

GALFORD CHILDREN GUESTS SOLDIERS PLEASE VETERANS

Capital News Arranges for Three Concerts Today at State Institutions Which Are Thoroughly Enjoyed.

Veterans of the Soldiers' Home are loud in their praise of the entertaining concert given them this morning through arrangement by the Capital News for the Galford juvenile orchestra to appear at that institution. The concert was held in the dining room at the home and many of the veterans were in attendance. The children were at their best and played a number of very pleasing pieces.

This afternoon the juvenile orchestra is giving a concert to the prisoners at the state penitentiary and at the Children's Home, special arrangements having been made by the Capital News for both concerts. The orchestra is one of the most famous of its kind in the west. The children members are all artists.

DANCE POSTPONED.

The Elks dance scheduled for Friday evening has been postponed on account of the death of W. H. Cathcart, one of the organization's most prominent members. A new date for the dance will be announced later.

COMPLAINT DISMISSED.

A Belgian police dog, valued at several hundred dollars, belonging to Harry Knowles, 1008 North Sixteenth street, upset by his new surroundings caused a little excitement Wednesday. Henry Whitson filed a complaint in municipal court against the owner, charging the dog bit him, but it was dismissed today. The dog is not of a naturally vicious disposition, but was a trifle "strung up" over being moved into a new neighborhood, according to Knowles. The animal, which saw actual service on the battlefields, was purchased by Knowles from his Belgian owner at a price of $125, to which $75 in duty charges were added. His father sold for $1700 and its mother for $1300, and it is considered one of the most valuable dogs ever brought to Boise.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The ladies of the Morden Collier Methodist church will give another of their famous chicken dinner Friday evening from 5 until 8 o'clock in the basement of the church.

MEASURE TO PREVENT FUTURE FIRE HAZARDS

Building Inspector Will Deny Permits to Build New Bases for Old Brick Chimneys.

Rifts in chimneys caused by their settling have been found accountable for recent fires in the city, and Building Inspector P. H. Spangenburg has taken steps against such mishaps. Permission has been withdrawn for any "underbuilding" of chimneys, and no permits for such work will be granted in future.

The practice has not been uncommon when installing a furnace in a house having a brick chimney resting on brackets, to build a new base up to the old structure. Shrinkage in the mortar between layers has caused the new section to settle, thus lowering the upper part. Roof, ceiling or floor joists catch and hold bricks to which attached, making a gap in the flue and a beautiful fire hazard.

Hereafter, says Mr. Spangenburg, unless the old chimney is built from the ground up it will have to be torn down and a new one erected.

SUPREME COURT.

Judgment found for the plaintiff in the case of George Wright vs. J. I. Stewart, tried in the Bingham county district court, was today affirmed by the state supreme court. The case was an action for damages allegedly suffered by refusal of the defendant to permit the use of an irrigation ditch in conformity with the terms of an oral lease contract. The defendant asked for a new trial.

SHOWS ADVANTAGES OF LAND EXCHANGE

Both State and Federal Government Will Profit by Proposed Transfer of Property, Says Mains.

"The state will be greatly benefitted by the proposed exchange with the federal government of lands lying within the forest reserves for more compact areas, and I'm sure the change will greatly aid national forest administration," said Guy B. Mains, Payette national forest supervisor, today apropos of negotiations now under way by which the state will exchange 100,000 or more with the federal government.

"Scattered as they are now, the state's sections within national forest townships are certainly not highly desirable for grazing purposes, since a section will keep but a small flock of sheep; whereas, if the state held instead of scattered sections an equal number of sections in a compact body it could readily lease it for grazing purposes," Mr. Mains explained.

The removal of the state's sections from the forest boundaries would also be a great benefit toward more efficient administration of the reserve, Mr. Mains pointed out. For instance, a lessee of a state section within the forest for grazing purposes must trail, in many cases, across miles of forest lands to get to the lands which he has leased. This usually creates trouble for the forest officials, because while on their way the flocks will get into parts of the forest in which they are not allowed.

Practically the same situation holds true as to timber lands. The state's scattered sections—numbers 16 and 36 under the federal grant—are inaccessible in a majority of cases. The same area of land at the edge of the forest or in other parts of the state could be disposed of and the money turned into the school funds to which the proceeds of the lands were dedicated, by the federal government in making its grant.

BURSARS WILL MEET ANNUALLY HEREAFTER

As the result of the success of a two-conference which closed Wednesday afternoon, bursars of the six educational institutions of the state will probably hold annual meetings hereafter for the discussion of mutual accounting problems. It was announced at the close of the session. The meetings will probably be held at the University of Idaho, although no meeting place was definitely agreed upon.

