

TRYING TO HAVE CALIFORNIA LIFT HAY QUARANTINE

Assistant Director of the Panama California Exposition Takes Steps to Have The Wrong Remedied.

If it is within the power of San Diego to raise the California quarantine on Idaho alfalfa, that progressive city will turn the trick for Irvin Graham Lewis, assistant director of the San Diego Panama-California exposition, who was in Boise last week, and left yesterday afternoon for Carson City, Nev., has exerted every effort to accomplish this feat.

It is probable that an investigation will be made by Governor Johnson of the action taken in the quarantine. Before leaving Boise Mr. Lewis received a telegram from the Chamber of Commerce of San Diego county calling upon Governor Johnson to conduct such an investigation and if he finds an injustice has been done Idaho, to immediately take steps to remedy it.

The Carey Act Projects association of southern Idaho proposes to take active steps towards preparing for the installation of a suitable irrigation exhibit at the exposition and this week a meeting of those interested will be held at Jerome or Gooding to take up the matter.

The gates of the big exposition will open Jan. 1, 1915, and will close at midnight Dec. 31, 1915. The exposition site is in Balboa park, a tract of land comprising 1400 acres, situated in the heart of the city of San Diego and within 10 minutes' walk of the main business section. The area to be covered by the exposition will be 615 acres.

Mr. Lewis was enthusiastic yesterday over the royal reception given him while he was a guest of Boise and laud in his praise of this city. He will return to Boise during the next session of the legislature.

HICKEY ESCAPES

When Hickey murdered a year ago last October, heard the verdict with tears in his eyes.

"I would rather see him free than convicted of second degree murder," the father declared. "He did not get right justice."

From the first until the thirteenth and last ballot the jury stood nine for murder in the first degree and three for insanity. On the thirteenth, the nine jurors broke away and voted murder in the second degree.

Attorney Murphy, who defended Hickey, said he believed the verdict just. "All that we wanted was to save his life and have him put away. It is immaterial whether he is sent to prison or to an asylum. If he makes trouble at Auburn prison they can send him to an asylum."

BITTER ATTACK

Miller, who felt the brunt of Hovey's attack, did not interrupt, but it was plain that he would reply when he closed the argument next week. The time allotted the defense will be up Tuesday noon.

Attorney Gall attacked the government's evidence against Kline, particularly the testimony of Robert Ross of Honolulu, that Kline told him he gave defendant Charles Wachmeister $100 to promote a dynamic plot in Detroit. Ross's character and past history were attacked by Gall who intimated there was a connection between Ross's testimony and the fact that he was a government employe.

Hovey prefaced his criticism of the prosecution by a detailed defense of 10 defendants, including Henry Legleiter, Pittsburgh; James Cooney, Richard H. Houlihan, William Shupe and James Coughlin, Chicago, and Herman Ziffert, Milwaukee.

"The whole purpose in bringing the four Chicago men into this case was to injure local No. 14, the 'big local,'" declared Hovey, intimating that the National Erectors' association was aiding the government.

Attorney W. N. Harding of this city, one of the chiefs of the defense, was reported very ill with grippe tonight. He was to close the argument for the indicted men, and it was doubtful whether he would be sufficiently improved by Tuesday to make the effort.

NO LIGHT ON

was a letter from an eight-year-old boy which seemed to please him, and he told the newspaper men about it.

"The lad writes that his birthday is December 25, the same as mine," he said, "and he has invited me to his birthday party. Unfortunately I will not be able to attend."

"It's mighty unfortunate to have a birthday at holiday time," remarked the governor with a smile, "for you don't have any celebration and, of course, your Christmas presents go double." Asked if the cow, offered him some time ago by a western admirer, had ever shown up, Governor Wilson said: "I declined the cow. I never accept presents of such value."

like to have me tell him how to go about it to get one."

When asked if he would give out a copy of his reply to the letter for publication, Governor Wilson said: "I didn't make any."

No Plans on Patronage. In reply to a question whether he had formulated any plans for disposition of federal patronage in the various states, according to senatorial or congressional recommendations, the president-elect said: "No, I haven't, but I have adopted the general policy that those who apply are least likely to be considered."

Governor Wilson expects to hold a conference with Speaker Clark next week, similar to the one held with Bryan today. Other prominent Democratic senators and representatives will also probably be invited to visit him and give him their information and opinion concerning cabinet material and legislation.

This evening Governor Wilson returned to Princeton to spend Sunday with his family. He planned to be in Trenton again Monday and probably Tuesday. He will spend Christmas here with his family.

