Direct Negotiations for Peace to Follow the Arranging of Armistice - To Be No Delay

Constantinople, Nov. 16.—The armistice with the Bulgarians will probably be arranged within a few days and this will be followed by direct negotiations for peace.

Heretofore only a few of the soldiers badly wounded in battle have arrived here. Physicians say many of the wounds have been self-inflicted.

Sofia, Nov. 16.—The Bulgarian cabinet communicated today to the allies the letter from the Turkish grand vizier on the subject of an armistice and an interchange of views by the Balkan governments in progress.

Vienna Reports Discredited. London, Nov. 16.—Utter discredit was thrown today by local military experts on the reports of the Vienna papers on the movements of the Bulgarian troops.

Roumanian Government Acts. London, Nov. 16.—Roumania is reported to have placed strong bodies of troops at three points on the Bulgarian frontier.

Terms of Peace. London, Nov. 16.—Bulgaria's terms of peace to Turkey, as reported at Vienna and sent from that city by the correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, consists of seven stipulations.

The second provides for the evacuation by the Turks of Adrianople, Scutari, Monastir and Janina.

Since Bulgaria already has expressed a willingness to leave the status of Constantinople and the Dardanelles to the powers, says the correspondent, the fifth and sixth clauses of the terms as reported here appear improbable.

Situation is Perplexing. London, Nov. 16.—As the censorship permits no news to come from the front, the situation at the scene of the fighting in the Balkans is more perplexing than ever.

Various reports have drifted in, however, among them that Adrianople has fallen, that the Bulgarians had captured Hademkeul, that Nasim Pasha, the Turkish general, had capitulated and that the Bulgarians, either by sea or by land, had reached the vicinity of Killos—on the Black sea coast, a short distance from Constantinople.

These reports are without confirmation. A vague dispatch published at Sofia says six forts along the Tchaatalja line have been captured after what are described as heavy sacrifices on the part of the Bulgarians.

All the reports previously published through the Vienna Reichspost or emanating from other sources, go to show that the Bulgarians are having no easy task. Nothing is known as to whether the battle continues.

The British government has received no news from the seat of war for some days. What perhaps is of greater import than the progress of the hostilities in (Continued on Page Two)

WILSON DECIDES TO CALL SPECIAL SESSION IN APRIL

President-elect Declares Revision of Tariff Will Be Undertaken at Once—Sails for Bermuda.

At Work on Bills. Washington, Nov. 16.—Clerks of the house ways and means committee began work today on the tariff revision bills for the special session of congress which President-elect Wilson has stated he will summon to meet next April.

It is not yet determined whether one general bill will be introduced, embracing the wool, cotton, iron and steel revisions which the Democratic house passed previously, or whether each schedule will be brought in as a separate bill.

New York, Nov. 16.—Governor Woodrow Wilson announced last night that immediately after his inauguration he would call an extraordinary session of congress to convene not later than April 15 to revise the tariff.

To set at rest rumors as to what he would do with regard to tariff revision, he issued the following statement: "I shall call congress together in extraordinary session not later than April 15. I shall do this not only because I think that the pledges of the party should be redeemed as promptly as possible, but also because I know it to be in the interest of business that all uncertainty as to what the particular items of tariff revision are to be should be removed as soon as possible."

Beyond this brief announcement the governor said he had nothing further to say. The governor did not intend to express himself about an extra session so soon after his election.

He has favored the idea of an extra session, he had promised to spend more time in ascertaining public opinion. With the time to be consumed in discussion, the governor felt that if an extra session were not called, the benefits of the tariff revision would be postponed practically two years.

Opinion Practically Unanimous. Immediately upon his election, the governor made up his mind to wait until after his vacation before making known his attitude, but upon finding, as he said, that the opinion in favor of a special session was practically unanimous, he felt no hesitation about making his conclusion.

Though the governor means to rest while in Bermuda, he really expects to give a good deal of time to quiet thought about the problems that face him. He will sketch his annual message to the New Jersey legislature, and will do some extensive reading on the tariff, monopolies, banking and currency reforms, and other issues.

The governor came to New York to attend a dinner in his honor given by his classmates, Princeton, '78. He expected to have no political conferences while in the city, and seemed fully confident that he would not be disturbed by political callers while resting in Bermuda.

The president-elect called this afternoon on the steamship Bermudian, one of the regular boats plying between New York and Hamilton, Bermuda, and will arrive Monday. The president-elect has based a cottage on a remote part of the island.

Immediately upon arrival he will call upon the governor of the island and request him to consider his presence in Bermuda entirely informal and unofficial.