ALLEGED AGENT

"conspire and confederate and agree together," to ask and receive bribes from "divers persons as they could induce to make applications for a license to practice dentistry in the state of Idaho," with an understanding that the vote, opinion or action of Myers would be favorable to such applicants. The warrant for Fitzgerald's arrest was filed October 28 in the court of Justice of the Peace G. H. Rust, but the authorities were unable to arrest Fitzgerald, because he remained outside of the state. Officials of Lewiston and Moscow had been warned to watch for him. Yesterday he went to Lewiston from Spokane and was promptly picked up.

GAVE DEMONSTRATIONS.

Fitzgerald is general manager of what is known as the "E. R. Parker System." He has frequently given dental demonstrations on the streets of various Idaho towns.

The arrest of Fitzgerald and the rearrest of Myers is the result of an investigation which has been in progress more than six months under Robert O. Jones, state commissioner of law enforcement. In carrying on the investigation, agents of the law enforcement department have gathered evidence in six or seven states, it was learned.

Between 35 and 40 licenses were sold to various dental applicants at prices ranging from $100 to $300 each, according to evidence, said to be in the possession of the authorities.

THE COMPLAINT.

The complaint against Myers and Fitzgerald, which was sworn to by Director Paul Davis of the bureau of license, alleges in particular: "That W. A. Myers and V. A. Fitzgerald on or about the first day of December, 1918, and continuing until on or about the first day of April, 1919, at Boise, in the county of Ada in the state of Idaho, the said W. A. Myers being then and there an executive officer of the state board of dental examiners of the state of Idaho, did then and there knowingly, willfully and unlawfully ask and receive bribes from such divers persons as they, the said W. A. Myers and V. A. Fitzgerald, could induce to make applications for a license to practice dentistry in the state of Idaho, to the said board of dental examiners of the state of Idaho upon corrupt understanding and agreement that the vote, opinion, or action of the said W. A. Myers would be favorable to the said applicants thus making applications for a license to practice dentistry in the state of Idaho, to the said board of dental examiners of the state of Idaho, of which the said W. A. Myers was a member and secretary thereof."

GERMAN CROWDS

of support in his demand for obedience was the real cause of the disintegration of the German land and naval forces, he declared. Operations were doomed before the revolution, von Hindenburg insisted. It only put the finishing touches to Germany's collapse.

Following von Hindenburg, Erich Ludendorff, former quartermaster general, who shared with the field marshal the command of Germany's land forces, declared the situation was "most serious" when he and von Hindenburg assumed command. Germany's armies were outnumbered ten to six, he said, and inadequate equipment and ammunition caused heavy losses.

READS OF WARNING.

During von Hindenburg's testimony, yesterday the probers produced reports from Hansel von Halmhausen, former secretary of the German embassy in Washington, warning the imperial government that America would enter the war if the then threatened unrestricted submarine warfare was started.

America's entry meant defeat for Germany, von Halmhausen warned, according to his reports, adding that German-Americans in the United States generally were loyal to the American government.

Ludendorff brushed these reports aside, declaring that "such memoranda" always was referred to the "proper sources."

Von Hindenburg was inclined to give the reports more serious treatment. The decision for unrestricted undersea warfare was the "hardest of the war," he admitted—excepting only the armistice. Monarchists and Pan-Germans staged a great demonstration at von Hindenburg and Ludendorff came to the reichstag building yesterday. More than 2,000 were gathered in front of the building in a blinding snow storm.

CROWD BEGINS SINGING.

Then a group started up "Deutschland Ueber Alles," and soon the whole crowd was singing. As Hindenburg came to the reichstag steps the crowd sang, "Hell dir in slegerkranz."

Imperial colors appeared from everywhere and many men bared their heads in honor of their old chief.

Inside the reichstag building von Hindenburg found upon his desk a great bunch of lilies, tied with ribbons in the imperial colors.

Heavily armed guards of the forces of Gustave Noeke, minister of defense, plodded through the snow around the reichstag but made no attempt to stop the demonstration in honor of the two warriors. Machine guns were kept in readiness, however.

Another demonstration was staged at von Hindenburg and Ludendorff left the reichstag. Monarchists again started "Hoch Hindenburg" but the anti-monarchists had gathered and drowned them with a counter demonstration, singing the Marsellaise and shouting "Hindenburg, the slaughterer."
