

AGED GENERAL SICKLES SHORT IN HIS ACCOUNTS

Matter Placed in the Hands of Attorney General State Monument Commission Funds Disappear.

Albany, Dec. 11.—Efforts on the part of State Comptroller Sohier to obtain from General Daniel E. Sickles, an accounting for certain funds paid him by the state as chairman of the New York monument commission, having been unsuccessful, the comptroller has placed the matter in the hands of Attorney General Carmody. The amount unaccounted for, according to the comptroller, is $29,246.

The New York monument commission has charge of the erection of monuments on battle fields and nearly $500,000 has been appropriated to its use, of which about $50,000 has not been expended. The members include General Sickles, General Anson G. McCook, General Horatio King and Representative Thomas W. Bradley.

Correspondence made public yesterday shows that efforts to obtain an accounting from General Sickles have been made from time to time, since 1910. After a conference with Governor Dix and Attorney General Carmody, Comptroller Sohier, on Nov. 21, notified General Sickles that "under no circumstances will an extension of time for this settlement be granted beyond Dec. 6."

Not having heard from General Sickles by Dec. 6, the comptroller wrote Attorney General Carmody that "a shortage of $29,246 existed" and referred the matter "for such action as you may deem proper."

On Dec. 8, the comptroller received a letter from General Sickles asking a further brief extension of time. "I beg your kind indulgence until Dec. 20," he wrote, "when I am confident I shall be able to obtain a loan on my three houses and lots on the corner of Fifth avenue and Ninth street."

Attorney General Carmody advised Comptroller Sohier to grant the extension.

The commission held a meeting in New York, but it is not known what action was taken.

Governor Dix said that the commissioners threatened to resign as a body three months ago because of the tangled financial affairs of the commission, but he had refused to accept their resignations. The governor expressed the belief that the matter would be straightened out to the satisfaction of all concerned. He said he had been Recipe That Breaks a Cold in a Day and Cures a Cough.

"From your druggist get half ounce of Globe Pine Compound (Concentrated Pine) and two ounces of Glycerine. Take these two ingredients home and put them into a half pint of good whiskey; shake well and use in doses of one to two teaspoonfuls after each meal and at bedtime. Smaller doses to children according to age. But be sure to get only the genuine Globe Pine Compound (Concentrated Pine). Each half ounce bottle comes in a sealed tin screw-top case. If your druggist does not have it he will quickly get it. Many mixtures are of large quantity and cheap, but it is risky to experiment. This formula comes from a reliable doctor and is certain. This was first published here six years ago and local druggists say it has been in constant demand ever since."

years old; his brother, Jacob, 26, and Seelye Davenport, 42.

They were brought to Newark, where United States Commissioner Stockton last night committed them to jail in default of $2000 bail each for examination on Monday.

The letter to the governor was written on Nov. 11 and signed "New York Gunmen." Postoffice inspectors made the arrest.

Seven letters in all were sent to Governor Wilson, it appears. Their text indicates the writers to be of a low degree of literacy. One of them, the letter dated Nov. 11—read in part:

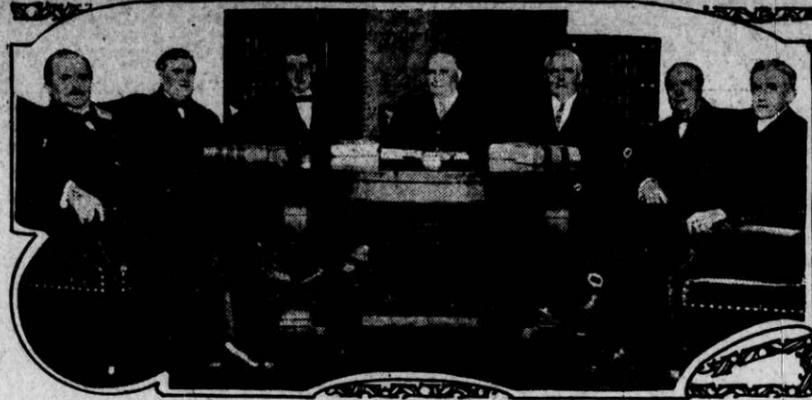

"Mr. Wilson: I am now agoin' to warn you of what we are agoin' to do to you as we did not Teddy and McKinley either got shoot up just the same and if we don't get what we ask from you, you will get the same say wilson you have got the office as president yet and we are death on president so now wilson if you have $5000 in gold for this party we will spare your life but if not we will shoot you before you get in the office as sure as your name is wilson."

