A Lady in Texas Tells How She Regained and Keeps Her Health.

Every household should have at hand all the time a dependable remedy with which to fight catarrh and catarrhal conditions.

The experience of Mrs. M. E. Berkeley, No. 1822 27th St., Galveston, Tex., is not unique, but her letter does carry a vigorous "safety first" suggestion to every American home: "I wish to tell you of the good Peruna has been to me. I have used it five years and have never found it other than satisfactory as a remedy for colds, catarrh, indigestion and many other ailments. I am never without Peruna."

Coughs, colds, catarrh, grip and influenza cannot safely be neglected. Any disease due to catarrhal inflammation of the mucous lining, whether of the nasal passages, throat, lungs, stomach, bowels, kidneys, bladder or other organs, is to be feared. Catarrh is always a menace to the general health and on account of its prevalence must be fought and fought hard all the time.

Thousands place their entire dependence upon the well known time-tried remedy, Peruna. Dr. Hartman began selling Peruna for catarrh forty-five years ago. Try Peruna first and avoid possible disappointment and expense.

For Mature Figures

Lines that give an effect of slenderness make the plainest frocks or suits intensely interesting to women whose figures have lost that longed-for attribute of youth. Line and quality—they are the first consideration in the American gentlewoman's clothes after she has reached "the age of discretion" and becomes severely discriminating. She will take the simplest affair in street frock or suit, if it possesses what she requires in these regards, and tone it up to a high degree of distinction by means of a bit of neckwear, a furpiece, and a hat that matches it in trimness. Designers occupy themselves in working out clothes that are to give to the figure long and very graceful lines and their artful achievements compel us to admire them.

The suit shown in the picture above is a case in point; built on almost straight lines and plain even to the exclusion of buttons. The skirt is narrow and a trifle longer than has been the rule in suits. It has barely enough width to allow a comfortable stride in walking and is finished with a five-inch hem. The coat has a long waistline, indicated by a narrow belt made of the cloth and crossed at the front. It has pockets of the sort that are not noticeable, merely slits at each side that don't interfere with any line which is pursuing its straight-downward career. The ever present fur collar and cuffs, in this particular instance, are of Hudson seal, the collar one of those long convertible affairs that can be brought up close about the throat.

Collars by the way are one of the means of achieving length of line. Made of the material of the coat or frock or blouse they creep up about the chin and are fastened by buttons at the end of a long row on the garment. It is impossible not to follow this slim line, of buttons that attract and hold the eye.

Panels, wide and narrow, that hang from neck to hem, made their instant success because of their long lines. For the sake of variety designers have added narrow floating panels to one-piece frocks and have carried out the idea in many ways on both frocks and suits. Even blouses have taken on the distinction of panels that fall from the shoulder and far below the limits of the waist they embellish.

From the Salon Debutantes

Only three of the many charming styles in hats, made for the girl who finds herself at last grown up, can be shown in our illustration. But these three styles have been found great favorites with the younger women whose individual tastes and preferences in matters of dress, are more clearly defined than those of their elders. Their young intuitions are keen and it will have to be conceded that no millinery could express more definitely the spirit of youth than these hats which so many debutantes have approved.

The hat at the left of the group is one of a great many interpretations of the tam which is enjoying a long-drawn-out period of popularity. It is picturesque to start with, and since the war, the glamor of the Blue Devil of France has cast a spell about it. This particular tam is made of beige-colored beaver cloth, mounted on a headband of grosgrain ribbon in the same color, tucked at intervals. A flat bow of the same ribbon fastens the folded-in-crown to the band. These tams are made in all the popular colors—with brown and purple worth mentioning for their richness in beaver. And there are others of velvet.

The pretty square-crowned hat at the right reveals beaver in combination with velvet in a street hat of unusual merit for all-round wear. It is a beige and brown combination having a band and bow of brown grosgrain ribbon. A bit of needlework of the simplest sort holds the flat bow to the side crown—or pretends to—and it might be put on in a gay color.

A dressier bit of headwear appear in the black hat of panne velvet at the bottom of the group. It has a facing of plain velvet and is placed in the class of things youthful by the scalloped edge of the brim. An odd trimming daintily placed helps out in this regard. It is a small stiffened tab of velvet, supporting a cabochon made of black soutache braid which is fastened to the edge of the brim. One must explain it as a vagary of youth as well as an ornament. This is an all-black hat which proves that all-black may be as youthful as rose-color—if it is managed in the right way.