BRYAN SEES ONLY A GREAT FUTURE FOR DEMOCRACY

Commoner Declares That With Wilson in the White House Party Pledges Will Be Kept.

New York, Dec. 21.—Paying high tribute to President-elect Woodrow Wilson and Governor-elect William Sulzer of this state, Colonel William J. Bryan at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel tonight expressed the utmost confidence in the belief that the pledges of the Democratic party to revise the tariff downward and "give the little man a shot," will be carried out.

Despite the fact that he was in the stronghold of Tammany Hall and that Tammany's chief, Charles F. Murphy, had refused to honor the occasion with his presence because of Bryan's attacks at Baltimore, the Commoner was warmly greeted. He was conciliatory in his talk and said nothing that could be construed as indicating the result of the lengthy conference he today had with Governor Wilson in Trenton.

In both Governor Wilson and Sulzer, Bryan said, opportunity and preparedness met. Both men, he said, were able to perform the tasks that will further them, when they were selected, to be advanced to the positions of high honor.

"Never in fifty years has a Democratic president so held the good will of the Republican party," said Bryan. "One-half of the party is rejoicing because he defeated Taft and the other half is rejoicing that he defeated Roosevelt."

Has Faith in Wilson. "The time is ripe, the people are ready, the hour has come and the man is here. I have faith in Woodrow Wilson, because I find in him conscientiousness and sympathy on the side of the mass of the people. There are only two standards—aristocracy and democracy. Both may be sincere, but a sincere aristocrat will honestly and consistently do what the people do not want done."

"I take much more pleasure in coming to New York than I once did. It used to be that a man who believed in the income tax was severely criticized by men who thought him an anarchist. Yet now New York is one of the states that has ratified the income tax. And some of the men who used to consider the income tax anarchistic now admit that it is the only just and equitable tax."

Bryan then pointed out that there have been three financial panics in this country and that two of them came under Republican administrations and the third under a Republican law.

"The Democratic party cannot afford a panic," he said. "We haven't the resources that the Republicans have to last through one. All of the agitators of the west have never molested the vested interests as much as 1000 ramblers molest them every day. You have all come to see that the laws which you formerly feared must now be enacted for your own protection."

Portsmouth, England, Dec. 21.—The British cruiser Natal tonight was well out at sea, bearing toward New York the body of the late Whitelaw Reid, United States ambassador to England. The Natal was expected to be met 1000 miles or so from America by the United States battleships Florida and North Dakota, which will escort her into port. Flying the American and British flags at half mast, the Natal weighed anchor at 1:20 o'clock this afternoon, firing a national salute in honor of the dead ambassador as she left her pier. The body rested in an especially constructed chapel on the quarter deck of the funeral ship.

Mrs. Reid, her son, Ogen Mills Reid, his wife and Mrs. John Ward, daughter of Ambassador Reid, sailed for America on the liner Campania.

Dorr to Be Tried for Murder. Boston, Dec. 21.—William A. Dorr of Stockton, Cal., who is charged with the murder of George M. Marsh, a millionaire soap manufacturer of Lynn, Mass., will be placed on trial at the January term of the superior court at Salem. This was decided today at a conference between Dorr's counsel and District Attorney Atwell. Dorr was prostrated when brought here several months ago from California, but is now reported in excellent health. Marsh was murdered on April 12, and his body found in the Lynn marshes.

PEACE MEETING DEVELOPS INTO A "WAR CONFAB"

Congressman Mann Starts the Trouble When He Speaks Against Arbitration of Controversy.

Washington, Dec. 21.—Two hundred delegates of the annual banquet of the American Society for Judicial Settlement of International Disputes sat down tonight to talk over international peace, but before they left the banquet hall were shocked to find that the "peace" meeting had been transformed almost into a "war confab."

It all started when Minority Leader Mann of the house of representatives declared "he had rather see every ship in the American navy guard the Panama canal than submit the present controversy with Great Britain to arbitration. We must turn our attention first to our own land," said Mann. "They are constantly under attack by dissatisfied people. We constantly are engaged in industrial disputes. We must take care of the downtrodden and throttle the idle rich."

Rear Admiral Richard Wainwright further "disturbed the peace" when he said that "anti-toxine of war to this country comes in doses of four big battleships each year."

"This will go as far toward assuring international peace," he said, "as anything else. I believe military power should still be necessary to command proper respect."

