

FRUIT GROWERS ARE GIVEN A NEW CAUSE FOR WORRY

Cold Storage Plants at the Market Centers Seem to Be Closed to the Western Growers.

Is there gigantic cold storage trust being formed in the middle west which will greatly cripple fruit growers in the state of Idaho as well as other states in the west? This is the question that is causing not a little worry to growers who have been cast and have had occasion to review the peculiar conditions as they found them there with regard to the cold storage situation.

What Situation is. From facts that Mr. Moseley could secure it appears that heretofore a greater part of the fruit shipped from the west is sold at public auction in Chicago. Buyers have in the past bid for and secured this fruit and then made arrangements with cold storage owners to care for the fruit at so much per box until such a time as the buyer could dispose of the fruit when it was taken from cold storage and delivered to the purchaser.

When buyers attempted to secure cold storage space for their fruit this year they found that cold storage owners had no space for sale and in face of this fact they considered it too great a risk to purchase on the market. Inquiry at all cold storages developed the same condition of affairs. That the owners of the cold storage plants were doing a little business of their own in fruit was evident for they are said to have sent their agents on the auction market and bid in the fruit. Then they stored it and now have it in cold storage waiting for an advance in prices, with the result that the consumers will be forced to pay the price demanded or go without fruit.

The condition is claimed to be a serious one and may result in entirely new tactics being pursued in the sale of fruit grown in the western sections. It is viewed with some seriousness by fruit growers and buyers. The cold storage plan is said to extend generally and includes not only the plants in Chicago but in other large market centers.

INFORMATION GIVEN ON LOST CHILDREN

- A short time ago the Capital News published an article from an attorney, who sought to locate Lulu and Herbert Anderson, who are heirs to an estate in Sweden and were supposed to be in this section of Idaho. The letter was sent to Mayor Hodges with a request that if he did not know of the parties to give the letter to the newspaper having the largest circulation in the state. Today the Capital News received the following letter, which opens the path for the children to come into the property left them:

Dear Sir: I saw the advertisement of an attorney in your paper asking you to help locate Lulu and Herbert Anderson, children of Charles Anderson and heirs, to an estate in Sweden. Lulu and Herbert Anderson live with their grandfather, John Stromberg, seven miles from Rigby, and I have notified them of the facts and they will confer with the attorney. Yours truly, MRS. N. O. CALIFORNIA HAS QUEER METHODS

Admitted That No Investigation of Idaho Alfalfa Has Been Made.

In order that a quarantine might be declared against Idaho alfalfa, State Horticultural Inspector A. J. Cook, of California, had investigated the conditions surrounding weevil claimed to be in Utah and Washington alfalfa, according to information conveyed by him in letters to a party in this state, these letters having been turned over to State Horticultural Inspector John U. McPherson. Just why it was necessary to investigate the alfalfa in Utah and Washington in order to quarantine the Idaho product is something that local officials and growers fail to understand.

California was urged, if it felt that it had to quarantine against this crop in Idaho, to only quarantine against alfalfa grown in those districts claimed to be under the ban of the law. In Horticultural Inspector Cook's letter to parties in this state, which are now in the possession of Idaho's state horticultural inspector, he makes it plain that California has little intention of lifting the quarantine, although he will reconsider the matter. He says: "We sent a man to Utah and made the fullest inquiry in Utah and Washington before we declared a quarantine. It is very difficult to quarantine a portion of a state and often quite unsafe. I will, however, go into the matter again and give it a very thorough examination and will, if possible, raise the quarantine or modify it, but I fear we cannot. The people of our state would resent any such action."

