Through some one's negligence the gate to Tom Hale's corral was left open last Saturday night and all of Tom's livery stock escaped. The consequence was that all who had rigs engaged for Sunday were left afoot, as the horses could not be found in time to be of any use.

Frank Clark, well known here, was arrested at Stuart this week for selling whiskey on the reservation. He will fight the case, contending that he had a government license and that his saloon was on deeded ground over which Indian Agent Stranahan, who arrested Clark, has no jurisdiction. Thirty gallons of liquor were found in Clark's possession. He was placed under bonds and the report was current yesterday that he had left the country.

Our ever progressing merchant, W. L. Brown, this week bought the fine three story building formerly owned by the Baptists and will move his stock of goods, including a large amount of new stock, into it as soon as Link Manwaring completes the grading and the carpenters finish the elegant two story warehouse, which is to be fifty feet long and will be built to the structure proper. This will make a much better and more commodious store than the one Mr. Brown is now occupying. He deserves a good trade—and gets it, too.

The man who delivers enlarged pictures had a lively experience last Tuesday evening. He had his team hitched to a post just on this side of the graveyard when something frightened them, they pulled out the post and away they went. They came through town at a 2:40 gait and made straight for Warren Potter's stable. One of the horses wanted to go into one part of the stable and the other wanted to go into another part, consequently the tongue struck the partition and broke into splinters; two spokes in one wheel were also broken and the top was torn off. It seemed to onlookers as though enlarged pictures of all the ancestors and progeny of Cottonwood residents would be scattered all over the upper end of town, but upon investigation it was learned that there were no pictures in the conveyance.

What might have resulted in a serious accident occurred to John Peterson and wife last Sunday. They had one of Warren Potter's teams and were on their way to visit with A. Jorgenson. After they had driven past Mr. Van Tash's place a short distance Mr. Peterson noticed that one of the horses had a large nail in the frog of its foot. Leaving his wife to hold the team he started back to Van Tash's after a pair of pin-cers to extract the nail. During his absence the horses became excited and started to run. Mrs. Peterson jumped out of the buggy and lit on the ground between the wheels, one of which ran over her causing a slight injury, and when John was returning with the pin-cers he saw the team disappearing at a rapid gait. They ran down onto the school section where the lines became entangled in the wheels, throwing the horses to the ground. When the remains were gathered up it was found that the tongue of the buggy and several minor things had been broken but no serious damage was done otherwise.

Mike Hoffman was arrested last Wednesday, on information laid against him by John Westhoff, for assault. It seems that Westhoff and Hoffman have been having trouble for the past four months over a piece of ground that Barney, a son of John Westhoff, had rented from the defendant, and the climax came as Hoffman saw Westhoff's crew attempt to take their header through a portion of his field where they had previously been warned not to go. Hoffman was working in an adjoining field when he saw the header crew and immediately went to the place, taking his pitch fork with him. Upon his arrival there an altercation ensued and the consequence was Hoffman's arrest. He was tried yesterday before Judge Wolbert and a jury of six men found him "not guilty." Prosecuting Attorney Scales appeared for the state and E. W. Griffith, of Grangeville, for the defense.

After listening to the vulgarity and obscenity on the street lately it strikes one that we should incorporate soon.