The letter gave Governor Wilson until Nov. 24 to send the money. The threatening missive was received at the governor's office in Trenton by his secretary, who forwarded it to James T. Cortelyou, chief postal inspector at Philadelphia.

Each day for six days letters of the same nature were received. Meanwhile the postal agents were working and one who posed as a pension agent went to Wharton and there found a clue.

The search took the inspectors through a wild region in the north Jersey hills and some trouble was ex-

PERJURY CHARGE

Cline, national organizer for the carpenters' union, and stated that the proposed Detroit explosions, which local officials of the carpenters' machinists and ironworkers' unions are alleged jointly to have plotted, had been called off because Charles Wachtmeister, an ironworker, had "talked too much."

Defendant Michael J. Cunnane, a Philadelphia ironworkers' official, next testified. He said he had been associated with McNamara, Ryan and other officials of the union, but never discussed a plan for the use of dynamite.

Plot Formed at Detroit.

Testimony by Robert G. M. Ross that officials of the various trades unions in Detroit, in June, 1910, formed a plot to cause a series of explosions in that city against non-union jobs and that Charles Wachtmeister, business agent of the ironworkers' union, received $100 from the carpenters' union toward the expense but that the explosions were postponed because Wachtmeister "talked too much" was disputed by the witnesses at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial yesterday.

Ross has been summoned from Hawaii to testify. Previously Ortie E. McManigal stated that at Herbert S. Hockin's instruction he had gone to Detroit with a suitcase filled with nitroglycerin to blow up a non-union job, but that Hockin had suddenly "called it off."

Ross said that after Wachtmeister had "talked too much," he was called to a meeting of union officials, including Frank J. Murphy and Clarence E. Dowd and asked whether he was not a spy for non-union contractors.

He said later he dictated to William H. Quigley a letter to Hiram Cline, Muncie, Ind., organizer for the Carpenters' union, calling the explosions off.

Quigley denied he ever had written the letter and when the government produced what purported to be the letter Quigley said it was not in his handwriting.

The letter said that Wachtmeister had been drinking and was "flashing the century," meaning a $100-bill alleged to have been paid for explosions.

Deny Ross' Testimony.
Several other witnesses, who said they were present at the meeting referred to by Ross, denied Ross' testimony that the union officials met because "they were frightened."

"Ross came to that meeting and we asked him why he had been circulating reports that we were going to be arrested," Quigley said.

"He apologized, he said he was a sheet metal worker, and we asked him how he was making a living. He declared a congressman was paying him to do political work."

Wachtmeister testified he never had received $75 as a part of a fund to pay for explosions and he never had a black eye, as it was said he received for "talking too much." He said he and Hockin had visited a non-union job in an effort to have it unionized, but he knew nothing of explosions.

"Did you ever hear of Hockin being arrested in connection with an explosion in Detroit in June, 1907?" asked District Attorney Miller.

"I never heard of it," Wachtmeister replied.

MONEY IN HER CHARGE STOLEN, SHE TURNS MESSENGER "BOY" TO MAKE IT UP

Catherine E. Coleman.

Forced to double her earning capacity by reason of a shortage in her accounts for which she was not to blame, Catherine E. Coleman, 17, of Memphis, Tenn., counting clerk employed by the Western Union, has turned messenger "boy." When someone stole $87 of the company's money which she had in her charge Miss Coleman came to the conclusion that she'd have to work overtime to make up the shortage. So she took an old bicycle from the attic and ventured forth to deliver messages. That was several months ago. She has now almost made the shortage up. She delivers messages in the daytime and works at the counter at night.

Navy officials declare untrue various stories of extensive alterations being made on the ship to accommodate the president.

Recovery for False Conviction.

Washington, Dec. 11.—All persons erroneously convicted in the United States courts and later pardoned or acquitted would have the right to apply for pecuniary indemnification for defamation of character brought about by their conviction by the terms of a bill introduced by Senator Sutherland. The amount to be paid would be determined by the court of claims, but in no instance could exceed $5000.