WANTED IN OREGON FOR VIOLATION OF TERMS OF PAROLE

The state of Oregon made a request today upon the state of Idaho for the delivery of George Brown, an ex-convict and violator of his parole, believed to be in this state, to be delivered to the Oregon officials. Governor Hawley honored the request and placed the requisition papers in the hands of Secretary of State W. L. Gifford. Brown will be taken in custody within a few days. It is cited in the complaint of the Oregon officials that Brown was tried and convicted in Oregon on the charge of forgery, March 28, 1911, and sentenced to serve five years in the state penitentiary. He was received at that institution April 2, 1911, and served until July 25, 1912, when he was granted a trusty parole. The terms of this parole he is alleged to have violated by eloping with a young girl. He is said to have come to the state of Idaho and is now known to be in this state.

SILENCE STILL MAINTAINED BY THE GOVERNOR

No Intimation Given Out as to Who Will Receive the Senatorial Honors at His Hands.

The prospects of Governor James H. Hawley becoming second United States senator from Idaho if only for a brief month, to fill the recess vacancy made possible by the death of the late Nelson B. Heyburn, look better today than they did yesterday, although many of the close friends of the governor still declare that the senatorial honor will go north as the governor at first designated. They refuse to believe that the governor is considering the office for himself, although they are not opposed to him doing so, but so far as could be ascertained from them would like to see this happen, it is said.

Governor is Silent. The governor is still maintaining a dignified silence regarding the appointment. He has nothing to say upon the issue but that is not taken to indicate that when he finally acts he will still be as silent. He has been busy holding conferences during today with many of the party leaders as well as prominent Republicans who have requested audiences. The greatest pressure that is being brought to bear upon the governor to accept the senatorial appointment himself is coming from those of an opposite political faith, many of whom are urgent in their requests.

Lieutenant Governor L. H. Sweeter is expected to either arrive here or to hold a conference with party leaders at Burley with a view of going over the recess appointment matter. It is claimed here that he feels favorably inclined towards the appointment of the governor and is being urged to do so. That the proposal to appoint the governor will have to come from Republican sources was evident today, according to the declarations of party leaders.

There are still many leading men who when consulted declared that the governor will, after all send the appointment north as he declared he would at first, irrespective of the reports to the contrary and which principally relate to the appointment of himself.

DR. COOK'S LECTURE AT PINNEY THEATER

The Boise people will be given an early opportunity to hear Dr. Frederick A. Cook's side of the controversy over the discovery of the North Pole on next Monday evening, Nov. 18, when Dr. Cook will lecture at the Pinney theater. The lecture will be illustrated by views of the far north. Dr. Cook has gained a greater notoriety than even the discovery of the pole could give him by the controversy that has arisen as to whether he was actually the first to completely conquer the frigid north. He has again brought the question into the public arena by lectures in Europe and America and by his recent book entitled, "My Attainment of the Pole." The story of hardship and perseverance and his scientific data offered by this intrepid explorer arouses an enthralling interest. Dr. Cook's work bears on its face the apparent imprint of truth. Among other things he says: "The attainment of this mythical spot did not then and does not now seem in itself anything very wonderful. I did not then and I do not now consider it the treasure house of any great scientific secret. The big thing to be gained from the reaching of the pole, the reason in the accomplishment is that man by brain power and muscle energy can subdue the most terrific forces of blind nature, if he is courageous enough and undauntedly persistent despite failure."

The Times of Kansas City, Missouri, has the following to say of Dr. Cook's lecture recently given in that city: "Anyone who imagines Dr. Cook is discredited—that he has been branded as a fakir and the greatest liar of the century—should have seen the audience of 5000 people last night scramble to hear him lecture, rise up and call him great and finally shoulder and shove one another in an effort to shake his hand and assure him that they were convinced that he had the 'big nail in his pistol pocket.'"

In view of the fact that the Peary data, on which Commander Peary based his claims for discovery of the North Pole, have never been given to the public, the tour of Dr. Cook is attracting a great deal of attention through Canada and the northwest. Dr. Cook will appear here after delivering a series of addresses in northwestern Canada. Everywhere he has been greeted by packed houses, showing that great interest is being taken in his side of the great controversy.