"I'm going to try to be 'incoog,'" said the governor, "so that I may have no functions of any kind while there."

Wilson Tries to See Taft. New York, Nov. 16.—The president-elect tried to see the president today but missed him by a few minutes. His secretary reported soon after breakfast that the president had just left his hotel. "I am very sorry to have missed seeing the president," said Wilson.

BANDITS GIVEN HOT BATTLE BY POSSE

Outlaws Are Captured After One Had Been Wounded

HAD MADE RAIDS ON MANY FARM HOUSES

Effort Was Made to Capture Bank Cashier and Hold Him for Ransom—Bandits Kept Up Fight Until Ammunition Was Gone.

Jola, Kan., Nov. 16.—Three bandits who impressed a motor car chauffeur and mechanic Thursday night, and went on a raid of farm houses and villages in this vicinity, were captured by a posse today.

The men gave their names as Richard Victor, W. J. Van Ribber and McCauley. After a running fight in which one of the three men was wounded Victor turned in at a farmhouse, held up the farmer and took a horse. Over-taking one of his comrades who was wounded and exhausted, Victor took the man on his horse before him and galloped off.

The other two bandits were located in the brush near Galesburg and there a fierce fight ensued. The men surrendered only when their ammunition was gone.

Victor said the raid was planned in a saloon in Kansas City. The bandits obtained little booty. Thursday night they tried to kidnap E. R. Hoyt, cashier of the Earlton bank. Stopping their motor car in front of Hoyt's house they asked him to loan them tools to repair a tire. Hoyt declined to leave the house and the bandits departed. They told the chauffeur they intended to hold the cashier for ransom.

ALARM CLOCKS BOUGHT BY SCORE

Suspicion Was Aroused Against McNamara and McManigal

STOCK OF CLOCKS AT INDIANAPOLIS OFFICE

J. B. McNamara Wanted Stenographer Killed Because She Knew Too Much - Witness Tells of the "Haunted House."

Indianapolis, Nov. 16.—Jewelry store employees testified in the dynamite conspiracy trial today that the alarm clocks used by the McNamara brothers and McManigal in the manufacture of bombs were purchased in Ohio in quantities as to arouse suspicion. How McManigal bought 12 small clocks at Pittsburg in July, 1910, after he had blown up the job at McKees Rocks was described by Miss Margaret Burns, who, when she sold the clocks to McManigal, asked him what he was going to do with so many and that he replied, "They are for friends in the country."

Miss Anna Elliott testified that McManigal bought at an Indianapolis jewelry store all the alarm clocks in stock. According to McManigal, J. J. McNamara kept a stock of clocks in the vault in his office. The clocks were fitted to bombs and the turning of the alarm key when the alarm went off connected up the battery which exploded the bomb.

Half a dozen residents of Muncie, Ind., testified concerning the vacant house in Muncie in which McManigal said the McNamaras and Hockin stored nitroglycerin. The witnesses said boxes were mysteriously taken in and out of the house at night and the windows were covered with paper and the children began to regard the place as haunted.

Emanuel Maddox identified Hockin as the purchaser of nitroglycerin packing cases. John Lonbaugh said Hockin offered him a premium price for a car of nitroglycerin if no questions were asked. Frank Eckhoff, a friend of the McNamara family, said he refused $50 offered by James B. McNamara to place a package on a non-union job which afterwards was blown up. Eckhoff said J. J. McNamara had him shadow Miss Mary Dye, McNamara's stenographer, who was suspected of giving information about the dynamiting.

Eckhoff said J. B. McNamara wanted Miss Dye killed because he said she knew too much about the dynamiting. Carried Dynamite in Basket. Carrying dynamite about in a market basket was the way Edward F. Clark, an ironworker, testifying at the trial yesterday, said he arranged to blow up non-union jobs.

Clark, an official of a local union in Cincinnati, pleaded guilty at the beginning of the trial of the 45 men accused of complicity with the McNamara brothers in the illegal transportation of explosives.

In detailing his confession on the witness stand, he told of personally blowing up work on a railroad bridge across the Miami river at Dayton on May 3, 1908, and of leaving behind an umbrella that bore his initials.

Clark said officials of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Ironworkers induced him to do dynamiting. Once, he said, while inspecting work in Cincinnati, President Frank M. Ryan pointed to a railroad bridge across the Ohio river and said: "There would be a good place to put a shot."

Before that, the witness said, Herbert S. Hockin, secretary of the union, arranged to supply him with dynamite. "We had some correspondence with J. J. McNamara at Indianapolis about today. (Continued on Page Two)