As an addition to the "peaceful" aspect of the occasion, Professor George McKimyon of the University of Toronto, flaunted in the face of the diners the fact that Canada had decided to give to England three powerful dreadnaughts.

Senator Burton of Ohio called matters by advocating an international supreme court "where all problems involving disputes likely to bring about war could be properly settled."

Governor Baldwin of Connecticut, toastmaster, said that he wished to correct the prevailing opinion that the wealthy men of the world desired war. He praised Andrew Carnegie as being a true representative of the great moneyed kings who desire harmony among nations. "He has given $10,000,000 to the cause," he declared. "If he wanted war, he hardly would take this means of bringing it about."

praised President Taft as being the best friend of international peace of any of the countries' chief executives.

CABINET GOSSIP

Bryan air of pleasure that he had enjoyed the day. He privately expressed himself as confident that the incoming administration will keep every pledge made to the people and there was little doubt felt in the minds of all who came into contact with him that Bryan was willing to do anything that is possible to aid President-elect Wilson in making his administration a success.

Bryan declined to discuss a report told him as he entered the hotel that Boss Murphy of Tammany was bitterly enraged because an invitation to the Sulzer dinner had been sent to the Nebraska and that as a result he (Murphy) would stay at his country estate at Good Grays and not attend the dinner. Bryan said that he had come to New York to pay tribute to his "good friend of many years," Governor-elect Sulzer, and he refused to be drawn into personalities.

DISMISSAL OF CASE ASKED BY FRIENDS OF TWO ACCUSED MEN

A petition signed by a number of the friends of Tommy Gaffney and F. G. Edwards has been received by Raymond L. Givens, county attorney, asking for the dismissal of further prosecution against the two men.

The failure of one jury to convict them and the fact that they have already served some time in jail is enough punishment for them, the petitioners claim, especially when one body of men could not decide whether or not the men were guilty of the forgery with which they were charged.

Mr. Givens has not yet decided what he will do with the case. He had not made up his mind last night whether he would prosecute the men at the next term of court or whether he would ask for a dismissal of further proceedings against them.

Chicago's Generous Santa Claus. Chicago, Dec. 21.—Showers of gold and loads of turkeys were distributed by a generous Santa Claus throughout Chicago's business district today. It is estimated that at least $2,000,000 was distributed as bonuses among the employes of industries, banks and big stores, with the probability that the total will be raised to $3,000,000 by the addition of gifts deferred until Christmas day or the end of the year. The biggest givers were the large factories and mercantile establishments that have adopted the profit-sharing plan. Practically all of the banks and brokerage houses presented their employes with gold pieces, from $5 to $20, in most cases according to rank and length of service.

Automobile Always Busy. For weeks a fine limousine automobile has sped from one neighborhood to another, enabling bandits to commit a series of daring "wild west" holdups of restaurants, saloons and pedestrians. The robbers have shot numerous victims, beaten others with pistols and fought running pistol duels with policemen. Stratton was, late today, identified by Wilbur G. Saller of Chicago as the "lone train robber" that held up a Pere Marquette train at South Chicago six years ago, and robbed his passengers. The prisoner laughed and remarked:

"For a man who saw the thief just a second, late at night, six years ago, you have a wonderful memory. What jury, do you think, will believe that?" Stratton has the brand of a college Greek letter society. The police were told that the "frat" that uses the symbol is a Purdue. The cultured prisoner laughed evasively when asked if he attended that college.

Given Third Degree. The male prisoners are being given the "third degree" of deprivation of sleep, food and rest, to make them communicative. Williams is the only prisoner who seems to be weakening. Jewelers' and bankers' associations have notified the Chicago police that they will co-operate in prosecuting the gang members now under arrest. The New York Jewelers' Security alliance wired their willingness to pay half the expense of convicting them. The Pinkerton agency and others think that, even if those under arrest are not guilty of murdering Logus, they are the ones who have committed the large number of jewelry and bank robberies in Chicago in the last six weeks. The Pinkertons say they have evidence to prove that the gang had been throwing padded bricks through display windows in jewelry stores and stealing the display.

DISRUPTION OF NEW YORK POLICE FORCE IS FEARED

Appeal to Supreme Court to Compel Witness in Skelly Trial to Answer Questions.

