A Heart to Heart Talk With the Booklovers

DO NOT CUT OUT TOO MANY ANSWERS.

If you would only follow the advice we have been giving you all through this contest it would not be necessary for us to talk to you on the subject this evening. But we are receiving so many inquiries by telephone and by mail on this important subject, that we deem it our duty to make this point clear, if possible, to you. We have just received a copy of a metropolitan daily that has just closed a contest similar to ours in most respects and they have just awarded the prizes. And in the copy received by us is a statement from the winner of the third prize in the contest. Listen to him: "I had in my original list of possible answers made out for the 75 pictures, 73 of the correct answers. But in parsing down my answers for the set, as I finally turned it in, I foolishly cut out two of these correct answers." The winner of first prize in this contest had 71 of the 75 answers correct and made 510 answers in all. Winner of second prize had 71 correct, using 661 answers in all. The winner of third prize (the man whose statement is quoted above) had 71 correct, using 674 answers in all. Winner of fourth prize had 678 answers in all and 71 of them correct.

So you see, all four winners had the same number of correct answers and used varying numbers of answers. Had the winner of third prize not been so keen in parsing down answers he would have had 73 correct, and would have first prize instead of third. Applying it to this contest, he would have secured $500 in gold instead of a $175 diamond ring.

His anxiety to beat the other fellow cost him $325. These results are given for your guidance in submitting answers. The plan of that contest was nearly the same as ours. The only difference is that our pictures are clearer and better drawn and bring out the titles fairer and better to our way of thinking.

We bring out these facts so that our enthusiastic and hardworking Booklovers will have a clearer idea of what parsing down their answers too low may do to them. Pare down the number you wish to submit when you are SURE it is good policy to do so.

Remember, the different stories on titles given to you at different times throughout this contest, and as we have told you all along, look at the pictures from all angles.

Remember the fate of the man who "pared" himself out of first prize. More than likely he thought he was doing the wise thing.

But we hope you will not try to be as "wise" as he was!

Can you imagine how he felt when the list of correct answers were published?

In order that our Contestants may submit as many answers as they think necessary to win, we have prepared an Answer Book that gives you the right to ten answers on each picture.

The Answer Book costs $1.00 at our office or $1.10 by mail. After you have secured it there is no further cost, for with the Answer Book you can submit from one to ten answers on each picture.

And Remember, You Need Only One Copy of Each Picture.

And we give you 35 pictures free with the Answer Book!

This makes it easy for new contestants to start right in now and have a whole month to get their answers in to us.

The last day for mailing answers is February 1.

That gives you plenty of time, even if you only put in one hour a day in solving them!

And it makes it easy for old contestants to get a clean, fresh set of 35 new pictures and replace any that are soiled, torn or lost.

The prizes are worth $1500-$500 of that is Gold.

Now is the Proper Time to Enter. Use the Coupon Today!

MARBLE STONES ARE NOT THE BEST

Bulletin on Durability of Stone Issued by Geological Survey.

(Capital News Special Service)

Washington, Dec. 31.—According to a bulletin just issued by the geological survey, white marble is a bad composition for gravestones, due to the fact that it is subject to dissolution, and also that the inscriptions thereon are effaced very early compared with other materials for the same thing.

"Although marble is considered superior," continues the report, "for statuary and ornamental purposes, to many of the other stones in its ability to withstand the action of heat, cold, snow and rain, its wearing quality is governed by four factors, namely, its chemical composition, its texture, the general character of the climate and local artificial conditions of the atmosphere."

It is generally known that carvings in European marbles will stand exposure in the climate of southern Europe much better than in that of the eastern states. One authority states "that in the dry atmosphere of Egypt, Greece and Italy marble statues after an exposure of 1000 years lose some of their fine lines but become coated with a fine protective crust."

This same scientist, however, refers to a number of Norwegian calcite marbles which have stood six or seven hundred years exposed to the raw, windy and cold climate of northern and western Norway with but very little if any weathering.

In many country church yards and cemeteries the effect of such a climate as New England can be observed. As the epitaphs on tombstones and monuments give the approximate dates of their erection the amount of dissolution by weathering in a century can be calculated. On a marble stone in horizontal position in the cemetery on Burial Hill, Plymouth, Mass., dated 1825, the lettering is almost effaced, and one of the same year in vertical position is badly weathered.

Slate stones in the same cemetery from England, Wales and New England, dated 1683, 1743, 1745, 1773 and 1828, have well preserved lettering. The good state of preservation of epitaphs on slate dating back to the early settlement is noticeable in many other cemeteries. In speaking of cemeteries, the question arises, "How long will the letters on the marble headstones in the National cemetery at Arlington, Va., stand the humid atmosphere of that region?"

The weathering of marble in smoke laden atmosphere of great cities and industrial is hastened not only by the

BILL OF INTEREST TO THE STOCKMEN

Measure Which Will Be Introduced at Coming Session of Legislature.

A measure of interest to stockmen in this state will be introduced at the coming session of the legislature by those engaged in the industry who seek to have enacted a law that will be more satisfactory and offer more protection. The measure is highly recommended by stock experts and follows the Arkansas law. It is as follows:

The owner of any stallion or jack, kept for the propagation of his species, shall have a lien upon any female animal and her offspring to which such male so let for the sum contracted therefor, which lien shall attach at the time of service of such male and shall not be lost by reason of any sale, exchange or removal from the county, or other disposition without consent of the person holding the lien, the same may be immediately enforced. Provided; also upon the sale, exchange, removal or disposition of such female animal without consent of person holding the lien or with intent to defraud him, the owner of such female animal shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined in any sum not less than $25, nor more than $50.

At any time within twenty months after his right of action accrues, the owner of such male animal may file with any justice of the peace in the county, a written statement, duly verified, setting forth amount of his claim, his cause of action, and a description of the animal upon which he has a lien, and the justice shall thereupon issue summons as in other cases and embody therein a description of the animal and an order to the constable to take the animal and her offspring, if there be an offspring, and hold to (her) or them subject to the order of the court.

If upon trial, judgment be rendered for the plaintiff, the court shall order a sale of the animal or animals as on execution sales to pay the judgment and cost, and if bond be given for the retention of the animal or animals the court shall render judgment on the bond against the sureties for the amount of the plaintiff's debt and cost.

The Skin and Not the Blood. Until recently it has been a generally accepted theory that eczema was a disease of the blood. Scientific investigations have taught us that eczema is positively a skin disease and curable through the skin alone.

Mertol Eczema Remedy is applied directly to the diseased skin, the effect is marvelous and its results permanent. Do not delay trying Mertol Eczema Remedy. Whitehead's Drug Store.
