URGE MEMBERS TO HURRY UP BALLOTS

Chamber of Commerce Primary Closes Friday—Single Vote May Decide Several Places on Board of Directors.

Ballots are returning very slowly in the mail primary election for directors of the new Chamber of Commerce, according to expansion campaign headquarters at the Commercial club. The polls will close and the votes will be counted Friday evening, and members are being asked to mark and return their ballots without fail, even if their minds are pretty well occupied with Christmas activities just now.

"Individuals are mistaken if they think their votes are unimportant," said D. J. Magruder of the American City bureau this morning. "Every member is expected to register his choice for the directors who will pilot the new organization through its first year. And when it is considered that one or two votes will determine the outcome, one can see that each member's duty is to see that his ballot gets in."

"In the primary election, because so many names will be voted upon several places on the list of nominees will naturally be filled by a very narrow margin. In the recent election of the new Nampa Chamber of Commerce, there were ties for the last four places on the board. One ballot may easily settle the nomination for one or more directors."

SPECIAL SERVICES AT ST. MICHAEL'S

Elaborate Program of Music Christmas Eve Beginning at 10 p. m.—Christmas Morning Service at 11.

An elaborate musical program will be given at St. Michael's cathedral tonight, Christmas eve, beginning at 10 o'clock, when the choir will assemble in the tower and sing old English carols for a half hour.

A most beautiful effect has been obtained by placing strong searchlights outside of the handsome group of windows representing the Nativity. The light shining through from the outside brings out every detail of coloring and shading in the glass, and while the church is in semi-darkness produces a most wonderful effect. The scene of the Holy Child and virgin mother, the humble cattle shed, the star of Bethlehem and the angelic hosts of heaven, the shepherds and the wise men, tells a story more beautiful than words can paint it. While the strong searchlights are turned on this window, the choir in the far corner tower of the cathedral will sing softly many of the old English Christmas carols.

The cathedral will be open for those who wish to assemble there and enjoy the music. Among the carols will be the following:

"The First Noel," "Good King Wenceslas," "God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen," "Holy Night," "Deck the Halls With Boughs of Holly," "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "Listen to the Angels Singing," "The Snow Lay on the Ground," "Hark! What Mean Those Holy Voices."

A pretty feature in connection with the service will be the lighting of the church by the Star of Bethlehem suspended over the chancel. At 10:30 the full choir in procession will enter the cathedral singing "Christians, Awake, Salute the Happy Morn." Upon arriving at the chancel, the hymn, "Oh Come All Ye Faithful," will be sung. The full program of music for the service is as follows:

Magnificat, "My Soul Doth Magnify the Lord," Stanford, in B flat
Scripture lesson, St. Luke 2 to verse 15
Nunc Dimittis, "Lord, Now Lettest Thou Thy Servant Depart in Peace," Stanford in E flat
Hymn, "Gather in the Listening Ear of Night," Dykes
Kyrie in round form, E. E. Farmer
Communion service in D flat, Barton
Hymn, "Hark! the Herald Angels Sing"

Offertory anthem, "Hallelujah" from "Engel" Beethoven
Gloria in Excelsis, Traditional Chant
Sevenfold Amen, Stainer
Recessional hymn, "O Little Town of Bethlehem," No. 4
A Christmas service will be held in the cathedral Christmas morning at 11 o'clock.

Extension Department Kills Enough Grasshoppers to Pay Its Expenses

Grasshopper killing in Lewis county last summer saved crops worth $327,027; the whole expenditure of the university extension division for the year was only $285,123.25; the total appropriation of state money for the extension division for the biennium was $306,000. This comparison was made at the offices of the University of Idaho extension division Saturday, to show that enough had been saved by the killing of grasshoppers in one county to more than pay for the year's extension work in the entire state.

"A total of 3175 pounds of white arsenic, 800 pounds of Paris green, 1800 dozen lemons, 1200 gallons of molasses and about 55,000 pounds of bran were used in this campaign," says a report on the Lewis county grasshopper campaign, from County Agent A. E. Wade. "The cost of materials was about $6000, and it is estimated that the labor of mixing and applying the poison would be about the same, making a total cost of about $12,000."

"The number of acres actually destroyed in the county was 532 and total acreage treated $755 and when it is taken into consideration that the area treated was little more than the actual area upon which the hoppers were hatching by millions, one can form some sort of an idea of the number of hoppers that were poisoned in this campaign."

On one farm where a count was made, over 300 dead grasshoppers were found in a space the size of man's hat.

The saving of crops, figuring on the basis of reports received from 44 farmers who used about 12 1/2 per cent of the total amount of poison sold for this purpose, was $327,027. Subtracting the expense of materials and work leaves a net saving on crops of about $327,027.

"From the quantity of grasshopper eggs laid during the fall of 1918 it was apparent that there would be a large number of hoppers to fight during 1919. Consequently at winter meetings the matter was discussed and orders were taken for poison by the community committee."

"On May 7, posters were put up in conspicuous places in the county, articles were published in the county papers and letters were sent to community committeemen to be on the lookout for grasshoppers and to report to the county agent if demonstrations were needed in the community in the mixing of poison bait.

"Arrangements were also made with the druggists to furnish arsenic and molasses at cost plus 10 per cent and with the grocers to furnish lemons on the same basis. Inquiry also was made to ascertain if there was sufficient bran on hand to meet the emergency."

"Thirteen mixing demonstrations were given in the different communities in the following month. Pressure also was brought to bear on anyone reported as having grasshoppers and not poisoning them, by having the neighbors all call him up individually and draw his attention to the matter. This method worked out admirably in the few cases reported. In fact, from 44 reports sent in by farmers in the infested districts, only two reported that the neighbors did not co-operate in the work, eight reported that some did not, and 33 reported the neighbors all co-operating."

"This effective campaign is a splendid example of what may be accomplished by co-operation and this report would not be complete without mention of the part played by the community committeemen on pest control, who arranged for mixing demonstrations, and the merchants who furnished the material practically at cost."

"It is considered that the fight against grasshoppers in Lewis county is practically over, as what few hoppers were left in the county and those that migrated here from Idaho county late in the summer were infested with maggots from flies that deposit their eggs and their living young upon the hoppers. These maggots eat their way into the body of the hopper and there grow to maturity, causing the death of the hopper, after which they make their way into the ground, where they complete their life cycle and emerge as mature flies, ready to infest more hoppers."
