Experiment Station.

Three hundred bushels of "spuds" to an acre is the record of the Gooding experiment station during its investigations last season. Reports are now coming in from all of the experiment stations under the supervision of the government and state engineers and are showing a large fund of information that will soon be printed for the benefit of every farmer on the irrigation tracts of Idaho.

According to the statistics in the hand of Don H. Bark, engineer in charge of the government irrigation investigations in this state, the Gooding station has produced 308 bushels on one of its tracts in the last season. The results show that on the tract that only received two irrigations with a total of 54 foot of water only 202 bushels were produced. On the tract that was given five applications with a total of 154 feet 308 bushels were gained while one tract was given seven applications with a total of 2:51 feet of water and produced but 278 bushels.

Not only did the second tract produce the maximum number of bushels from its application of water but it raised the best quality of potatoes. The additional water used on the other tract did not get as good results and the potatoes grown on it were not up to standard either in quality or in size. This, to the minds of the engineers in charge, shows that potatoes may be given entirely too much water by the farmers of the state or they may be given too little water. In either case, the results are not satisfactory and the quality of the product is not as high as it would have otherwise been.

All of these facts together with hundreds of others from the dozens of small experiment stations that will be and have been scattered over the state, will be published in a joint report of Don H. Bark, the government engineer, and A. E. Robinson, the state engineer. The heads of these two departments are now working on their reports and will have them completed and ready for the printer and the farmer within the next few weeks.

ALL READY FOR THE LAUNCHING OF BATTLESHIP

President, Secretary of the Navy and Governor Dix Will Be Among the Spectators Tomorrow.

New York, Oct. 29.—A battleship surpassing in size any vessel now flying the flag of the United States navy will be launched tomorrow morning from the ways of the New York navy yard, in Brooklyn. This is the dreadnought New York, which, when completed, will have a displacement of 27,000 tons, or one thousand tons more than any battleship now afloat. President Taft is expected here to see the giant ship take its first plunge into the waters of the East river. Secretary of the Navy Meyer, Governor Dix and a number of other public officials also will attend the launching. The christening ceremony will be performed by Miss Elsie Calder, daughter of Representative William M. Calder of Brooklyn.

The New York when in commission will be manned by 63 officers and will have a crew of more than 1000 men. Exclusive of armor and guns, the battleship will cost about $6,000,000. The principal dimensions and features of the big battleship are as follows: Length on water line as designed, 565 feet; breadth, extreme, as designed, water line, 91 feet 3 1/2 inches; mean draught, 38 feet 6 inches; total coal bunker capacity, 2550 tons; total fuel oil storage, 400 tons; speed on trial not less than 21 knots.

In the main battery the New York will carry ten 14-inch 45-caliber guns. The secondary battery will consist of 21 five-inch rapid fire guns, 51-caliber; four three-pounder saluting guns; two one-pounder semi-automatic guns for boats; two three-inch field pieces, and two machine guns.