New York, Dec. 21.—Developments in the vice graft probe, which threatens to disrupt the New York police department, came quickly tonight. First Deputy Commissioner Walsh hastily adjourned the trial of Policeman John J. Skelly, charged with accepting graft to let Mary Goode's disorderly house run, in order that he might apply to the supreme court to compel Mrs. Goode and Emmanuel Mass, alleged collectors for the police to answer questions. Mrs. Goode had refused to tell her real name because, she says, she intends to protect her relatives. Mass, who is a bottler, and alleged by Mrs. Goode to be the official "fixer" for the tenderloin resorts, as well as collector, refused to tell anything about his knowledge of vice collections or police graft.

When the Police Commissioner Waldo was informed that the aldermanic board investigating the police had to apply to the courts to compel the department to produce records and to aid the inquiry, he changed his position he had heretofore assumed and announced that the department will do everything in its power to aid in uncovering graft in the department. He said that the department would turn all records asked for over to the aldermanic committee. This had not been done heretofore, he said, because the records were so important he feared they might be "mixed up or lost" by the aldermen.

Wants Police Recognized. It was also reported that Waldo had asked District Attorney Whitman to aid him in reorganizing the police and in punishing grafters.

The district attorney had nothing to say regarding this speech, but it was made plain that every move in the case is being followed carefully and it was believed certain that the extraordinary grand jury session would take up the police allegations some time next week. At the Skelly trial today Mass swore that he never saw the accused policeman before yesterday and after that refused to say anything. Solomon Wolf, proprietor of a liquor store, admitted knowing Skelly and Mrs. Goode but he flatly denied knowledge of any graft or aiding the woman in opening up an illegal resort.

Under the authority of the aldermanic investigating committee, experts in the employ of the bureau of municipal research have started a systematic study of the administrative organization of the police department. The money for this work—said to be the first examination of the "police machine" in the United States—was given by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., whose initial gift of $20,000 will be supplemented by an additional one of $10,000 if it is needed.

Mexico's "Tomorrow" Plea. In it the president is expected to urge upon congress abandonment of the present administration of patient acceptance of the Mexican "tomorrow" plea in reference to demands for greater protection to Americans and their property.

Meanwhile the state department's advice continue to recount outrages against Americans and their property in southern Mexico. The northern provinces are ravaged with bandits temporarily turned revolutionists, who are pillaging right and left. At Santa Isabel ranch, near Durango, two American women were assaulted and American negroes brutally tortured. ing the victim. They regard his custom of keeping his door locked much of the time, and the isolated, almost hidden location of the diamond rooms, as significant of two motives—caution against robbery or secrecy from observation.

Logue's Business Mysterious. The greatest mystery surrounded Logue's business. For years he dealt in diamonds and old gold, carrying a small stock of antique canoes and other jewelry in one small room with high frosted glass doors and windows, an immense case in which all his gems were locked at night. He was unaided, save by one small boy. Women of striking appearance and well-dressed young men, few in numbers, silent in their passage through the hallway and swift in departure, have transacted business with the broker behind closed doors.

Eight prisoners are held in the investigation; four men, said to be known thieves, and four women whose identity has not been revealed, except through unofficial sources. The prisoners are Clyde Stratton, alleged jailbird, safeblower, postoffice robber and all-round criminal; W. H. Hampden, alias "Michigan Smith"; Frank Williams, alias Frisbie; Charles Duffy, a chauffeur; Margaret Johnson, wife of "Toronto Jimmy" Johnson, a convict at Waupun, Wis.; Marguerite and Lillian Ballenstein, alias Bergstein, the supposed wives of Hampden and Frisbie, and Edna Collier, a trained nurse.

In a flat in an apartment building on Clifton avenue, the party posed as business men and their wives. A big, black limousine carried them to and from the building. Stratton owned it. In this flat the police found burglars' tools, a safe-blowing outfit, nitroglycerin, dynamite and revolvers, the proceeds of burglaries and a black skirt, from which was torn a strip said to match the gag used in the murder.

attacks of marauders. Rioting and bloodshed is feared at Cananea, Sonora, where Mexican employes of the American copper mines are on strike. The testimony so far gathered by Senators Fall and Smith, and to which Fall expects to add later information on his trip to El Paso, proves that Madero is conducting a needless war against a large proportion of his people who are fighting with a barbarity equal to his own. Non-combatants are the victims of both sides. With or without whatever additional evidence Fall may obtain at El Paso—which city is swarming with revolutionary Junta and Madero's secret emissaries—the committee believes that the case is urgent enough to bring about the adoption of resolutions in congress leading to definite, positive action for protection of Americans on Mexican soil. It was hinted here tonight that such recommendation would accompany the committee's report. The committee had held all its hearings in executive session and is guarding evidence carefully.
